LOBBY GROUP AGREES NOT TO PRESS BISHOP ON POLITICAL WORKS

Cannon Appears Suddenly Before Meeting of Committee.

ACTION ON WALKOUT HELD TO BE UNLIKELY

Walsh Contends to Last Quiz Did Not Exceed Its Authority.

PLAN TO CALL SLEMP TO TELL OF $65,300

Woman Stirs Hearing With Shouted Charges of "Romanist Holdup."

(Associated Press.)

Definite agreement not to compel Bishop James Cannon, jr., to answer questions about his 1928 anti-Smith activities was reached late yesterday by the Senate lobby committee.

The decision was agreed upon during informal conferences among members of the committee and will be announced officially at a meeting today attended by the Southern Methodist churchman.

It was considered improbable that any action would be taken as the result of the bishop's defiance of the committee last week when he repeatedly refused to answer questions about his political activities and walked out on his investigators.

The committee agreed earlier in the day to pass upon its authority to investigate political activities before taking any action against the bishop. The agreement was entered into at the request of Bishop Cannon who appeared unexpectedly at a committee meeting and assured the investigators he had intended no discourtesy in walking out.

Proposes to Call Slemp.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, contended to the last that the committee had not exceeded its authority in inquiring into Bishop Cannon's political activities. He advocated asking the Senate for specific authority to investigate political activities, but did not receive the necessary support from other members.

Members of the committee said it had been proposed to call C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to President Coolidge and now Republican national committeeman for Virginia, to testify concerning contributions of $65,300 made to Bishop Cannon by E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist. It was understood, however, that this proposal also had been overruled.

Mr. Slemp is reported to have brought Bishop Cannon and Mr. Jameson together during the 1928 campaign, but the bishop testified he did not recall whether the Virginian first introduced him to the New Yorker.

Capitol Appearance Unexpected.

Walking with the aid of a crutch, he appeared at the Capitol while the investigators were meeting in the office of Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, to decide what to do about his defiance. Bishop Cannon went straight to the lobby committee room.

Word quickly spread to the investigators that the bishop had appeared and they immediately adjourned their meeting to learn why he had come.

They found the bishop awaiting them with a prepared statement, which he read to the five members. It was the first time a quorum had been present while the bishop was under examination.

The statement said he had not intended any contempt in walking out and requested the committee to pass upon whether it was within its rights in attempting to question him about his political activities. His attitude toward the committee was friendly in contrast to his defiant posture of last week.

Before the committee agreed to Bishop Cannon's request, Senator Borah asked the churchman if he considered himself to be under the jurisdiction of the committee.

Jurisdiction of Committee.

"I have Senator Borah's word for it that as a voluntary witness I am subject to the jurisdiction of the committee," Bishop Cannon told the other committee members.

He contended last week that he was not within the committee's jurisdiction because he had appeared as a voluntary witness and insisted that gave him the privilege of withdrawing at his pleasure.

Some of the committee members attempted to question him about the contribution of $65,300 made by E. C. Jameson, a New York capitalist, for the 1928 anti-Smith campaign, but he declined to answer until a Rare Liquors Escorted From Baltimore to Vault.

Precious liquors from England were safely deposited late yesterday in a strong vault in the British Embassy here after a trip from Baltimore in a heavily guarded truck.

Secrecy shrouded the movement of the rare cargo, approximately 2,000 bottles, the first consignment for the embassy since Sir Esme Howard, the former ambassador, declared that his post would be dry. It was addressed to Sir Ronald Lindsay, the new ambassador, and was the initial cargo to be received under his administration.

PRESTES IN CAPITAL AFTER DELAY BY FOG

President-Elect of Brazil Arrives Too Late to Visit Hoover.

GREETED BY STIMSON

Delayed six hours by fog in the New York harbor, President-Elect Julio Prestes, of Brazil, arrived in Washington last night too late to pay his respects to President Hoover and have his call returned, these ceremonies being of necessity deferred until today.

A distinguished gathering was on hand to greet him at Union Station. Among those at the station was Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, while Dr. Prestes' escort of honor from New York to Washington also included notables of both governments.

A company of marines lined the track on which Dr. Prester' special pulled into the Capital, saluting him as he detrained, while the Army Band played the Brazilian national anthem. Outside the station Troop F, Third Cavalry, awaited the president-elect to escort him to the home prepared at 1624 Crescent place

ACT AUTHORIZES SIX U.S. BUILDINGS HERE

Second Deficiency Bill Has No Appropriations, but Permits Contracts.

COST TO BE $37,350,000

Six major building projects in the National Capital are authorized in the second deficiency bill, introduced in the House yesterday, projects which eventually will cost $37,350,000.

The bill itself does not carry this money, but it does permit contracts to be entered into for that sum. The projects and the limits of cost are:

Construction of a new Postoffice Department Building, $10,300,000. It will be placed near the present building.

Construction of a new Department of Labor Building, $4,750,000.

Construction of an Interstate Commerce Commission Building (which may be used by the General Accounting Office), $4,500,000.

Construction of a Department of Justice Building, $10,000,000.

Construction of a Public Health Service building near the Naval Hospital, $865,000.

80-Hour Hiccough Attack Weakens Victim's Vitality

Doctors' Science Baffled by Persistent Malady of Blacksmith.

With medical science baffled in its efforts to stop the hiccoughing of Charles W. Reid, blacksmith, 32 years old, of 1348 Girard street northwest, which had continued for more than 80 hours last night, more than a score of persons telephoned Casualty Hospital, offering home remedies as a cure of the diphragmatic spasms.

The hiccoughs were slowly sapping the vitality of sturdy blacksmith. A nurse last night stemmed the paroxysms for about half an hour, the first relief Mr. Reid had since Sunday noon when the sontaneous attack came on him suddenly while he was visiting the offices of the House of Representatives.

The hospital physicians are using standard treatments in their effort to give Mr. Reid relief. During his

SENATE BILLS CREATING NEW JUDGES CARRY

HOUSE ACTION LIKELY WITHOUT OPPOSITION

Confirmation of Adkins, Expected Soon, Will Aid Situation.

MOTIONS COURT SEEN AS PROBABLE RESULT

Other Reforms Also Planned by Chief Justice Wheat to Ease Congestion.

The Capper bills to give the District of Columbia four more judges, two for the local Supreme Court and two for the Court of Appeals, were passed by the Senate yesterday and sent to the House.

Similar bills already have been favorably reported to the House, and are scheduled to pass without opposition.

In the hearings on the measures, it was shown that congestion is acute in both courts. In the case of the Supreme Court, President Hoover himself urged that it be given additional judges.

Delay in Filling Vacancy.

Attorney General William D. Mitchell appeared at the Capitol to recommend additional judges for both courts.

Although it is supposed to have seven, the Supreme Court for the last six months has had only six judges. This was due to the delay in filling the vacancy caused by the retirement of Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy.

Recently President Hoover nominated Associated Justice Alfred A. Wheat to the post of chief justice. He then nominated Jesse C. Adkins, prominent local lawyer, to the post that had been held by Judge Wheat.

The Wheat nomination has been confirmed by the Senate, but the Adkins nomination is still pending. However, it is expected that the Senate also will confirm this in a few days.

Motions Court Favored.

If the two new Supreme Court judges are appointed, it is understood that Chief Justice Wheat, and the court in general term will favor the designation of a motions court

FAIRFAX CREW PANICKY, AVER CAPITAL GIRLS

Sara Poynton, Injured in Sea Disaster, Phones Parents Here.

SAYS SHE AND CHUM WERE KNOCKED DOWN

Parents Await Return of Survivors Coming by Train.

NEWSPAPER EMPLOYE ALSO BACKS CHARGES

Coast Guardsman Revealed as Hero of Disaster by Witnesses.

Charges that members of the crew became panic-stricken and "rushed around the decks knocking passengers down" after the steamer Fairfax rammed the tanker Pinthis off Scituate, Mass., Tuesday night, were made yesterday by two girls and a man, among six Washington passengers on the Fairfax.

One of the girls, Miss Sara Poynton, 20 years old, of 2272 Twelfth street northeast, was slightly injured, as were three other Washingtonians, Herbert Costain, of the Toc H Clubhouse; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Winter, and Mrs. Anna Fisley. Miss Poynton's chum, Miss Iona Browne, 19 years old, of 925 Ingraham street northwest, was unharmed.

Miss Poynton telephoned her mother from Boston early yesterday, saying that both girls were returning to Washington by train, but in her excitement she forgot to say what train, and at a late hour last night neither of the girls' families had heard anything further from their daughters, nor had any idea when to expect them.

Experiences Are Told.

Relating their experiences in the crash in Boston yesterday, Miss Poynton and Miss Browne, stenographers for the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., and making a vacation trip, which was their first time away from home alone, said:

"We were in our stateroom when we felt a sudden bump. The Fairfax seemed to quiver and suddenly stop. We fell off our chairs. Realizing something was wrong, we rushed out and around the deck. We had hardly got outside when two or three Negroes came rushing along the deck and knocked us down.

"We got up and went to a lower deck, and once more some other sailors ran into us and knocked us

Police 'Killer Squads' Scour Gang Hangouts

Wholesale Cleanup Started by Chicago Detective Chief in Hunt for Reporter's Slayer; Seven Arrested Aboard Train at Trenton, N. J.

Chicago, June 11 (A.P.).—A police board of strategy, flailed by press and city council, today began a war to the death with gangsters.

Six lieutenants with special squads picked for bravery under fire were armed with shotguns and tear bombs and dispatched with the order:

"Get your men. Don't wait for them to walk the streets. Go into their hangouts. Don't take any chances. Be ready for battle."

Detective Chief John Stege and his aids listed 100 hoodlums to be arrested and hoped from among them to glean some clew to the killer of "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, shot to death in a Michigan boulevard tunnel Monday.

Two men appeared voluntarily before the squads went out—Sam Hunt, whose photograph witnesses of the slaying picked out as resembling the assassin, and Ralph Pierce, gangster suspect. Each promised an alibi, but each was held.

Harry Ditchburne, assistant State's attorney, was closeted with Stege through the afternoon forming plans for examination of the incoming harvest of hoodlums—just such a harvest as has taken place three or four times in the last year. Thousands of vagrants and guntoters and habitues of brothels, gambling joints and saloons were gathered into the net early this year in a city-wide roundup, most of them going free, a few being booked and a handful fined or sentenced to jail.

But this time Stege has set his jaw and, facing hostile aldermen, promised his six picked squads would sweep up gangland in six hours.

"We'll show results," he said.

Front page editorials and public critics demanded that the police heads "deliver or quit."

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, said the police were "running around in circles."

"The inefficiency of the police," said Loesch, "is matched only by the efficiency of these gang killers. If Commissioner Russell and Deputy Commissioner Stege can not begin to handle the situation it is time that they go * * * Their inefficiency is due to the corrupt political control of the department by the city hall."

The Daily News editorially demanded that the "vicious administrative system" go, and asserted that Russell and Stege had failed despite their opportunity to break up "the criminal gangs that infest the city and make the streets hideous with bleeding corpses. Their methods no longer inspire public confidence."

Russell replied with a statement attributing the epidemic of killings to the ever-heightening strife for bootleg liquor profits, calling the prohibition law the source of troube and declaring the situation not local, but national. His own administration, he asserted, has cooperated with prohibition officers and harassed hoodlums more than his predecessors.

Police maintained strictest secrecy concerning the raids projected against gangster hangouts. The names of one

SENATORS WIL ASK HOOVER PACT REPLY

Resolution Stating Right to Secret Documents to Be Voted Today.

ACTION TO WAIT ANSWER

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Hoover will be called upon to reply to the resolution which the Senate foreign relations committee expects to adopt today asserting the committee's right to have the secret documents which Secretary Stimson has declined to furnish. The committee will take the position that further discussion of the London naval treaty must await the President's answer to the resolution.

If the President in his reply again sustains his Secretary of State and directs that the documents be withheld despite the resolution, the committee will consider suggestions by several of its members to defer further consideration of the pact until more complete information is forthcoming.

Pressure is being exerted on the White House by several senators friendly to the treaty with a view to persuading the President to reconsider his endorsement of the stand Secretary Stimson has taken.

Treaty proponents fear that much delay and serious complications will ensue unless the White House and the Senate foreign relations committee come to terms respecting the committee's right to peruse the secret documents. These supporters of the pact are convinced that debate in the Senate will be greatly prolonged if the secret documents issue remains unsettled and that the administration's position will be weakened in the battle over ratification.

It will cause no surprise, however,

REED BINDS HOOVER TO FATE OF TARIFF

Senator's Announcement of Stand on Bill Is Awaited as Mirroring Chief's.

EXPECTED TO FAVOR IT

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The frenzied tariff propaganda yesterday inadvertently tied the President up with the fate of the bill to be determined tomorrow.

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, whose role in the drama of the past two weeks has been to portroy a man seriously pondering whether he should vote for or against the bill to create the impression that it gives so much to agriculture and so little to Pennsylvania industry, went to see the President with his problem.

When he returned to the Capitol he would not give the result of his visit but the shadows about his forehead seemed to have cleared. He would not even tell what he had decided to do but he did permit the announcement that he was "veering toward a decision." The momentous decision is expected to be announced this afternoon in a speech on the Senate floor.

If he announces that he will vote for the bill after all, which no one doubts that he will do, the inescapable conclusion will be that the President wants the bill passed. Then in one crash will go all of those representations that the President would like nothing better than for the bill never to reach him, that the death of the measure in the Senate would take a great load from his mind.

It might very well not be a fair conclusion, because it may be that all Senator Reed said to the President

With the observation that "a policeman doesn't get much pay, and to fine him may cause his wife or child to suffer," the Police Trial Board established a new method of dealing with "hoodling" and other trivial offenses yesterday when three men found guilty of "hoodling" were sentenced each to 15 hours extra duty.

PINTHIS AND 19 MEN GO DOWN OFF SCITUATE

Liner Passengers Jump Into Fiery Ocean and Perish.

FLAMING OIL SCREEN ENVELOPES STEAMER

Sister Ship Gloucester Brings Survivors Into Boston.

SERVICE MEN SCALE MAST, FIX ANTENNA

Pathetic Scenes Are Enacted at Dock as Relatives Wait for News.

Boston, June 11 (A.P.).—Dull red flames on the Atlantic tonight burned a memorial across a murky sky to the tragedy of the steamers Fairfax and Pinthis which sent 45 men and women to death by fire and water a few minutes after the ships collided.

Last night in a heavy fog the Merchants & Miners liner Fairfax, bearing a holiday crowd of 71 to Norfolk and Baltimore, crashed without warning into the Fall River oil tanker Pinthis in Massachusetts Bay, off Scituate, Mass.

In a minute blazing oil erupted from the tanker and showered the Fairfax and sea around. The Pinthis, fatally stricken, sank to the bottom in 20 minutes, carrying with her all her crew of nineteen, leaving the Fairfax ablaze from stem to stern in a flaming sea.

Passengers Jump to Death.

The sea still blazed tonight when fourteen members of the Fairfax crew, mostly Negro stewards, and eleven men and women passengers had jumped panic stricken to death by fire because they feared that very fate aboard the liner.

A score of persons aboard the Fairfax were burned, one of them fatally and five others probably fatally, but the stricken vessel and the remainder of its 140 passengers and crew both were saved by quick thinking and heroism on the part of most, and in spite of the unreasoning fright of a few.

The Gloucester, another M. & M. liner, which took off the passengers early this morning, came into port a few hours before the Fairfax, like a wounded animal, crept slowly back with the sea licking the wound in her starboard bow and reaching for the marks of fire along her side.

Ambulances Transfer Injured.

They carried the burned men, women and children from the Gloucester to waiting ambulances and then the other passengers followed, bringing with them tales of the tragedy.

Panic threatened in the first moments, but officers and men set to work quieting the milling crowd on deck and fighting the fire. Some passengers, and especially several naval officers who happened to be aboard, aided in the work.

The fire shot into stateroom windows and along the upper decks, burning davits of the portside boats so that they could not be lowered and melting the wireless antenna so that no message could be sent for aid immediately.

Starboard Boat Useless.

A boat on the starboard side was lowered from the upper deck and held in readiness. It was impossible, however, to lower it in the flaming sea and attempt and rescue of those who had jumped. An examination of the water-tight compartments showed that the gaping hole torn in the liner's bow was not dangerous.

There was no time to scan the inferno in which the Pinthis disappeared as the women were gathered together out of the way of the fire, the hurt taken below and the fire was extinguished. There was a man however, probably a marine, who cast himself into the frightful sea in vain effort to save a woman who leaped over the rails.

Ralph Howes, of Belmont, saw him leap and thought he might have been pulled out afterward.

Two other Marines and John Popp, chief radio operator aboard the U. S. S. Childs, scaled the mast to repair the broken and burned antenna. Working in the black smoke and fog and lighted only by the red glare of burning oil, they made the delicate adjustments and repairs necessary.

Thus the outside world was enabled to learn the first meager details of the tragedy as the call for help to the Gloucester went out over the air.

Lieut. John C. Marsh, of Dorchester, on his way to a post at the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, paid tribute to Capt. Archibald Brooks, veteran skipper of the Fairfax, and his crew for their work in saving the Fairfax and most of those aboard her.

Captain Visits Injured.

Capt. Brooks, when the danger was past, went below and visited each of the injured, speaking quietly and reassuringly to each one and telling them that aid from the Gloucester was coming spon.

The older boat, which started from Boston three hours later, also for Norfolk, apeared out of the reddish fog before midnight. Strained white faces along the rails watched anxiously as the delicate process of maneuvering along side consumed an hour. Another hour was taken up in transferring all except a few of the passengers.

Then the Gloucester, which twice before in her 30-odd years, was involved in sea accidents and now was playing the part of saviour, nosed around and moved slowly back to Boston, followed later by the Fairfax and leaving behind a still fiery sea.

Anxiety at Boston Dock.

Back on the dock in Boston there was tense anxiety. Rarely had so little been known about a major sea disaster for so long. It was known that several had been burned aboard the Fairfax—ambulances had been ordered and doctors and nurses were in the crowd and it was known that a tanker had been sunk.

What happened to the tanker's crew, who they were and what the lost ship's name was remained hidden until later in the day, by that same fog which caused the crash. Only when the first survivors were landed in the semidarkness of early morning was there any idea of how many had died out there in the darkness.

The Pinthis was in flames before the wireless could chatter out her call signals and an S O S. The Shell Eastern Petroleum Products Co., which operates her, tried in vain to get in touch with her after the accident, and observers agreed it was she which sank.

Stewards Reported in Panic.

As the Fairfax passengers continued to tell their brief stories today there was one discordant note in the praise given the crew. Signalman George Farrell and Quartermaster Edward Cullen, of the United States Navy, said they saw a group of ten Negro stewards rush a boat in the first panic, pushing women and children aside. They did not launch the craft, however.

The number of fatalities was increased to 46 with the death in the Carney Hospital at South Boston, of Mrs. Ida Berkowitz, 22, of this city, and Robert, her 14-month-old son.

The mother carried the child almost unscathed through the flames, which claimed her own life.

CAPITAL TRIO AND LIFEBOAT IN SEA TRAGEDY

Flaming oil spurting in the crash of the steamers Fairfax and Pinthis in Massachusetts Bay created a raging inferno which blistered and crackled the port side and this lifeboat on the liner Fairfax, where three Washington passengers witnessed one of the worst marine disasters of recent years. They include (left to right) Miss Iona Browne, of 925 Ingraham street; Herbert S. Costain, of 1324 Eighteenth street northwest, and Miss Sarah H. Pynton, of 2722 Twelfth Street northeast.

down. We were thrown against some sort of a bulkhead and rolled over to the railing before some young man came along and got us to our feet.

Coast Guardsman Calm.

"The young man who picked us up put life preservers around us and placed us in a lifeboat, which was lowered almost to the water's edge. By this time the Fairfax was surrounded by a wall of flaming oil. No one seemed to know just what to do, and when it appeared as if our lifeboat, still hanging beside the ship, would become ignited, it was suddenly lifted to the deck of the Fairfax again.

"By this time the fire had either died away or been extinguished, and we were placed in staterooms to wait for the Gloucester. Never have we seen such a sight. There was general confusion and it semed as though no one knew what to do. The person who seemed to remain calm and collected throughout was a man in the uniform of a coast guardsman, who was a passenger.

"As we were lifted to our feet after being knocked down, we saw this young fellow pass, uttering as he went something like 'somebody better get organized and stop them from jumping overboard.' He was shouting 'Don't jump into the water; roll on the deck.' The next time we saw him he was hanging by his toes to the rail of the Fairfax, holding a woman by the hands and trying to get her aboard. That was the last we saw of him."

Capital Man Describes Scene.

Mr. Costain, a clerk in the classified advertising department of the Washington Times, substantiated the girls' statement that members of the crew had lost their heads, although others retained their presence of mind.

"Some of the crew of the Fairfax became panic stricken," he declared, "although others were cool. There were several marines on board who were cool. The stewards, stewardess and nurses were cool and heroic in face of the danger. There were several students from Massachusetts Institute of Technology on board, and they, too, worked to extinguish the flames."

The Brownes and the Poyntons would much have preferred to have met the girls at the train, but were afraid to leave for fear that en route to the station they might pass them daughters returning to their homes. Telling of the telephone call she received from her daughter yesterday morning, Mrs. Poynton said:

Mrs. Poynton's Statement.

"I guess we both were too excited to think of details. I know all that mattered to me at the moment was the wonderful sound of Sara's voice which dispelled all of my worries and assured me that she really was safe. But I do wish," she added wistfully, "that I had thought to ask what train they are coming on. I went down to the train to see them off, and I feel that I should be there to meet them on their return."

The mothers' uncertainty as to when they might hope to greet their daughters is heightened, Mrs. Poynton remarked, by the fact that when they began their trip last Friday the girls planned to stop over in Baltimore on their return to visit friends, and, having advised their parents of their safety, may now have decided to follow their original plans.

There will be no more long trips for Miss Browne without either her father or mother, the parents decreed yesterday afternoon as they paced the floor awaiting word from their daughter. It was the first time that they had ever permitted her to go away alone, despite her nineteen years, and they regretted their leniency as soon as she was out of sight.

Knows Perils of Seas.

"I know what that experience was for her," Sergt. Browne remarked grimacingly as he recalled his 30 years of service in the Marine Corps. "Its not for girls or women; its hard enough for a man to stand it."

Friends of Costain were rather excited and somewhat envious of his experience at the Toc H house. Eager for details, they commented: "Now, won't he strut when he gets back."

Costain, a clerk in the classified advertising department of The Times, accompanied Joseph Gordon, who also lived at 1824 Eighteenth street, to Boston on May 18 to see the latter married. They made the trip by motor. Gordon and his bride took the car on their honeymoon while Costain started home on the Fairfax.

The girls had left Washington last Friday night on a vacation trip to New England, sailing from Baltimore on the ill-fated Fairfax; they were returning on the same vessel when the crash occurred as the steamer collided with the oil tanker.

Line Lacks Date.

The first the Poynton and Browne families knew of the disaster was when they read the news in The Post yesterday morning. They immediately called the offices of the Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Co., which operates the Fairfax, but were unable to learn any further details. A short time later, however, they were advised of their daughters' safety by Washington representatives of news associations, and it was only a little after that that Miss Poynton called her mother and asked that Mrs. Browne also be notified that Iona, too, was safe.

Incomplete news dispatches yesterday contained the names of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Winter and Mrs. Anna Fisley as other Washingtonians among the injured passengers on the Fairfax, but no addresses were given, and a careful check among the Winter families in and near the District showed that none of them were on board the vessel; no one named Fisley could be located here, and the offices of the steamship company were unable to aid in identification of these three passengers.

SURVIVORS DESCRIBE SHIP CRASH HORRORS

Sailors and Marines Aboard Fairfax Say Victims Leaped to Sea.

NURSES' MERIT PRAISED

Boston, June 11 (A.P.).—Graphic accounts of events aboard the Fairfax were told by survivors aboard the Gloucester rescue ship.

Arthur P. Saulnier, a marine, of Brockton, Mass., said that passengers on the bow of the ship and in staterooms near the bow were badly burned by the burning oil hurled by the explosion. "They didn't have a chance," he said.

Saulnier was in th smoking rooms at the time of the collision, he said. Running out, a sheet of flame covered the front of the ship. "Men, women and children went wild," he declared.

The tanker was hit on the port side, he said. A large hole was also stove in the bow of the Fairfax.

Among the missing, he said, he believed there was a man by the name of Walker. He thought about ten were missing after the crash. A roll call was held on the Fairfax laetr, he said.

Other passengers told of seeing persons wrapped in flames leaping from the ship, only to land in burning oil on the surface of the water about the two ships.

Harry Jam, of uincy, Mass., a sailor, who was going to the U. S. S. Chaumont, at Norfolk, Va., said the whole top deck of the Fairfax, from bow to stern, was enveloped with flaming oil after the explosion.

Jam, who said he was in the smoking rooms with Saulnier and five other men at the crash, rushed with them to the deck. They took orders from officers and first lowered lifeboats.

With other men they smashed in doors and windows of staterooms to get out people who had been overcome by fumes from the burning oil, he said.

The radio antennae was burned away by the flames, Jam said. The chief radio man on the U. S. S. Charles aided the radio men on the fairfax in repairing apparatus to send out distress calls.

The nurses aboard the Fairfax were highly praised by Jam for their courage in aiding those burned and wounded. They continued their work aboard the Gloucester, he said.

Immediate construction of a Norwegian legation building was indicated by legal records yesterday showing transfer of the proposed site, vacant ground at Massachusetts avenue and Thirty-fourth street, opposite Observatory Circle, from Halvard H. The building will have an exterior of limestone with carved stone ornamentation and the roof will be of handmade tile. The style will be of English renaissance motif. northwest. Traffic was cleared from the special route arranged for Dr. Prestes' party over Pennsylvania avenue and Sixteenth street.

President-elect Prestes, who does not speak English, gave out no interviews but had distributed a statement in which he declared that the purpose of his visit was to repay the preinaugural journey made to Brazil by President Hoover.

"The development of our friendship widens continuously" the statement said, "not only as regards our economic intercourse, but also in the commerce of ideas and in the effort of our two countries in favor of pan-Americanism."

Dr. Prestes arrived in New York yesterday aboard the steamer Almiralte Jacequay, escorted by two United States and two Brazilian cruisers. A salute of 21 guns, tribute to a president, was given Dr. Prestes as he and his party came in from quarantine on the city tug Macom. Although it was past office hours in New York, enough workers remained to shower the procession with paper and confetti.

At City Hall, Mayor James J. Walker greeted the Brazilian official and laughingly bestowed upon him "the tardiness championship" which the mayor declared had long been indisputably his.

Dr. Prestes' son is a member of the party and several aids accompanied him from South America. Greeting the noted visitor in New York on behalf of the United States were George Akerson, secretary to President Hoover; Warren Robbins, representing the Secretary of State; Ambassador S Gurgel do Amaral of Brazil; Maj. Gen. H. D. Ely, representing the Secretary of War and Rear Admiral L. R. de Stigeur, representing the Secretary of the Navy.

To allay any fears the residents of Brazil might have had over the delay in Dr. Prestes' landing, Theodore A. Xanthaky, American vice consul at Rio de Janeiro, broadcast over the National Broadcasting Co.'s chain of stations, news of his safe arrival. Mr. Xanthaky spoke in Portuguese and his talk, picked up at Schenectady by the General Electric Station, was sent to Brazil on short wave lengths to be rebroadcast by local stations there.

In addition to the exchange of greetings with President Hoover, Dr. Prestes today will attend a luncheon in his honor given by the Brazilian Ambassador, go to Mount Vernon to place a wreath on Washington's Tomb; visit the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington, and attend a state banquet at the White House in the evening.

U.S. BOARD TAKES UP COWARDICE CHARGE

Capt. Brooks Said to Hold Danger Passed After First Half Hour.

WIDE S O S NOT NEEDED

Boston, June 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Whatever stories of the steamship tragedy which were available came from the semihysterical survivors and the cautiously worded account of D. R. McNeil, vice president of the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co., after the Gloucester, a smaller ship of the same line which left Boston a few hours after the Fairfax, returned with the survivors this morning.

The crew of the Fairfax, immediately after their steamer crawled to her berth in South Boston this morning, were at once herded together in the company offices for questioning by Federal steamboat inspectors and were allowed to communicate with no one. The investigation is being handled by Federal Inspectors O. G. Haine, Charles Lyons and John Stewart.

Passengers Charge Crew.

Their inquiry pointed particularly at charges of cowardice on the part of members of the crew of the Fairfax and at charges that no proper S O S was sent from the liner and word of the seriousness of the tragedy was withheld.

Passengers aboard the liner charge that members of the crew tore life belts off passengers and asserted that scenes of wildest confusion followed the crash.

A formal hearing particularly as it concerns alleged failure of the Fairfax to send an S O S will be held tomorrow morning in the appraiser's stores building.

When the Fairfax, burned and with a huge hole 10 feet by 10 feet torn in her starboard bow, returned to Boston at 10:05 today General Manager McNeil was the first man aboard the ship as it docked and was greeted by Capt. A. H. Brooks, commander of the vessel.

After talking with Capt. Brooks, McNeil answered questions from newspaper men for a few minutes before he was called into conference with the steamboat inspectors.

Small Boats Launched.

He declared Capt. Brooks told him that as soon as the fire on the Fairfax had been controlled and a message had been sent to the Gloucester asking her to stand by and take off the passengers, all danger had been passed after the first half hour and no general S O S was sent out, even though it took the Gloucester several hours to find her damaged sister ship in the murk.

In the interval between the time the fire had been put out and the arrival of the Gloucester, small boats were launched in a vain effort to find survivors of the tanker, heavy fog yielding but little to the powerful searchlight, hanging smoke-laden over the scene. No general search could be made.

Two Sailors Swim Through Fiery Oil

Tanker's Seamen Arrive at Offices After They Are Listed as Dead.

Boston, June 11 (A.P.).—Four minutes after their names had been added to the list of those who died in the collision, Josian Poko, of Fernandina, Fla., Negro, and J. V. Uback, of Lucretta, Va., staggered into the office of the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co. They were members of the crew of the Fairfax.

Both men were suffering from burns and exhaustion after hours spent swimming about and drifting helplessly in a lifeboat.

Poko and Uback said that when the crash came they jumped overboard. They swam through flaming oil until they reached clear water, and for two hours they kept themselves afloat until they found one of the tanker's lifeboats. It was afire. After putting out the blaze they rested in her. At noon the schooner Dacia sighted them and they were brought here.

MARINE SERGEANT DESCRIBES CRASH

Bravery of Women Lauded by Quincy Passenger Aboard Faiffax.

RESCUE EFFORTS CITED

Boston, June 11 (A.P.).—The women, "God bless 'em," acted like majors, A. S. Abbott, of Quincy, bronzed first sergeant of marines, said in describing a four-hour battle against fire and deadly smoke as flames blanketed the Fairfax almost instantly after the collision.

"With a terrible death staring them in the face," he said, "they assembled, gasping for breath, in the stern of the boat, while the apparently impossible task of saving the ship was undertaken by all aboard.

"Huddled in a group with unconscious forms all about them, they refused to become panic-stricken, and thus allowed all the men to work in putting out the fire."

Men Passengers Praised.

Sergt Abbott also praised the spirit of the men passengers. After the first shock of the blast, they set to work, manned hoses and made no effort to get to lifeboats until the Gloucester was ready to make the transfer, he said.

Taking no credit for himself, Sergt. Abbott told of the heroic efforts of four other marines and six Navy officers, who, he said, "really saved the ship. But for the efforts of these men the Fairfax would have been lost and all aboard her burned to death or drowned."

The battle against the flames, he said, lasted for four hours. The whole port side was enveloped in an instant. All the passengers on that side of the boat rushed to starboard to escape the fire and smoke. The service men segregated women and children and directed the work of fighting the fire."

Rescue Efforts Told.

The rescue efforts of the Gloucester crew, Sergt. Abbott said, were efficiently, promptly and thoroughly carried out. First thought was given to the burned and injured.

Stretchers were taken or passed to the Fairfax, and the more unfortunate of the passengers transferred to the Gloucester, where they were given emergency treatment.

After the Gloucester had arrived here and its weary cargo had gone to hotels, Sergt. Abbott went in search of his fellow marines to be sure they were made comfortable.

Pinthis Carried High-Test Gasoline

Cargo of 504,000 Gallons Made Blast Certain, Says Expert.

Boston, June 11 (A.P.).—The motorship Pinthis, sent to the bottom after its crash with the steamship Fairfax last night, was loaded with a full cargo of 504,000 gallons of high test gasoline. In making this known tonight, Capt. Fred M. Gower, superintendent of the marine division of the Lake Tankers Corporation, Fall River, owners of the vessel, said the type of gasoline made the explosion which split the craft the more certain after the collision.

In his opinion, sparks flying from sels ignited the gasoline released the iron and steel plates of both vessfrom the tanker by the impact.

Capt. A. V. Jones, skipper of the tanker, had sailed her without mishap for six years, officials stated. The Pinthis was built in 1919 at an approximate cost of $165,000. Her final cargo was valued at $101,000. She was bound for Portland, Me., to unload part of her cargo and then was scheduled to proceed to Chelsea to dispose of the remainder at the Shell Oil Co. plant, which chartered the vessel.

Spanish Nonstop Fliers Down.

Seville, Spani, June 11 (A.P.).—Bad weather forced Lieut. Carlos Haya and Capt. Cipriano Rodriguez to abandon tonight an attempt to break the world endurance flight record over a closed circuit. They had started the flight this morning.

Shroeder Not Fire Victim, New Belief

Analysis of Clothing on Man Buried in Car Shifts Search.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 11 (A.P.).—Search for Harold Herbert Schroeder, young Mobile, Ala., businessman, was intensified today when additional evidence was developed indicating that he was not the victim of a fire that destroyed his automobile near here on the morning of May 31.

An analysis of a bit of cloth found on a charred body taken from the ruins of Schroeder's car disclosed that it was of different material than a coat which was lying on the ground near the machine. The coat has been identified as belonging to Schroeder. Authorities declared the variation in the materials supported their theory that Schroeder was not the fire victim. It was unlikely, they contended, that he would be wearing unmatched coat and trousers.

Schroeder's attendance at the 500-mile automobile race here on Memorial Day has been established from several sources. It was several hours after the race that officers found the charred body in the blazing ruins of Schroeder's car.

COMMITTEE AGREES TO CANNON PROTEST

ruling was given to the committee's authority.

While the investigation was under way a woman who gave the name of Mrs. Royal Shelton Waldron, of Virginia, marched up the aisle to where Bishop Cannon sat and shouted at the committee, "This is a Romanist holdup of Protestant America and I protest."

She was quickly silenced by a Capitol policeman and returned to her seat as Chairman Caraway rapped for order.

Applause and hisses broke out when Bishop Cannon asserted at one part of his testimony that he had been active in attempting to prevent adoption of a wet plank in the 1928 political platforms.

Given Option of Answering.

Senator Walsh told Bishop Cannon only $17,000 of the $65,300 contributed by Mr. Jameson had been reported to Congress, and he asked the bishop if he cared to say anything about why the other $48,300 had not been reported.

"I am wondering just what that has to do with the lobbying investigation," said Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana.

Senator Walsh explained the bishop was given the "option" of answering, and Bishop Cannon asserted "It is an indirect manner of getting at a point to which I have objected." The subject was dropped.

Questions Slemp Contribution.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, asked how much money had been contributed by C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to President Coolidge, and now Republican national committeeman for Virginia. Bishop Cannon declined to answer.

Just before adjournment Senator Blaine asked the bishop if he had approached any members of Congress from Southern States into which copies of a prohibition speech he had delivered had been mailed. Senator Blaine did not ask for an immediate answer, but told the bishop to give his reply today.

Fairfax Called Modern Steamer

Disabled Vessel One of Five Sister Ships of Line.

Boston, June 11 (A.P.).—The steamship Fairfax, which rammed and sank the tanker Pinthis with large loss of life off the Scituate shore last night, is one of a fleet of five sister ships of the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co.

It was placed in service in September, 1926. It has a length over all of 368 feet, a beam of 52 feet and is of 5,600 gross tons.

Built especially for passenger service, but also carrying freight, the Fairfax is of the latest transatlantic type. During the winter season it sailed between Baltimore and Florida points, but was transferred recently to the Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia service.

The Fairfax is commanded by Capt. Archibald Brooks. It was making the first Southern trip of the season from Boston.

The four sister ships are the Dorchester, the Chatham, the Berkshire and the Alleghany. A few nights ago the Alleghany was reported in danger in an S O S call.

BROOKHART BLOCKS M'NIDER FOR ENVOY

Former Secretary "Personally Offensive," Senator Says to Committee.

STECK BACKS VETERAN

(Associated Press.)

Opposition which may prevent a vote being taken at this session upon the nomination of Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, as Minister to Canada was announced yesterday by Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa.

Brookhart wrote to the Senate foreign relations committee that the Iowa Republican leader was "personally offensive" to him. The committee put the nomination before the Senate today "without recommendation."

Senator Steck (Democrat), Iowa, immediately gave notice he would support MacNider, who was a former Assistant Secretary of War in the Coolidge administration.

With Congressional leaders planning an adjournment by the end of next week, little hope was held out last night that a vote could be taken on MacNider before then. All nominations die with adjournment, but President Hoover could make a recess appointment.

Such a pronouncement from a senator from the State of a nominee usually receives considerable attention in the Senate. How far Senator Brookhart can go in his fight against MacNider was uncertain, however, in view of Senator Steck's support. Beyond stating that MacNider was "personally offensive," Senator Brookhart made no amplication of his protest. He said he expected "other objections" to be heard against his Iowa political foe.

While both are Republicans, MacNider and Brookhart have long been political enemies. Senator Brookhart accused MacNider of leading the fight against him when Steck and Brookhart were in a contest in 1924. Steck contested Brookhart's election in 1924 and was seated by the Senate. Brookhart was elected two years later.

Both MacNider and Brookhart supported Herbert Hoover in the 1928 presidential campaign. MacNider has recently been a guest here of the President. He was nominated several weeks ago for the Canadian post, but the foreign relations committee withheld action on his nomination pending the return to the city of Brookhart.

Wisconsin Faction Asks Referendum

G.O.P. Conservatives Urge Dry Ballot; Platform Ignores Hoover.

Oshkosh, Wis., June 11 (A.P.).—A platform which ignored the customary plank indorsing both the national Republican administration and the President, and proposed that Congress authorize a national advisory prohibition referendum was adopted unanimous today by the conservative Republican group in Wisconsin.

The convention of the so-called administration group also unanimously indorsed Gov. Walter J. Kohler as candidate for reelection.

The platform, besides asking for a national wet and dry poll, contained a demand for legislation to curtail and regulate the activities of chain store organizations. The rival La Follette progressive Republican group has put forth the chain store question as a chief issue. Wisconsin last year voted the repeal of its State enforcement act.

SENATORS TO CALL ON HOOVER FOR PACT RESOLUTION REPLY

if Mr. Hoover sends a reply to the committe within an hour or so after receiving the resolution. It is further anticipated that this reply will be a refusal to yield and a renewed endorsement of Mr. Stimson's contention that the Senate has no right to the documents.

The subcommittee, composed of Senators Borah, Moses and Black, drew up resolutions yesterday and one of these will be adopted today if the committee's program proceds according to schedule. Senator Reed remains the only member of the committee who supports the contention of Secretary Stimson relative to the State Department's right to withhold information from the foreign relations committee. Senator Reed was a member of the American delegation to the London conference, as was Senator Robinson, of Arkansas. The latter did not attend the last session of the committee and has been less active recently in supporting the pact.

Shipstead Active in Fight.

Senator Shipstead is actively fighting for the committee's right to the secret documents. Mr. Shipstead contends that the committee will be faithless to its trust if it acts on the treaty without knowing what the pact means.

"Imagine the position the Senate will be in," the senator said yesterday, "if a dispute arises in the future over the meaning of the treaty and the matter is submitted to an arbitral body. That body would of course call for all data connected with the history of the negotiations and would judge accordingly. If we did not supply the secret data the other interested power would do so. The Senate would then be in the position of learning for the first time what the meaning was of the treaty which it ratified."

Senator Shipstead cited the North Atlantic Fisheries Treaty with Great Britain negotiated in 1818. The meaning of that treaty was not decided until 1910, he said, and the decision turned on correspondence between John Quincy Adams, American Minister to Great Britain, and Lord Bathurst, which dated back to 1815. Secret correspondence in that case was decisive in determining what the treaty meant.

Other Instances Cited.

Other similar instances, including the Alaska boundary dispute and controversy between the United States and Switzerland over the commercial treaty of 1850, were cited by Mr. Shipstead. In the dispute with Switzerlnad, decided in 1898, the issue revolved about a reciprocity treaty which America had made with France and which Switzerland claimed was in violation of the 1850 pact. As American Secretary of State, Day stood squarely on the text of the treaty but Switzerland claimed that the meaning of the treaty must be gathered from the text and all extraneous matter pertaining thereto. John Hay, as Secretary of State, later decided that the position in this regard of Switzerland was unchallengable.

"A sense of honor and justice demands that we yield," he informed the Swiss government. The secret correspondence in this case, according to Senator Shipstead, brought about the denunciation of the pact and the negotiation of a new treaty.

Quoting Wigmore as authority, Mr. Shipstead insists that the text of a treaty is only an index of the extraneous matter leading up to it.

"If the secret document in the present case are so important that the Senate foreign relations committee must be denied information as to what the documents contain, they must be very important indeed," the senator said yesterday.

He is confident that President Hoover will reconsider his position in support of a policy to withhold the documents.

HUSTON STATEMENT DENIES HE LOBBIED

G. O. P. National Chairman Lays Charge to Partisan Antagonism.

POWER DEALS EXPLAINED

(Associated Press.)

Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, made public a letter yesterday in which he termed charges false that he had lobbied and that he had used funds of the Tennessee River Improvement Association to cover a shortage in his brokerage account.

The letter, which he had written on May 29 as a confidential communication to members of the national committee, was given out after a copy of it had been obtained by a Washington newspaper. It was the first time Mr. Huston had publicly broken the silence he has maintained regarding the charges since his appearance before the Senate lobby committee.

In it the committee chairman said that shortly after his selection as head of the national organization he had been informed that "a campaign would be set in motion by partisan opponents in the hope of injuring the Republican national organization, the national administration and myself."

"Since then," he continued, "every conceivable means has been employed to strike at me—both personally and politically. Realizing the motive of these attacks, which, if successful, would lead to their repetition against any one who might stand in my place, I have refused to be stampeded."

He enumerated the two "chief charges" and characterized them as "absolutely false."

Then, in more detail, he said that as president of the Tennessee River Improvement Association he had aided in interesting Henry Ford, and later the American Cyanamid Co., in bidding for the Muscle Shoals project.

Thus, he said, the interests of the Tennessee River Improvement Association and the American Cyanamid Co. became mutual.

"I spent months of my time and thousands of dollars of my own money in trying to promote the industrial welfare of my section," he added.

He explained that the Union Carbide Co. had a minor interest in the Muscle Shoals project and a direct interest in power development along the upper Tennessee River and for this reason it was thought proper that the Carbide Co. reimburse the Improvement Association for funds it had spent in preparing maps and data.

"So far, then, as the first charge is concerned," he interpolated, "this is the extent of my lobbying."

Continuing, he explained that the two payments of $22,000 and $14,100 were handled partially "as any of my other business transactions were and are, through my securities account with Messrs. Blyth and Bonner, of New York."

He quoted a letter from the brokerage house saying that the $22,000 had not been deposited in the account in response to a request for margin or additional funds.

"The entire $36,100 paid by the Union Carbide Co. was properly disbursed and accounted for," he added, explaining the last check was turned over to the Improvement Association "one month and a day before I became chairman of the Republican national committee.

"Concerning every other charge made against me, some made publicly and others in a whispering campaign, I wash to say that they either were all made out of whole cloth or were distortions of the real facts," he said.

"They were inspired by partisan or factional motives, and by persons who hoped to profit by an attack upon me."

There have been persistent rumors during the last several days that an early change in the chairmanship is in prospect.

Friends of President Hoover have intimated they felt Mr. Huston's relation with the fight for a private lease of Muscle Shoals might embarras the President in his decision on the Muscle Shoals legislation now before Congress.

Bank $308,000 Short; Teller Ends Own Life

Cheboygan, Mich., June 11 (A.P.).—A shortage of $308,000 has been discovered in the First National Bank whose savings teller, Clyde Milliken, committed suicide Monday night. The bank has been closed by order of the board of directors and has been placed in charge of Henry F. Quinn, examiner.

A statement issued by officials of the bank today after the closing declared that depositors will be paid in full. Mr. Quinn began an examination of the bank Monday morning and that afternoon Milliken, who in addition to his bank connections was engaged in several other business enterprises, left. He drove to his summer home at Burt Lodge, where his body was found in a garage yesterday. He had been shot and a revolver lay beside him. Coroner W. F. Reed returned a verdict of suicide without an inquest.

New York U. Gives Adams Law Degree

Ruth Pratt Made Master of Letters; Merriam Delivers Address.

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, received the honorary degree of doctor of laws and Representative Ruth Pratt the degree of master of humane letters during the ninety-eighth annual commencement exercises today at New York University.

Dr. John Campbell Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution at Washington, who delivered the commencement address, advised members of the graduating class to look forward to the time they will be 40, when, he said, they will begin their period of "greatest activity and success." Men once were considered old and at the end of living at that age, he said.

"At a time when the basic physical pleasures may have become relatively unimportant," he continued, "in their place come the greater things of the intellect and spirit, and with these also develops often an intensifying and appreciation of the most complicated and enthralling of all higher arts."

handle all motions in equity, law and criminal cases.

The Chief Justice also is understood to be in favor of other reforms which, it is expected, will bring considerable relief from congestion in the three branches of the court.

With the nine justices—even considering that Justice Stafford does not return to the bench before he is eligible for retirement—it will be possible to have a motions judge, three criminal judges, two law judges and two equity judges. If Justice Stafford returns before his retirement period is reached, it is expected that an additional law court will be established, since this docket is most congested and since a motions judge would take care of most of the extraneous equity matters.

$500,000 OIL PLANT FIRE BURNS 12 MEN

Flames Leap 250 Feet as Blasts Rock Houses Near Port Arthur.

SEVERAL THOUGHT DEAD

Port Arthur, Tex., June 11 (A.P.).—Fire believed to have originated in an agitator caused damage estimated at least $500,000 to the Texas Co. refining plant here this afternoon and burned twelve men, several perhaps fatally.

The fire started about 4:30 p. m. following an explosion which shook houses within a radius of a mile from the plant.

Several minor explosions followed the major one at 30 to 40 minute intervals. The flames rose to a height of 250 feet and with the huge clouds of black smoke which boiled from the fire could be seen for miles.

While the fire was believed under control early tonight sporadic sheets of flame still could be seen leaping high into the air.

The twelve injured men, all employes of the huge oil refinery, were brought here, one of them Leonard Hatch, was in a critical condition and an unconfirmed report said 35 had been burned, several perhaps fatally.

According to employes coming from the plant, several men were at work in the agitators when the explosion occurred. One man, who said he worked in the agitator, said he stepped from the plant to get a drink of water and was knocked unconscious by the explosion. He said at least three of his fellow workers were at work in the agitator and he held little hope for their escape.

The central fire station sent its entire equipment to aid the oil company when its fire-fighting system failed to check the flames.

BILL AUTHORIZES SIX U. S. BUILDINGS HERE

The bill also authorizes $3,000,000 for remodeling the State, War and Navy Building so as to make it conform to the architecture of the Treasury Building; authorizes $50,000 for landscaping the block bounded by Fourteenth, Fifteenth and E and Pennsylvania avenue, and authorizes the construction of the proposed Archives Building on the site now occupied by Center Market, a site at first selected for the Justice Building.

The bill carries an appropriation of $2,000,000 for the purchase of additional land in the Pennsylvania avenue Mall triangle, within which most of the new Federal buildings will be erected.

The second deficiency bill, designed to provide money for emergency projects, carries a grand total for the country of $66,211,844. Included are appropriations for the maintenance of the Arlington Memorial Bridge and the new Commerce Department Building; for the expenses of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission and for the government of the District of Columbia.

Included in the appropriations for the District is one to continue the operation of the Center Market and another to provide for a radio station for the local police department.

Autopsy Ordered On Convict's Body

Rumor of Mistreatment of Alabaman Causes an Investigation.

Birmingham, Ala., June 11 (A.P.). Coroner J. D. Russum has ordered Jefferson County autnorities to open a grave today and permit an autopsy on the body of John A. Marshall, a convict who died after three hours solitary confinement in a small cell known as the "dog house."

Prison physicians ascribed marshall's death several days ago to heart trouble. Since then, however, reports have persisted that he was struck on the head with a hammer a short while before he died.

The "doghouse," ordered abolished by the Jefferson County Board of Revenue soon after Marshall's death, was a small boxlike cell which permitted a prisoner to stand erect but was so small that he could not sit down, stoop nor even turn around. Two small auger holes were the only avenues for fresh air. Marshall was serving an eighteen months sentence for larceny. He was confined to the "doghouse" for three hours as punishment for his refusal to work.

CHAMBER MANAGER TALKS TO MEMBERS

Dan S. Hollenga Presented to Organization Upon His Arrival in City.

KIWANIS LUNCHEON HOST

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Dan S. Hollenga, newly elected business manager of the chamber of commerce, who will assume his duties July 1, addressed members of the trade body Tuesday night in the George Mason Hotel, this being his first appearance in Alexandria.

The meeting, which was presided over by John Barton Phillips, president of the commercec hamber, was attended by approximately 125 members.

Mr. Hollenga spoke of the necessity of cooperation among members of the chamber and all the citizens of the town. A chamber of commerce, he said, among other things, fills in the gaps that a city can not engage in, and can do almost anything that is honorable. Its accomplishments, he said, do not hinge on any one objective. He deplored the tendency of many persons to offer resolutions instead of doing actual work for the city, and stated that any person who places obstacles in the way of progress by improper criticism is not a good citizen. The good will of fellow citizens, the said, is worth more than all the billions the allies owe us.

Mr. Hollenge was introduced by Frank W. Noxon, chairman of the industrial and trade relations committee, who told of how Mr. Hollenga was chosen to manage the affairs of the chamber of commerce.

W. R. Beattie, of the United States Department of Agriculture, delivered an address, and after his talk exhibited lantern slides showing various bugs and insects that destroy vegetables and fruit in Virginia, and also other slides showing growing plants and fruits. He also mentioned the vegetables best suited to this section and the necessity for obtaining a home market.

A number of committee reports were made, among them being finance, public relations, transportation and communication, industrial and trade relations and civic development.

Graduates of the Alexandria and George Mason High Schools will be the guests of the Kiwanis Club at luncheon today, at 12:30 o'clock, at the George Mason Hotel, with W Selden Washington in charge of the program. This also is the day the club celebrates Flag Day, and the program will have double significance. Robert G. Carter, president of the club, will preside.

At the annual commencement exercises of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., held on Tuesday, Robert South Barrett, of this city, sociologist and philanthropist; and Frank L. Polk, of New York, Secretary of State under President Woodrow Wilson, were awarded honorary degrees of doctor of civil laws. Eighty diplomas were granted to the largest graduating class in the history of the university, and the baccalaureate address was delivered by Dr. Barrett. This is the second honor that has come to this distinguished Alexandrian, as he was recently elected Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London, England.

Sergt. R. H. Cox stated yesterday that the overcrowded condition at the city jail has been somewhat relieved for the present by removal of 8 prisoners to serve on the State convict road force. A few days ago the jail contained 89 prisoners, but with the ones sent to the road force and others paying fines, the number has been reduced to 72. The majority are city prisoners that can not be sent to the road force.

James Talbot, supervisor of a gang of street workers, reported that three men escaped from the chain gang on Tuesday, as they are not chained while at work on the streets, and escape is comparatively easy.

The class night exercises for the graduates of the Alexandria High School will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium, with the following program: song, senior class; address by Charles Nicholson, jr., class president; class history, Dorothy M. Smith; class poem, Dorothy Bowman; address, Henry T. Moncure, principal of the school; class prophecy, Audrey Lee; last will and testament, Mary Hayes; finale, song by graduates, "Farewell to Thee."

George Hensley, aged 54 years, who was stricken with paralysis Tuesday while working on the roof of 1312 King street, helping in dismantling the old house, died that night in the Alexandria Hospital, where he was taken after being taken from the roof by members of Motor Truck Company No. 1.

The body was taken to the Cunningham funeral home, and the funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from Buckhall Church Prince William County, Va. The deceased, who lived at 208 South Payne street, is survived by a wife and several children.

The monthly report of City Health Officer Dr. W. Lewis Schafer gives 53 cases of chicken pox in the city the past month. Other important diseases reported in the month are: Measles, 16; mumps, 10; tuberculosis, 5; whooping cough, 3; scarlet fever, 2; pneumonia and typhus fever, 1 each.

Sarepta Lodge, No. 46, I. O. O. F. has elected the following officers: N F. Pearson, noble grand; Morris Rosenburg, vice grand; W. N. Brissey, treasurer. The installation of these officers will be on July 1, with C. E. Butler, district deputy grand master, in charge.

The case of Clay T. Brittle, former cashier of the Bank of Del Ray, which closed doors on January 21 last, will be presented to a special grand jury which will meet in Corporation Court on June 19. Judge Frederick W. Coleman, of Fredericksburg, has been designated to preside in place of Judge William P. Woolls, who was a member of the board of directors of the bank.

A meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in Gadsby's Tavern.

LACK OF HALF GILL GIVES MAN LIBERTY

Hyattsville Court Decides Prisoner Did Not Possess 12 Pints of Brew.

HEALTH OFFICER QUITS

A wee one-eighth of a pint was all that stood between James Weldon, colored, and jail or fine yesterday in Hyattsville Branch of Prince Georges County Police Court. The eighth was missing, however, and Weldon went forth free.

The colored man had been arrested on charges of possession of more than 12 pints of home brew by County Policeman Claude Reese and Deputy Sheriff Ralph Brown. Two pints were found in his store and six alleged quarts were found in the yard, the policemen alleged. An analysis of the two pints was presented in evidence and the case appeared cut and dried until Clarence Roberts, attorney for the defense, rose to his feet and asked if the policemen could swear that there were 14 pints of home brew in the bottles. As they had not opened the remainder of the evidence, the two policemen were stumped. Neither wished to swear to something he wasn't absolutely sure of.

Attorney Roberts also attacked the failure to have the six quarts examined, claiming that no evidence had been presented to show that they belonged to the same batch as the two pints.

The verbal war waged back and forth for more than an hour when Judge J. Chew Sheriff, with the mien of a Solomon, decided that the proper move was to measure the liquid.

The filled bottles first were weighed and then the contents emptied into a container. As the golden fluid poured in a foamy mass into the jar, the parched throats of the 75 spectators visibly contracted and more than one pair of lips became more dry. The empty bottles then were weighed and the difference lacked one-eighth of a pint of 12 pints.

In dismissing the case, Judge Sheriff made it plain that he was dismissing it only because of the fact that there was not enough home brew to convict and not because all of the bottles had not been tested.

Mrs. Edna Brown, of West Hyattsville, was fined $50 and costs for possession of home brew. She told the court that she had prepared the brew for a birthday party which was to have been held yesterday. Albert Anderson, Hyattsville chief of police, led the raid on the Brown residence and found 15 gallons of brew ready for bottling, he told the court.

Carlton Smith, colored, North Brentwood, Md., drew a laugh when he told the court that 14 half-gallons of alleged liquor seized in a raid on his home had been in his possession since before the county went dry. He was fined $50 on charges of possession of intoxicants.

Dr. William S. Keister, county health officer, has tendered his resignation to the board of county commissioners, it was announced yesterday by Brice Bowie, clerk of the county commissioners. Dr. Keister has accepted a position with the Baltimore County Health Department, where he will conduct health work in the schools. The resignation will take effect July 1, according to tentative plans.

Dr. R. H. Riley, chief of the Maryland State department of health, has informed the county commissioners that the only person who has qualified for the post to succeed Dr. Keister, is Dr. A. B. Hooten, at present public health officer in Darlington County, S. C.

Civil service examinations will be held, however, so that any county physician who wishes to try for the position, which requires special training and qualifications, can file his application with the State employment bureau.

In announcing the resignation of Dr. Keister, Mr. Bowie also announced that the county commissioners have adopted a resolution declaring that the board is opposed to the appointment of additional county policemen because of lack of funds. Additions to the force have been recommended by the last several grand juries and by a number of civic and business groups.

After an all night vigil, county police trailed a wagon driven by an old colored man to a hidden still in the woods near Red's Corner, Mellwood district, early yesterday morning. They captured the horse and wagon and a 500-gallon still, but couldn't catch the driver.

The driver attempted to dismantle the still before the police, who were on foot, arrived, but was unsuccessful. Twelve 500-gallon boxes of mash, four half-gallon jars of alleged liquor and a wash tub full of alleged liquor were captured. County Policeman V. M. Nichols and Deputy Sheriffs Harry Robinson and L. E. Dutrow were in the raiding party.

OVER THE GREAT LAKES TO MAGIC YELLOWSTONE

A restful cruise on Lakes Erie, Huron and Superior—then the American Northwest, the Rockies and Yellowstone National Park!

What a delightful vacation this would be for you! It can be made quickly—or leisurely. Only 14 days from New York to Yellowstone Park and return, including the complete sight-seeing tour of the park, if you go there and back directly; but of course your excursion ticket is good for return until October 31, if you care to stay longer in the West.

To the head of the lakes, Duluth, Minn., you go on a modern lake steamer. Then from Duluth the Northern Pacific Railway takes you to any of the principal gateways of Yellowstone Park. Enroute you cross Minnesota 10,000 lakes region; the Bad Lands of North Dakota and the old Indian and ranching country of eastern Montana. For miles along the picturesque Yellowstone River, your Northern Pacific train follows the historic trail of Lewis and Clark.

The Yellowstone tour—the preeminent sight-seeing trip of the world is made in four and one-half days at a total cost of only $45 if you stop at the lodges, or $54 at the hotels. This sum also covers automobile transportation for 250 miles through the park, a vacation bargain unequaled.

Yellowstone is so wonderful and so friendly! The fantastic geysers, jewel-colored hot springs and great yellow Grand Canyon reveal, as nothing else can, how marvelous is the world. Mile after mile the park coaches carry you through great fragrant pine forests up mountain slopes and past clear, shimmering waters. Around every turn new and beautiful scenes appear, and you never know where Mother Nature is going to spring her next surprise. Hotels and lodges are noted for their hospitality; dancing and entertainment make the evenings enjoyable.

The round trip fare for the entire rail and water trip is as low as $138.92 via Buffalo, which includes a one way trip by steamer and meals and berth on steamer.

Enjoy the delights of a real voyage on the cool lakes and then the marvelous Yellowstone trip via the Northern Pacific Railway this summer.

Let us tell you all about it.

13-Year-Old Captures Muskallonge Record

Special to The Washington Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., June 11.—The muskallonge championship of this region, held since August 23, 1928, by R. M. Davis, local coal operator, has passed to Fred Louchs, 13, son of George Louchs, of Point Marion, Pa., who has broken all local records by landing a muskallonge from the Cheat River waters of Lake Lynn measuring 39 inches and weighing 16½ pounds. Davis' record catch measured the same length, but weighed only 14¾ pounds.

Last week, Dr. C. F. Hunker, Point Marion druggist, took second honors from Judge Charles G. Baker, of circuit court here, by hooking a muskallonge 37 inches long and weighing 13¼ pounds.

NAVAL TREATY PAPERS.

Some members of the Senate committee on foreign relations seem to regard President Hoover's refusal to transmit papers relating to the London naval treaty as proof that he wishes to take advantage of the coordinate branch of the treaty-making power by denying information to which it is entitled.

Mr. Hoover's decision, as explained by Secretary Stimson, does not indicate that he challenges the Senate's right to have full information concerning the treaty. The reason for withholding the papers is said to be based upon the necessity of keeping faith with foreign governments, whose communications were made in confidence, in accordance with the established rule that such communications shall not be published.

It does not appear that the Senate committee assured the President that the papers would be withheld from publication and that their contents would not be discussed on the floor of the Senate. Unless he could be sure that all senators would keep the information inviolate he certainly would be warranted in withholding the papers.

The controversy that is threatened really revolves about the question of publicity. The Senate has made the mistake of holding open sessions for the discussion of matters that should be discussed behind closed doors. Treaties and nominations to office should not be debated in public. Friendly relations with other governments and the reputations of decent citizens are jeopardized by the new rule.

The Senate adopted the new rule after the disclosure of debates and votes in executive session. These disclosures demonstrated that some senators had entirely lost their sense of responsibility and were willing to do injustice to foreign nations and to private citizens whenever they could gain political advantage by violating the obligation of secrecy. The inability of the Senate to cooperate in confidence with the President, even behind closed doors, was so evident that the Senate itself abolished the rule of secrecy. It is not surprising, therefore, that the President deems it incompatible with the public interest to transmit papers containing confidential communications from foreign governments.

No one doubts that President Hoover is anxious to obtain the Senate's approval of the naval treaty. It can not be doubted that he is reluctant to adopt any course that would delay or defeat the treaty in the Senate. Nevertheless, he is responsible for the conduct of the Government's foreign relations. "Observe good faith with all nations" was George Washington's parting admonition. Much as Mr. Hoover desires the ratification of the naval treaty, the good name of the United States is still more important to him, judging by the decision he has made. He will not subject the United States to the charge of bad faith by revealing their confidential communications.

It is difficult to answer the argument that the Senate is entitled to all information in the possession of the executive department, in order that it may act intelligently in dealing with a treaty. On this bare proposition the Senate committee is right; but unless the committee or the Senate can satisfy the President that the information will be kept strictly confidential, he is warranted in refusing to furnish papers which in his judgment can not be made public without damage to the public interest. His action may cause the treaty to fail, but it will preserve the rule of good faith in international dealings.

CHICAGO FINALLY AROUSED.

The murder of Alfred J. Lingle, veteran Chicago newspaperman, may have marked the inception of a movement that will end in the virtual exile of Chicago's criminal elements. Lingle was a police reporter. There seems to be no doubt that he was murdered because he knew too much regarding certain underworld characters. The killing is represented as gangdom's attempt to muzzle the press.

Chicago newspapers speak as one to demand vengeance. The time has come, they say, when crime must be driven from the city. So long as racketeers were "bumping" one another off, Chicago was inclined to sit complacently by. But now that a law-abiding citizen has been killed in cold blood, the cry is for an avenger. A new spirit is abroad; for the first time Chicago seems to recognize the menace within its doors.

Chicago gangdom has gone one step too far. It is backed against the wall, face to face with citizens who will be spurred on by an outraged press. It is quite possible that the murder of Lingle marks the end of Chicago's shameful submission to an organized murder system.

GEMS OF ARCHITECTURE.

On Tuesday the House passed a bill to authorize an appropriation of $4,000,000 for the construction of an addition to the City Postoffice, adjoining Union Station. The Government already owns the ground upon which the extension will be erected, so that the sum authorized probably will be used solely in construction work. During the discussion which preceded the passage of the bill Mr. Cramton, of Michigan, who had charge of the measure, read into the record a statement from the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, in which that official said: "The building is in a terrible condition. On account of the lack of sufficient space in which to function, the mail is not being handled anything like as promptly in the City of Washington as it could be handled if we had the space." That statement throws some light on a question which has bothered many residents of the city who have complained because of delay in the mails.

Mr. Elliott, of Indiana, chairman of the committee on public buildings, called the attention of the House to the fact that when the building, which is architecturally one of the finest in the country, was first erected, the number of employes was about 1,000. Today there are nearly 1,800 working in the same quarters.

There was no objection to the passage of the bill when these facts were presented, and as the Senate is almost certain to indorse the action of the House before the close of the session there is every prospect that the necessary facilities for the force in the Washington Postoffice will be provided within the next two or three years.

The consideration of this postoffice extension bill gave Representative McClintic an opportunity to point out to the people of Washington that they have had an architectural gem within the confines of the city without knowing of their blessing. Mr. McClintic told the House that he had heard that it is the purpose of the public building commission to "tear down the splendid stone Postoffice Building on Pennsylvania avenue, which, according to my viewpoint, is one of the best constructed buildings in the entire country. It is a crime to destroy such a splendid building."

The gentleman from—ahem!—from Oklahoma throws a new light on the Postoffice Department Building—a light that illumines the subject like the glare of a gusher on fire. Besotted "experts" who have condemned this medieval fortress as a "monstrosity" are now very properly placed in the crime category, along with the vandals who have destroyed so many priceless examples of early American penitentiary architecture.

A CORN HARVESTER.

The development of a mechanical corn cutter that also shells the grain from the cob, cleans it and shreds the stalk, all in one operation, may prove a mixed blessing. The corn "combine" is essentially the wheat "combine," with the substitution of small circular saws for the sickle. The saws cut the stalk which, from the "saw bar," are thrown in reach of the spiral which conveys them to the threshing unit. In tests the machine is said to have functioned satisfactorily.

The result of mechanically harvesting corn will be lowered production costs for that staple. Lowered production costs, however, almost inevitably lead to increased production. One of the explanations of the so-called wheat problem lies in the development of the mechanical reaper, which enabled farmers to increase their acreage without adding to the hired help. A corn combine may lead to increased corn surpluses.

If the farmers are wise they will adopt the corn combine, not as an instrument to enable them to expand their corn acreage without increasing materially their overhead, but as a machine that will enable them to harvest their present corn crop at less cost. The corn combine will release labor as did the wheat combine, but it will be to agriculture's advantage if the labor released enters other fields of activity.

A SERMON IN RUBBER.

The rubber trade, says the Department of Commerce, is waiting anxiously to appraise the effect of the "tapping holiday" which the large plantation owners declared in May. Recently crude rubber prices have been severely depressed as a result of overproduction and large carryovers. On May 29 the price of ribbed smoked sheets declined in New York to below 13.8 cents a pound, whereas before the development of plantation production, in 1909, the price of crude rubber was as much as $3 a pound. The rubber industry is in a bad way.

The troubles of the large plantation owners in trying to accommodate production to demand should interest the United States for the light they may throw on the problem of accommodating agricultural production to demand. Rubber today comes from two sources; namely, the large planter and the small, independent native planter whose holdings generally average less than 10 acres each, but who produces approximately half the world's rubber output. The wants of the latter are few. He lives in thatched huts and subsists on simple food, and every effort to obtain his cooperation in tapping holidays has failed of result. When the price of rubber declines the native planter simply gathers more rubber to make up the price differential. As a result stocks are higher now than ever, and are still piling up while world demand for rubber has fallen off.

Restriction of production can not be effective unless every element cooperates fully. There is always the small operator who sees in the increased price brought about by limited production an opportunity to cash in to his own advantage, and there is always the operator with small capital who in desperation is forced to increase his output during price depressions in order to make up the price differential. While the American farmer is adjusting his output to demand, he will have to be on guard against those who wittingly or unwittingly would defeat the purposes of restriction.

CAPITAL SHIPS

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

At the Washington conference battleships and battle cruisers were grouped together under the category of capital ships. Under that treaty the British were given a temporary advantage of about 6 to 5 over us. By about 1935 this would have been reduced to substantial parity by the building of new ships and the scrapping of old ones. At the Geneva conference the British made a proposal which would have still further delayed our attainment of parity in this most important type.

The provisions of the London treaty, in addition to effecting a great financial saving, advance the date of reaching substantial parity to 1932. In that year the tonnage totals will be as follows:

Great Britain: 474,750, including the modernization of all the Barham class.

United States: 462,500, including the modernization of all the Idaho class.

Japan: 272,330, including the modernization of all the Kongo class.

In the period from 1932 to 1936 we can modernize the five vessels of the Tennessee and Maryland classes—thus adding 15,000 tons. Japan can modernize her six battleships—thus adding 18,000 tons. At the completion of this modernization the ratios of capital ships will be: Great Britain 10.00; United States 10.06; Japan 5.92. That comes about as closely to the 10-10-6 ratio as is humanly possible.

Total tonnage is an absolutely fair basis of comparison, provided the average age and size of the ships of each navy are about the same.

Much has been made of the point that in the Rodney and Nelson the British have two ships which are newer than any of ours. They could counter this by showing that if only ships completed in 1920 or later were counted we would have five to their three. But both these arguments state only part of the case. The vital point is: What is the average age of all our ships and how does it compare with the average age of the British and Japanese ships? To determine this is merely a matter of arithmetic. Actually our capital ships average one month and a half newer than the British ships and nearly one year newer than the Japanese ships.

As regards the average size of the capital ships, this is practically identical for the three navies. In 1932 our ships will average slightly smaller than the British ships and slightly larger than the Japanese ships. If both the United States and Japan modernize all their capital ships, ours will average slightly larger than both British and Japanese vessels. Incidentally, when the Idaho is modernized it will be as large as the Rodney and Nelson. If we modernize the Tennessee and Maryland classes all five of these vessels will be larger than the Rodney and Nelson. The British have the Hood, an immense battle cruiser of 42,100 tons. She is 8,000 tons larger than any other naval vessel afloat. This may give them a slight advantage.

If we were to venture into a further analysis of guns, speed, armor, underwater protection and steaming radius, its only effect would be to confuse the reader with a mass of conflicting technical details. When the ships are of the same age and size, we must trust our Navy to design and build into our ships a combination of these five elements of war value which will be equal in effectiveness to those of the British and Japanese vessels.

In conclusion, we believe that the following facts are established:

First: The provisions of the London treaty as regards relative strength in capital ships are more favorable than those of the Washington treaty.

Second: The London treaty gives us the opportunity, if we modernize our battleships, to reach parity with Great Britain and maintain a superiority of 10 to 6 over Japan.

Third: We will save about $350,000,000 by not having to build the ten capital ships which would have to be laid down by 1936 under the Washington treaty.

Our modernization program should be extended to include the five battleships of the Tennessee and Maryland classes.

JUST FOLKS

COMFORTLESS.

I found him underneath a tree
"And what is wrong?" quoth I,
"That you so solemn seem to be
Under this summer sky?

The birds above you gayly sing,
The wild flowers brightly bloom,
What is this awful, horrid thing
Which seems to seal your doom?

Round you the children romp and play,
The gentle breezes blow.
Sad stranger, tell me I pray,
The burden of your woe."

"I do not see the sunbeams dance,
Nor hear the birds," said he,
"There's something faulty with my stance,
I can't get off the tee.

All day I've shanked my mashie shot,
My putts rimmed every cup,
I'm doing something I should not;
I think it's looking up."

"Poor man," I said, "'tis very sure
No help for you appears,
The woes you bear I've tried to cure
Myself for thirty years.

And still my mashie shots I shank,
And still I slice the drives,
And with the dubs expect to rank
As long as I'm alive.

Though time all other griefs may cure,
All other hurts may mend,
The miseries of golf endure;
To them there is no end."

If You Can't Manage the Business, It Becomes the Business of Somebody Who Can.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHENEVER a grievance affects a group large enough to be the "balance of power" on election day, professional politicians adopt it as a platform.

High taxes, for example, are a perennial grievance; and though they have increased steadily from the day of Washington until the present and will continue to increase, generations of office-seekers have won place and power by promising to reduce them.

Whatever the grievance may be, just or unjust, the politician who will make it his own is certain of election.

Observe, then, the trend of events in America.

Many thousands of men lost their jobs last year—some because of the "business depression," some because machines were installed to do their work, some because they were growing old.

All of these men are voters.

Others like them were turned adrift the year before and the year before that, and others like them will be turned adrift next year and the next.

A jobless man has a grievance.

And when two or three million men have a similar grievance, the politician in need of a platform soon offers them a remedy.

In the early days of the Republic, before politicians had learned how easily the Treasury can be raided, a spokesman for the afflicted talked about changing the currency or the tariff.

Now the first thought in any emergency is a congressional appropriation.

Storm or drought, insect pest or fatal stupidity—there is an appeal to the Federal Treasury, and the property of the many must pay the losses of the few.

That is the precedent and the national habit.

It follows, then, as certainly as night follows day, that these several million jobless men, having a just and reasonable grievance, will soon or late turn to the public treasury for relief.

And their demand for relief will carry into office the meaner type of politicians, who delight in taxing the property of their fellows because they have none of their own.

Do you know how many millions of dollars are paid each year as pension money?

Do you know how many millions England pays in the form of a dole to the jobless?

Do you know that many men, spirit-broken by the dole, have lost all desire to work?

Do you relish the thought of a Government pension for jobless men?

It will come, as sure as gun's iron, unless employers find a way to give workers a square deal.

You can divide the cake or watch some politician make a good fellow of himself at your expense.

THE ONCE OVER

DUFFER'S SOLACE.

This game they call golf I can't master;
It leaves me disgruntled and sore;
Each move that I make spells disaster
And leaves we a terrible score.
My wood clubs I find somewhat lacking,
My steel ones bring misery, too;
At divots I'm constantly hacking
And making the air pretty blue.
With putter I'm futile at holing;
I'd give up the game with loud groans,
Except for one fact that's consoling—
There's only one Robert T. Jones!

I stand on a tee with my driver
And know that I'm going to press;
I'll get you a ten spot or fiver
I'll get sixty yards, if not less.
And then when I come to my second
And try for a powerful sock
I know that one thing can be reckoned—
I'll knock it right under a rock!
My game is a thing quite demented;
I feel bleak despair in my bones,
And this alone keeps me contented—
There's, after all, only one Jones!

I lack any sense of direction;
My judgment of distance is bad;
Each ball that I hit finds deflection
And leaves me disgustingly sad.
I'm worse with a niblick than putter
And can't do a thing with a cleek;
My chipping's a failure, yes, utter,
And in any sandtrap I'm weak.
The boys at the club all ignore me,
Discussing my golf in low tones;
There's just this one happiness for me—
There's only one golfer like Jones!

I can't use a spoon with precision;
My iron that's marked Number Three
Just gashes a large sized incision
In fairway or bunker or tee.
Some people insist I don't pivot
While others avert it's my wrist;
I frequently sink a big divot
And find that the ball I have missed;
I'd give up my fight for smooth action
And sink my bag weighted with stones
Except that I've this satisfaction—
There's only one Robert Tyre Jones!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Why George Wickersham Gets in Bad When He Speaks, No Matter What He Says.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: George Wickersham has an unenviable job. Every time he opens his mouth he gets into trouble. Not long after he became chairman of the President's law enforcement commission, he directed a letter to Gov. Roosevelt in which he asked that official's opinion as to the advisability of splitting the task of enforcing the prohibition laws, the Government confining its attention to the larger aspects of violation and the States assuming the onus for local enforcement. The other night he digressed from the prepared address he was delivering before a conference of social workers in Boston to say that the English system of promoting temperance through education was superior to the American effort to effect prohibition by force, thus suggesting that prohibition enforcement had failed to attain the objective sought.

The chairman of the law enforcement commission shouldn't do these things. It is true that the Roosevelt letter was written in confidence. It is equally true that in the deviation from the Boston address Mr. Wickersham did not declare against prohibition, but merely suggested that to make it effective a campaign of education would have to be linked with a campaign of enforcement. But the chairman of the law enforcement commission has no business asking advice or making suggestions. It is his unhappy duty to take the law as he finds it and make the public observe it.

The discussion stirred up by the Roosevelt letter and now by the Boston incident shows how hopelessly entangled prohibition has become. The public will not tolerate innovations. The wets stand in opposition to the law and will be satisfied with nothing less than total repeal, while drys are for the law as is and they will not accept even minor modifications in the interest of better enforcement. So, no matter what Mr. Wickersham says, he gets in bad.

Cut Down Sidewalks, Says Motorist—People Do Not Use Sidewalks Much, Anyway.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A good way to improve traffic conditions would be to reduce sidewalk space wherever possible in order to widen driveways, as was done with good results on Thirteenth north of F street, as well as elsewhere.

The objection to this procedure that it calls for the destruction of shade trees would be worth serious consideration if it were not for the fact that young, and in some cases more desirable, trees may be planted to take their place.

Then, in some cases, the demand for more traffic room might be met by carving out motor-parking spaces between the trees along both sides of a street.

Most of your sidewalks take up much more space than is necessary, not being used half as much today as they were when the city was only half its present size.

It is a shame that the street surface taken up by sidewalks should remain two or three times as great as is necessary, with the traffic jams of the National Capital growing worse and worse.

Hagerstown Almanack Yields Items Redolent of the Good Old Age.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following, taken from the July reading matter of this year's Hagerstown Town and Country Almanack, is interesting in connection with our present taxi war:

"Just one century ago the competition for traffic on the stage coach lines between Boston and Providence became so keen that passengers were carried free and provided with a dinner and a bottle of wine each."

On the same page of the Almanack is this item:

"The Stars and Stripes were first carried in the battle of Brandywine."

Notwithstanding contemporary freedom from the evils of the grogshop, with its town roisterers and village soaks, there is still something alluring in these casual glimpses of the good old days.

House Action for Acquisition of Vollbehr Collection Is Warmly Praised.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The House of Representatives is to be congratulated upon its action in unanimously deciding to acquire for the Library of Congress the three-volume, vellum-printed copy of the Gutenberg Bible, and the 2,997 other rare and valuable fifteenth century works offered to this country for $1,500,000. The collection is owned by Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr, of Germany.

The Vollbehr collection is the finest private assembly of incunabula in the world. Experts appraise its value at not less than $2,500,000. The Gutenberg Bible is the unique book, the greatest prize in the realm of books.

COURT ENTRY URGED BY WOMEN'S CLUBS

General Federation Plans to Support Project at Denver Parley.

GOV. EMERSON TO SPEAK

Denver, Colo., June 11 (A.P.).—Turning from the diversion of a "play day" in the Colorado Rockies, west of Denver, delegates to the twentieth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs prepared tonight for the more serious discussion tomorrow of the possibility of United States entrance into the World Court.

Nearly 2,000 visitors left the city early this morning for a tour of Denver mountain parks, stopping at the summit of Lookout Mountain after a drive over the winding Lariat Trail to pay homage at the grave of Col. William Cody (Buffalo Bill).

Historic Bergen Park, further back in the mountains, was the scene of today's informal luncheon and the delegates returned to Denver down scenic Bear Creek Canyon.

The delegate body was to meet at Convention Hall tonight for a program presented by State presidents and the junior organization.

Discussion tomorrow will be preceded by the report of election of officers, the polls having been open all day Tuesday.

Mrs. Ben Hooper, of Oshkosh, Wis., chairman of the committee on international relations, will not only present her report, but will also lead the discussion to throw influence of the federation behind the World Court movement.

"The federation has heretofore gone on record and worked for entrance of the United States into the World Court," said Mrs. Hooper. "The time has come when more intensive work must be added to words. The General Federation has asked for entrance of the United States into the World Court and we will ask again and again if necessary."

Wyoming, one of the strongholds of woman suffrage, will send its governor, Frank C. Emerson, to the federation tomorrow to discuss "women's service from the legislative standpoint."

Building Managers Hear College Head

Georgia Tech Leader Says Discarding Fraternity Keys Aid in Success.

Biloxi, Miss., June 12 (A.P.).—Members of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, in convention here today, heard Dr. Martin L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology, as though he were addressing a group of college students, say:

"If you want to be a success in life, drop your fraternity key down a well, work hard to become editor of the school paper, captain of the football team, president of your class, leader of college dramatics, be popular on the campus and cultivate your personality. In addition to these things, a successfull young man should rank in the upper half of the class scholastically.

"The appraisal given personality by the business world," he said, "was impressed upon me most vividly by the head of one of the great Eastern industrial organizations, who has been coming to George Tech for years to secure graduates for his business. Most important of all, he wanted class leadership, saying: 'We take it for granted that a young man who can sell himself to his classmates can sell our goods to the public.'"

Oil Man Kills His Wife, Turns Gun on Himself

El Dorado, Ark., June 11 (A.P.).—Shuler Webb, 45, farm and oil well owner, shot his wife to death at their home near here today and then wounded himself after prolonged domestic troubles. He is in a critical condition at a hospital here with three bullet wounds in his chest.

Two sons of the couple witnessed the shooting. They said Webb came to the house, from which he had been absent since their mother filed a suit for divorce last April, threatened her, chased her from one room to another and then shot her twice. Then he turned the gun on himself.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IF THIS column were a cartoon it would try to describe a group of children fleeing, terror-stricken and leading their little panicky brothers and sisters, before a great, black monster with gnashing teeth, and label it, "For mercy's sake, save us poor newspapermen from this propaganda storm."

The thing is getting terrific. It beats about one's ear's and leaves a roaring, headachy din.

It is diabolical and cunning, a four-headed demon, if there ever was one.

* * * *

EVERYBODY thought it was great fun when the Democrats employed Mr. Charles Michelson as their publicity expert several months ago, and the way in which Mr. Michelson got down to work harassing the Republicans was even funnier.

It is not that we had anything against the Republicans, but they are such a stolid, self-satisfied lot that it was amusing to watch their expressions of bewilderment as they were pounded with big and little stones for months. They are so used to having things their own way that its was some time before they realized what was going on.

Then they acted to meet the enemy.

* * * *

IT was even delightful to watch them trying to get into action after they determined upon a course. They are such a clumsy lot that they fell all over each other and did many stupid things.

But they are fighting back with a vengeance now. Their Mr. James L. West, employed to offset Mr. Michelson, is working at a high state of efficiency. These continuing stories, which he issues every afternoon, telling just what this Democratic senator and that one put in the tariff bill, are interesting and good.

And whether it was he or Senator Watson who thought up the stunt about creating doubt as to whether Mr. Grundy and Mr. Reed would vote for the tariff, the effect is just the same, and was also good.

* * * *

BUT let's quit now. Let's call it a draw. The newspapermen are getting caught between the two cross-fires. There has been so much thunder about the tariff that we will be excavating a year trying to find out what all did happen in the year 1930, and archeologists will probably have to be called in to dig out the truth from the various reports that have been spread about what was the President's attitude.

The fire is spreading, too. George Akerson, head of the White House publicity department, is perking up, and even the Treasury is getting into it. Somebody says that somebody says there will be a tax increase if the veterans bill is passed.

Gwan, that's too funny. The Treasury has always been able to get money from the money trees, at least when elections were brewing.

REED'S VISIT BINDS HOOVER TO TARIFF MEASURE'S FATE

upon his visit was "Good morning, Mr. President, how are you?"

But the picture of yesterday's developments as presented by the Nation's press associations and accurately, of course, was that the Pennsylvania senator took his aching head to the President and that he will talk today in the light of the advice he got.

Mellon Denies He'll Urge Veto.

It was the worst slip the Republicans have made since they became articulate with their own high-powered publicity machine about a month ago. For months they had taken one of the worst poundings from the Democratic publicity guns that a party ever took. It was such a pounding, in fact, that for some time after the Republicans set up their counter machine they could not open their mouths.

But with their output of rumors about Reed and his colleague, Senator Grundy, being undecided about the bill and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon disliking it, they reached a high state of propaganda effectiveness. Mr. Mellon yesterday withdrew himself from the propaganda war with a denial that he intended to recommend to the President disapproval of the bill.

And Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, speaking in the Senate, described the reports about Grundy and Reed as "idle talk."

Grundy May Not Be Needed.

The reports about Grundy voting against the bill have made the Democrats right nervous because they would, of course, have to substitute another label for "Grundyism."

There is still the possibility that the Republicans may not need Grundy's vote and a slight possibility in that event that he would vote against the measure just to disarm the Democrats. The Democrats are counting strongly on the assumption, however, that Mr. Grundy will have to vote for the bill in order that he can carry on his lobbying activities after he retires from the Senate.

They argue and with some justification that if Grundy should vote against the measure, even if in the realization that his vote is not needed, he could never again go to his high manufacturing friends for campaign donations which has been his life pursuit.

It was Senator Smoot who announced Secretary Mellon's denial of reports that he was against the bill. He would not say why he was prepared to speak for the secretary, but emphasized that the denial was authentic.

He's Not Sure About Signing.

Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, wanted to know if he knew whether the President would sign the bill, but Smoot replied, apparently quite seriously:

"No, I can not say that. I wish I could, and if I could I would say it frankly to the Senate now."

Senator Reed's speech today should, of course, clear up that doubtful point. The blunder about Reed bringing the President into his pose, of course, is that if he announces today that he intends to vote for the bill it will place the President in conflict with the word that wafted out from the White House several days ago that the President was open-minded about the bill, that it would take him some time to study it after it reached him before he could make up his mind. Of course, this placed the President in an unfair light at the time because the tariff bill has been around here for a year.

But many men are getting hurt in the intensity of the propaganda just now. It is worse than it was during the war.

Deputy Killed, Women Battle During Dry Raid

Hobart, Okla., June 11 (A.P.).—While their wives engaged in a fight, a Kiowa County deputy sheriff and the operator of a filling station being raided for liquor shot it out at Roosevelt, Okla. W. H. Humble, the deputy, is dead from gunshot wounds and Sam Allen, the filling station man, is under guard in the county jail. Wives of both men are in a Hobart Hospital being treated for injuries inflicted in their encounter.

Humble, accompanied by his wife, went to raid the filling station. Allen is said to have fired three shots which resulted in Humble's death. Allen escaped, pursued by a posse of 100 men with bloodhounds from the Granite Reformatory. He surrendered late.

FOUR SOUTH FLORIDA BANKS FAIL TO OPEN

Heavy Withdrawals Cited as Reason by Bank of Bay Biscayne at Miami.

FOUR SUBSIDIARIES HIT

Miami, Fla., June 11 (A.P.).—The Bank of Bay Biscayne, oldest financial institution of south Florida, and three subsidiaries in metropolitan Miami failed to open for business today. The subsidiaries are the Miami Beach Bank & Trust Co., the Bank of Coral Gables and the Biscayne Trust Co.

Notices posted on the doors of the institution said the action had been taken by directors "for protection of depositors" and because of "recent substantial withdrawals."

A fifth banking house, the Bank of Homestead, closed after being open an hour, with the statement that it would reopen in a few days.

Later Figures Refused.

The Bank of Bay Biscayne listed total resources of $17,182,292.53 and deposits of $15,037,198.93 as of March 27, 1930, in its last quarterly report.

President James H. Gilman declined to give later figures as to the bank's condition or an approximation of the amount of recent withdrawals. Capital stock was listed as $1,000,000 and surplus and profits at $1,145,093.60.

In a statement issued by the subsidiaries at the same time the Biscayne Trust Co. was listed as having $1,520,041 deposits and $1,962,148 resources.

The Miami Beach Bank & Trust Co. showed $2,349,943 deposits and $2,539,281 resources.

The Bank of Coral Gables listed deposits of $606,598.94 and resources of $743,759.

The arrival of $2,000,000 in cash by airplane from the Jacksonville depository of the Federal Reserve Bank this afternoon, and the announcement by Governor E. R. Black of the Federal Reserve Bank in Atlanta that a total of $6,000,000 in cash was en route here, was expected by banks to allay fears of depositors before tomorrow.

Estimate 10,000 Affected.

Creed Taylor, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank in this district, came here today by airplane from Tampa and went into conference with officials of the Bank of Bay Biscayne, a member of the Reserve System.

Arthur W. Saarinen, of the State banking department, took charge of affairs of the closed bank and subsidiaries.

It was estimated that between 8,000 and 10,000 persons were affected by the closing of the Miami area banks.

Six Police Hold Back Crowd at Jersey Bank

Vineland, N. J., June 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Six patrolmen portentously took up stations in the front of the Vineland Trust Co. this morning, fifteen minutes before opening time. A minute later a piece of paper was pasted on the door, announcing that for the first time in its 25 years the bank would not open for business and that the State commissioner of banking had taken charge.

And ten minutes later the six patrolmen were struggling to hold back a crowd of 200 depositors clamoring for their money. Later in the day, Commissioner Frank H. Smith issued a statement explaining that the bank's capital had been impaired by bad loans and the shrinking of the stock market. It was capitalized at $100,000 and had $1,500,000 for its 3,500 depositors.

Pittsburgh, June 11 (A.P.).—Three bandits leaped upon the paymaster of the American Coat & Apron Supply Co. here today, kidnaped him and escaped with $2,330.

U. S. CENSUS GIVES CHICAGO 3,373,753

Windy City Gains 672,048 in Decade and Stands Fourth of World.

ONE NOTCH ABOVE PARIS

Chicago, June 11 (A.P.).—Chicago's population today was revealed to be 3,373,753.

The increase over the 1920 census was 672,048. The increase for the previous decade, 1910-1920, was 516,422.

The figures were announced at an Association of Commerce luncheon by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president, and were greeted by city-wide celebration in schools and business houses.

In entering its third million, Chicago nosed out Paris for position as fourth city of the world and remained second of the Nation.

Also, its new population total exceeds the 1920 total of all Illinois outside Cook County, which then had 3,432,263. Preliminary returns for 1930 indicate a relatively small advance for Illinois outside of the metropolitan area, so that Chicago's population may now equal or exceed the present down-State population.

Other indications that the metropolitan area will outweigh the rest of the State comes in preliminary reports which show that many of Chicago's suburbs have doubled or trebled in size. The metropolitan area includes Cook, Lake, Du Page, Kane and Will Counties in Illinois and Lake County in Indiana.

Col. Randolph pointed out that Chicago has more than doubled its population in 30 years. The previous census figures were: 1860, 109,206; 1870, 298,970; 1880, 503,298; 1890, 1,099,850; 1900, 1,698,575; 1910, 2,185,283; 1920, 2,701,705.

The ceremony was performed in the home of the bride's parents at 1752 Massachusetts avenue, the Very Rev. Mgr. Edward Buckey, rector of St. Matthew's Church, officiating in the presence of a small company of relatives and close friends. Due to the recent death of the bridegroom's mother the arrangements for the wedding were very simple. A profusion of white roses and Easter lilies, massed with palms and ferns, formed an effective setting for the wedding party and as the guests were assembling and during the ceremony a stringed orchestra played.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of heavy white flat crepe fashioned along princess lines, with rows of shirring at the high waistline giving an empire effect. The sleeves were long and tight-fitting, and the skirt fell into a graceful train at the back. Her veil of white tulle was simply arranged and held in place at the back with an ornament of seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Ashbel Green, jr., of New York, was the matron of honor and only attendant. She wore a gown of turquoise blue chiffon fashioned with a long flowing skirt and a cape, and a hat of peach-color crin with a large bow of blue ribbon to match the gown. She carried an arm bouquet of tea roses. Mr. George McLeod, of Philadelphia, was the best man.

The ceremony was followed by a reception and wedding breakfast. Mr. and Mrs. Gary received the guests with Mr. and Mrs. Moran, the bride's mother wearing a gown of pale blue with a large hat to match.

CAPONE RESIDENCE HELD ARMED CAMP

State Witness in Padlock Proceedings Describes Racketeer's Home.

GUARDS' WEAPONS SEEN

Miami, Fla., June 11 (A.P.).—The Miami Beach residence of "Scarface" Al Capone was described as a virtual armed camp today by Edward Robinson, State witness in procedings instituted by State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne to padlock the Capone home.

Mr. Robinson, whose home is close to the Capone residence on Palm Island, exclusive residential area, testified that he had seen men walking about the Capone grounds with pistols in their pockets or strapped to their hips on several occasions. He also mentioned the police guard that has been stationed at the grilled entrance to the Capone home by the City of Miami Beach.

The Chicago gangster, named with his wife as defendant in the Hawthorne petition, appeared perturbed as Mr. Robinson's testimony was given. He immediately conferred with his attorneys, Vincent C. Giblin and J. F. Gordon.

Certain They Were Pistols.

On cross-examination, Mr. Robinson replied to a question of Giblin as to his certainty that what he saw were pistols:

"I guess I know a revolver when I see one, and I'm giving this testimony under oath."

He said the incident occurred about a year ago.

The Rev. William H. Sledge, pastor of a Baptist church here, testified to hearing John Capone, a brother of the gangster, order three cases of liquor for delivery at the home of Fred Pine, Miami attorney, on December 4, 1928. He was unable to identify John in the court room today, under cross-examination, but said he was positive it was John. He heard the order given at the Capone home, he said, when he went there in an attempt to rent an automobile.

Thomas J. Pancoast, Miami Beach developer and real estate man, described the presence of Capone as a menace to the community when he was called to the stand as a State witness.

Charges Capone Bribe.

"He harbors people who are dangerous to us," Mr. Pancoast testified. "I want to live in peace and quiet, not among gangsters. The common talk is that Capone and his crew are very undesirable."

He said that the gangster's presence often was discussed in meetings of the Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce, realty board and the exclusive committee of 100, composed of wealthy winter residents of Miami Beach.

Maj. George E. Brown, in charge of Army engineers in this section, said Capone had attempted to press a bank note on him after exceeding his authority in building a dock at the rear of his home. Maj. Brown said he refused the note without looking at it to see its denomination, and ordered the gangster to get additional permit for his dock.

The hearing was recessed at noon until tomorrow with a number of State witnesses still to be called to the stand before the defense brings its story into court records.

St. Louis, June 11 (A.P.).—Lon O. Hocker, St. Louis attorney started for New York yesterday, to prepare for a hearing before Special Master in Chancery Fred L. Williams, of St. Louis, in the suit of the Government to prevent merger of the Standard Oil Co of New York and the Vacuum Oil Co. Mr. Hocker is an attorney for the Standard Oil.

The hearing, according to Mr. Hocker, will be held in New York beginning June 19, and probably will last a month.

brief relief last night he slept soundly only to awaken again by the renewal of the paroxysms.

Women who had suffere dfrom diaphragmatic spasms flooded the hospital with telephone calls offering remedies. One suggested the use of preserves and another giving the patient water to sip.

The hiccough attack is the second Mr. Reid has suffered in a year, he told hospital physicians. The last attack continued for ten days, he said, and it took several months for him to recover his lod vigor. He was under treatment at the time at Emergency Hospital.

After the attack occurred Sunday Mr. Reid attempted to cure it by home remedies. Becoming weakened by the continued spasms he went to the hospital at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

Diaphragmatic spasms comparatively rarely fail to yield to immediate treatments. In long continuing cases, however, heart failure often results in death.

HARVARD IDEA HIT ON PRIVATE SCHOOL

Phillips Exeter Instructor Attacks "Unfortunate" Views Appearing.

CHILDISHNESS IS DENIED

Boston, June 11.—Contending that "unvarnished" reports appearing in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, official graduates' magazine, which convey the impression that "the private schools are long on childishness but short on scholarship," are "unfortunate," Laurence M. Crosbie, Harvard, '04, instructor in English at Phillips Exeter Academy, in a letter to the editor of the Bulletin, suggests that "if the product of the public schools is so far superior to that of the private schools in scholarship and in discipline, why not take at Harvard only the best from the public schools and admit no student from private schools?"

Styling himself a constant champion of his alma mater, Mr. Crosbie admits that he is sorely tried now and then by the constantly recurring statement in the columns of the alumni publication that private schools furnish most of the cases of discipline for the dean, and fewest members of the dean's favored list, on which are placed those students who, having done exceptionally well in their studies, are accorded certain privileges denied to those who have not excelled in the realm of scholarship.

Whether from this attitude of Harvard toward private schools, or from some other reason, Mr. Crosbie points out the fact is obvious that fewer and fewer boys are going from Exeter to Harvard. "This may be," he continues, "perhaps, just what the college desires."

In its editorial columns the Bulletin hastens to set forth that it "needs no special authorization from the Harvard authorities to say that Mr. Crosbie's intimation (with regard to Harvard's desires) is far from the truth."

A few months ago Phillips Exeter won the scholarship trophy which the Harvard Chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa Society gives annually to the school whose graduates make the best records in the examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board.

In its comment on the letter from the Exeter instructor, the Bulletin points out that the graduates from private schools on the whole obtain higher rank in their college entrance examinations than the boys from public schools—or at least did so when the last survey was made—and the boys from public schools seem to do better scholastic work in college.

SIX POLICE SQUADS OPEN GANG CLEAN-UP

or two small fry reported arrested leaked out, but others of the 50 or so said to have been picked up were distributed in the cells of outlying police stations and questioned there.

A group of nine men picked up in Brooklyn, N. Y., was believed by Stege to have been a party organized by Dennis Cooney, reputed vice boss of the southside, to go to New York to see the Sharkey-Schmeling fight.

Stege said he had given the men sent out to round up gangsters special instructions which he did not "care to reveal." He pointed out that one man has killed eleven lawbreakers, two others six each, two others five and one four.

"All of them are to be sworn in as deputy sheriffs so they can go anywhere in the county for gangsters," he added.

Nine Arrested in East.

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—New York detectives cooperating with Chicago police in the hunt for the slayer of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, crime reporter, today staged a dramatic coup aboard an express train rushing Eastward to this city.

Hopping aboard the train at Trenton, N. J., the detectives arrested seven alleged Chicago gangsters for questioning in connection with the Lingle slaying, the machine-gun murder of Frankie Yale, Brooklyn racketeer leader, and several other recent killings.

Two alleged bad men from the Western city were picked upon Broadway about the same time. All were hustled to Brooklyn headquarters to face the searching questions of police. Their pictures and fingerprints were sent to Chicago by airplane.

Police said it was the first in a series of efforts to round up gangsters fleeing here from Chicago's wrath at the Lingle slaying, but the prisoners said they were simply en rcute to the Sharkey-Schmeling fight.

Capone Aid Reported Taken.

One arrested was Jack Guzik, also known as Jack Cusik, said to be the right-hand man of Al Capone, and another, Ed Vogel, is the brother of "Big George" Vogel, described as a leading Chicago racketeer.

The others taken were Paul Ricca, 33; Dennis Cooney, 42; Salvatore Labardo, 36; Joseph Smith, 28; Edward Morrison, 31; Joseph Corngold, 33, and Ralph Carol, 21.

Three of these, Labardo, Smith and Vogel, attempted to escape the detectives who boarded the train, but blackjacks and leveled guns induced them to enter a compartment with the others, where they stayed until arrival at the Pennsylvania Station. The detectives who made the arrest went to Trenton by airplane today on the information from Chicago.

Guzik, Cooney and Smith were later released.

No guns were found in the bright, new traveling bags the men carried, but police said they had $60,000 they said was to be wagered on the fight. All denied knowledge of Lingle's death or any other killing.

Frankie Yale, in connection with whose death they were questioned, fell to a rain of machine gun bullets on July 1, 1928, and police are sure that Chicago gangsters manned the gun. Yale was boss of the narcotics and beer rackets in Brooklyn and was once a close friend of Al Capone.

FAIRFAX CHAMBER TO SEEK NEW ROAD

GRANGE GROUP TO MEET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce held their regular monthly meeting in the Potters Hill school at Newington. It was decided to ask the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce to join with the local chamber in petitioning the State highway authorities and Arlington County to provide a suitable connecting link between Columbia Pike and the New Arlington Memorial Boulevard.

It was explained at the meeting that this connecting link would be located in Arlington County but it would provide an outlet for one of the main traveled highways through Fairfax County. The Fairfax Chamber previously had indorsed this project and instructed its highway committee to cooperate with the various community leagues and committees of citizens from the Annandale section and Arlington County. Martin T. Webb, of Annandale, stated that he had taken this question up with the Arlington Citizens Association and they had assured him that as soon as the bond issue for schools and sewers had been settled that they would indorse the movement and do everything in their power to help carry the project through.

George F. Harrison, of Herndon, chairman of the highway committee, reported that the chamber's movement to have the Richmond highway at Snake Hill and Gum Springs improved and the dangerous curves removed, had been successful and that the State Highway Department had started to work in accordance with the chamber's recommendations. He further stated that it would only be a matter of about three years until all of the local farm-to-market roads in the county would be improved if the county's present road building policy was carried out.

H. B. Derr, county agricultural agent, made the suggestion that the County Agricultural and Vocational High School should be moved to a more centrally located part of Fairfax County. It is now located at Herndon, where it was recently transferred from Floris. He also suggested that a better location would be at the old county alms farm, near Fairfax, or at Oakton. The next meeting of the chamber will be held at Annandale.

The executive committee in charge of the Fairfax County Pomona Grange market stall project will hold its second meeting tomorrow in Fairfax. The members will report the results of their investigation into market conditions in Washington.

Mrs. Amos H. Chilcott, deputy county treasurer, again calls the attention of the taxpayers in Fairfax County to the fact that all unpaid county taxes must be paid by Saturday in order to avoid a 10 per cent penalty. A 5 per cent penalty was added last December, and at this time it will be increased an additional 5 per cent in addition to a 6 per cent interest charge on the balance until paid.

The Washington Diocese Daughters of the King will visit the Falls Church tonight in Falls Church. The principal speaker of the evening will be Worthington Lowe, of Marlboro, Md.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Crossman Methodist Church at Falls Church will hold its meeting today in the church house. They will elect officers for the year at this time before adjourning for the summer months.

James Bryant, of Accotink, Va., pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while drunk before Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, yesterday. He was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. As he had been in jail for one month awaiting trial the court ordered him released without paying the fine and costs at this time, but ordered him to pay the said fine and costs before the September term of court.

William D. Sample, indicted for the sale of ardent spirits, was found guilty and fined $50 and costs and sentenced to one month in jail. He had served his time awaiting trial and was granted a release on the condition that he pay his fine and costs before the September term of court.

Joseph Ferguson, of Gum Springs, who was indicted for the murder of his brother in a shooting affray some months ago, was found not guilty yesterday by a jury. A deathbed statement given by his brother was not admitted in evidence. There were only three persons present at the time of the shooting. They were Joseph, his brother, and Joseph's wife.

Taylor Scott Edwards, of Clifton, was tried on an indictment charging an assault on his brother, Emmett Edwards, with a shotgun, which resulted in a mistrial. The case will be reheard in September. Two other indictments against Edwards, one charging an assault on his brother with a knife and the other charging assault on his nephew with a knife, will be heard at the September term of court.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools of Fairfax County Wilbert T. Woodson yesterday made public the results of the county-wide school census made this spring. All persons between the ages of 6 and 20 years old were enumerated. This enumeration is the basis on which the State makes its appropriation toward the support of the public schools of the county. The school population shows a decrease of 1,576 school children since the 1925 school census.

The figures by districts are as follows: Centerville, 562 white children, 133 colored; Dranesville district, 666 white and 84 colored; Falls Church district, 480 white and 232 colored; Lee district, 496 white and 113 colored; Mount Vernon district, 980 white and 125 colored; Providence district, 1,195 white and 286 colored.

School population of the towns is: Fairfax, 117 white and 61 colored; Herndon, 174 white and 27 colored, and Falls Church, 359 white and 15 colored. This makes a total of 5,029 white children and 1,146 colored of school age in the county, a grand total of 6,175 children. Superintendent Woodson also announced that during the summer months his office hours would be changed to 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., instead of 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Uniform Fire Lights Urged.

Baltimore, Md., June 11 (A.P.).—Passage by all Eastern States of laws requiring uniform license tags and lights, preferably red lights, for fire apparatus, was favored by the Eastern Fire Chief's Association in a resolution approved as the annual convention closed here today. All officers were reelected and Atlantic City chosen for next year's convention.

BRITISH LABORITES EDUCATE WORKERS

School Arranged to Prepare Party Agents for Next General Election.

FIVE COURSES PROVIDED

London, June 11 (A.P.).—An astute move to strengthen the Labor party machine in preparation for the next general election has been made by Ramsay MacDonald.

With his approval a special correspondence school in political science has been put in operation for agents and organizers of the party.

The school is not compulsory, but it has been made plain by officials engaged in oiling up the party machinery that no worker can advance very far toward the inner councils unless he is interested enough to study a bit at the small cost of $2.50 to cover printing and postage for each of the five courses.

In the past there has been much difficulty among Labor party agents because a full knowledge of election and registration laws could be obtained only from expensive legal tomes and at a cost of considerable time and effort. The home study courses are designed to overcome this handicap.

Significantly enough, since the Liberals and Conservatives also are preparing for a general election, Course "A" deals with the law relating to the conduct of parliamentary elections. The party's agents and organizers have two months to prepare themselves, by the end of July, for examination for a certificate of proficiency.

August is vacant on the time table of the school. That may or may not be significant, but it is the month that many Conservatives fear will be chosen by the Laborites for the general election because of its strategic value.

During August a majority of the Conservative voters will be away on their holidays. On the other hand, the working Labor party voters will be ready, if called on at that time, to cast ballots, guided by agents and organizers, who will have just completed Course A.

In September and November, October also being vacation, those who have enrolled in the school will receive Course B. That deals with the law relating to the conduct of elections for municipal boroughs, county councils, metropolitan boroughs, urban districts, rural districts and parish councils. As most of the municipal elections come late in the fall this course will be most timely.

In December students will receive Course C, which covers the Representation of the People act, the franchise and registration of voters. Course D, dealing with administration and organization, will come in January, while February will be devoted to Course E, which covers the Labor party constitution and rules. March will be used for revision, while examinations for the whole course will be held next April.

Clarendon Worker Dies After Scaffold Tumble

William Ricker, 25 years old, of Clarendon, Va., died last night at Georgetown University Hospital from injuries he received a week ago when he fell from a scaffold of a building in Clarendon on which he was laying bricks.

An inquest will be held to determine the exact cause of the accident.

The scaffold was 12 feet from the ground and no reason was assigned for its collapse.

Nonstop Bermuda Hop Starts Today

Williams Says Round Trip From New York Will Take 15 Hours.

Roosevelt Field, New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Roger Q. Williams, transatlantic flier, announced today he would take off tomorow for a round-trip, nonstop flight to Bermuda. He will use the Columbia, the plane Chamberlin flew from New York to Germany.

Erroll Boyd will be copilot on the flight and Lieut. Harry Connors, U. S. Naval Reserve, navigator. Williams expects to make the round trip in fifteen hours.

The Columbia today was being fueled with 500 gallons of gasoline and 50 gallons of oil by Roosevelt Field mechanics. The ship was recently overhauled. Williams said the hop will be a pioneer flight for a regular amphibian New York-to-Bermuda air line to be put in operation late in the summer.

In 1928-29 Florida had 45,291 high school girls taking home economics courses under 209 teachers.

Hays Off to Europe To See Movie Men

Picture Czar Sails Aboard Leviathan, as Does Chief Justice.

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Will H. Hays, czar of the movies, sailed today for Europe on the liner Leviathan.

He expected to confer with producers in Europe for "first-hand exchange of views with some of those who are contributing much to the developments of the motion picture art abroad."

Charles Evans Hughes, Chief Justice of the United States, also was aboard the Leviathan with Mrs. Hughes and their daughter, Elizabeth. He said the trip was merely a vacation. They expect to return the middle of August in time for the annual meeting of the American Bar Association in Chicago.

Other passengers on the Leviathan were Mrs. Frances E. Warren, mother-in-law of Gen. Pershing, and Miss Mary Pershing the general's sister, and Hope Hampton, former actress, who is going to Europe to sing in continental opera.

Moving Goods From Stores to Customers"

The "body" of The Washington Post "van" is constructed to carry your product safely and economically to its ultimate destination. The "engine" is geared to create superlative power and to shorten the time between departure and the arrival at RESULTS.

Quotations are reproduced, with the kind permission of Kenneth Collins, executive vice president and publicity director of R. H. Macy & Company, Inc., from his address made before the American Association of Advertising Agencies meeting in Washington, Thursday, May 15.*

"Some of these vans go twenty miles an hour, some forty. Some cost $25 a day to operate, some $35. Some are equipped inside so that they can carry a large amount of plate glass, others are equipped to carry shoes. In selecting a newspaper . . . to carry your advertising message . . . it is vital to look under the hood and inside the body, to ascertain how fast it can travel and what it can carry . . ."

It would be foolish to hire a five-ton truck to deliver a basket of groceries, and it is no less ridiculous to buy thousands in newspaper circulation that is not productive when you can secure SELECTIVE circulation that most efficiently meets the requirements of your product.

The Washington Post is the ONE newspaper in Washington that offers concentrated circulation in the homes best fitted to appreciate and to respond to announcements of new products and services and most worthy of cultivation in promoting the sale of established commodities.

THE CAPITAL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

KING CAROL, SECURE, SEES FOES SUBSIDE

Enemies Drop Campaigns as New Ruler Sweeps Many From Official Posts.

HELEN FIRM IN REFUSAL

Bucharest, June 11 (A.P.).—Now that Carol II appears firmly seated as King of Roumania, after an exile of more than four years, his arch enemies appear to be dropping the campaign which they waged against the return of the prince who once renounced all royal rights for love.

The latest example of this came today when Prince Barbu Stirbey, long a friend of Queen Mother Marie and long bitterly opposed to her elder son, startled the business world by resigning the presidency of Roumania's greatest industrial works at Resiza. This company manufactures railway locomotives, coaches and airplanes, and is a powerful industrial factor in the little Balkan kingdom.

New Monarch Wields "Broom."

General opinion today was that the prince no longer was willing—or able—to head the company now that his foe is in power, although there were some hints he had resigned because the stockholders considered the firm had been mismanaged.

Since he was proclaimed king, Sunday, Carol has swept out a number of army officers, government officials and others whom he considers unfriendly, and even has ordered the recall of the Roumanian Minister to France.

Domestic Hiatus Persists.

Such house-cleaning activities and the picking up of family ties have occupied the new king's time. Thus far there has been no change in the governmental situation, and the king still is attempting to form a concentration ministry that will comprise all parties.

Nor is his domestic problem solved. Princess Helen, the wife who divorced him two years ago, has not yet swung in favor of a reconciliation. Announcement was made today that she had abandoned an intended visit to her mother in Kromberg, Germany. The understanding was that she was unwilling to leave the country now that Carol has returned, but just what that meant no one could say.

One theory was that she would not leave without her son, the former boy king, Michael, and that King Carol does not wish the boy, of whom he is the father, to leave just now.

Former Premier Maniu announced tonight he had been unable to form a cabinet. King Carol thereupon designated Gen. Prezan, who is affiliated with no party, to attempt to form a government. Maniu promised to support the general.

Gen. Prezan gained fame during the World War in commanding Roumanian troops.

Foreign Press Received.

Dressed in the uniform of an admiral, King Carol this afternoon received representatives of the foreign press at the royal palace. He expressed gratitude toward France for the hospitality he received during his years of exile in that country, and also thanked the American press, which, he said, always had taken an interest in the fate of Roumania and himself.

The king said his policy would be to obtain harmony in government and perfect relations with foreign countries.

Referring to Jews, who have complained of a recent outbreak of anti-Semitism in Roumania, the King said the Jews were not oppressed in his country.

Michael's Life Complicated.

Crown Prince Michael, the 9-year-old boy who was king until his father returned last week and was proclaimed Carol II, is leading a sort of double existence at present.

The young prince sleeps under his father's roof but spends much time at the home of his mother, Princess Helen, who divorced King Carol when he went to France with another woman.

The boy is taken to Princess Helen's home at 11 o'clock every morning, where he remains until evening. Then he goes to the king's palace, but before bedtime is taken back to his mother's home for a light meal before retiring. Then he is taken to the king's palace and put to bed.

Woodson to Ask Senate Nomination in Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky., June 11 (A.P.).—The statement that Urey Woodson, for more than 20 years Democratic national committeeman from Kentucky, was considering a request of his friends that he seek the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate in the August 2 primary, was made here today by State Senator Gates Young.

Mr. Young said that at a meeting of Democrats in Owensboro last night Mr. Woodson was asked to run. Mr Woodson, who is 71, sold the Owensboro Messenger two years ago and retired, never sought public office but once, when he served as State railroad commissioner from 1891 to 1895.

BRITISH AIR BOMBS DECIMATE AFGHANS

Haji's Forces on Expedition Beyond Peshawar Find Warm Reception.

SHOLAPUR CRISIS EASED

London, June 11 (A.P.).—The native mind turned today from contemplation of possible benefits of the Simon report on Indian government affairs to enforcement of yesterday's decision to pay no taxes and picket all foreign shops.

A bombing expedition disastrous to the Afghan forces of the Haji of Tourangzai in the hills beyond Peshawar, in which heavy casualties were inflicted by British airmen, supplied the day's active news.

Evidently the tribesmen were decimated by the British bombs and machine gun fire. During the day headmen of Capt. Usmankel came out of the rocky country and asked for a parley. Nothing was heard from the Haji's followers.

Sholapur was calm, with an improvement reported by the police. Troops made their way back to Poona Barracks, but military rule was not lifted.

Today was the Moslem feast of Moharrem, and had been considered another danger point in interracial feeling.

The Hindu press continued its attacks on the Simon report, declaring the nationalists and business community were agreed the report offered nothing which should cause modification of the campaign of resistance to the government.

Distressed Schooner Puts In.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, June 11 (A. P.).—The auxiliary schooner Effie M. Morissey, bound from New York for Greenland, with a scientific expedition, has put into port here for repairs to a propeller shaft which was damaged in a mishap 30 miles at sea.

MIDCHINA MENACED BY KWANGSI REBELS

Southerners, Ranks Swelled by Bandits, Continue Yangtse Advance.

GOVERNMENT IS IN PERIL

Shanghai, June 11 (A.P.).—Sweeping the Nationalist government troops aside, the victorious Kwangsi Province rebel armies today advanced northward in three columns upon Yangtse River cities. The progress of these southern rebels and the continued onslaught of the northern rebels in Shantung and Honan Provinces combined to make the situation extremely serious for China's government.

The Kwangsi forces, augmented by thousands of bandits, routed the Nationalists at Yochow yesterday and continued on today toward Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, industrial and strategic center of middle China. One column moved directly toward this objective, 200 miles of railroad from Yochow. Another column swung around Lake Tungting, unopposed toward Shasi, Yangtse River city, about 250 miles above Hankow, and a third body of rebels penetrated to within 20 miles of Kiukiang, important city about 150 miles down river from Hankow.

Fear Felt for Nanking.

Beaten both at Yochow and Changsha, Honan Province, the Nationalists massed 70,000 troops in Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang to halt the rebels. The tricities were under martial law as troops patroled the streets. Government gunboats, recalled from the Tungting Lake at Yochow, moved up and down the river, reinforcing the Nationalist troops.

The approach of the southerners toward Kiukiang caused the Nationalists particular anxiety. If the city fell, it was felt the rebels might continue on either to the tricities or toward Nanking, the Nationalist capital.

Meanwhile, adding to government distress, the Nationalist Gen. Han Fu-Chu was reported to have agreed with the Northern coalition rebels to yield Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, without further fighting. Several days ago the Northerners forced their way across the Yellow River, driving the Nationalists before them.

Demand Tsinan Surrender.

Artillery firing was heard in Tsinan Saturday, but the Northerners, instead of attacking the city, negotiated for its surrender. There were 20,000 casualties in this area last month.

Action on two other battle fronts were veiled perhaps by the government censors, and little was known of these sections of the ring of steel that seems to be closing upon the Nanking government.

For several weeks the Northern generals, Yen Hsi-Shan and Feng Yu-Hsiang, have battled to break the Nationalist lines along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway in northern Honan Province, to drive through to Nanking. In central Honan another Northern rebel force has been held in check against Hankow and its sister cities.

IT'S WISE TO CHOOSE A SIX
SIX reasons why it's wise to choose a "SIX"

1. It's Smooth! For the new Chevrolet has a 50-horsepower valve-in-head engine with six cylinders! And a Six is, above all things, smooth! In low gear or high—the power flows with a smoothness and silence that are impossible with anything less than six cylinders.
2. It's Comfortable! Four long semi-elliptic springs; four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers; big, roomy Fisher bodies; and Chevrolet's six-cylinder power-flow, with its freedom from annoying vibration—all add to Chevrolet riding comfort.
3. It's Easy to Drive! Chevrolet's improved ball bearing steering mechanism operates without apparent effort. The clutch and four-wheel brakes respond to the slightest pressure. And six-cylinder design means less gear-shifting—easier control.
4. It's Beautiful! Chevrolet is the only car so low in price with the distinction of Body by Fisher. Hence, Chevrolet style compares favorably with that of costly cars. The lines are smart, clean-cut and modern. And no other car in the low-price field offers such luxurious interiors.
5. It's Economical! No other car gives any better gas, oil or tire mileage than the new Chevrolet. Six-cylinder smoothness holds down maintenance costs by protecting the car from destructive vibration. And Chevrolet flat-rate service charges on many operations are the lowest in the industry.
6. It's Easy to Buy! The G. M. A. C. payment plan, with its small down payment and easy terms, is available to every Chevrolet buyer. Come in! Confirm the many reasons why it's wise to choose a Six in the low-price field.

GERMANY TO FLOAT LOAN IN U. S. TODAY

$300,000,000 Issue Makes Appearance After Long Preparation.

PLACED BY J. P. MORGAN

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Announcement was made tonight that the American portion of the long-awaited $300,000,000 German loan, amounting to $98,250,000, will be offered tomorrow by a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

The American portion of the loan, known officially as the German government international 5½ per cent loan of 1930, will be offered at 90 and accrued interest. The bonds run for 35 years and are priced to yield 6.20 per cent.

Other portions of the loan are being offered either tomorrow or Friday in France, Great Britain, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Germany, Italy and Belgium. The loan is the direct and unconditional obligation of the German government and its appearance is heralded by bankers as a final step in settlement of the German reparations question growing out of the World War.

The issuance is an integral part of the Young plan and is the final step in the adoption of the plan, transferring the reparations question from the political to the commercial field. Two-thirds of the total issue goes toward commercialization of annuity payments in settlement of the reparations debt of Germany to creditor powers and will be placed to their credit in the Bank of International Settlements. The remaining $100,000,000 raised by the bond issues will be used by the German government for requirements of the German Railway Co. and the German postoffice and telegraphs.

While no definite statement has been made, leading American bankers do not believe there will be any further American issues and that offerings made with approval of the International Bank will be marketed within countries to whose governments the annuities flow.

Widespread interest has been shown by financial interests in New York and throughout the country in the German bond issue, appearance of which has been expected for some time. It was explained today that the delay was largely due to discussion of phraseology in translating terms of the loan into French, German and English.

Bond houses report sales on a "when issued" basis during the past ten days, with some prices a full point above the offering price.

The American issue is the only one for North America, it was learned, and whether any bonds are sold to Canadian houses or individual investors will depend upon decision of the offering syndicate. With this exception, the syndicates handling the offering in each country are expected to sell nationally only.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

WHILE a great deal that has been written about it has been grossly exaggerated, there still seems to be some virtue in having a relative in the movie game. In fact, from certain viewpoints the motion picture industry seems to be rather a family affair.

However, it may be said in all reason that Norma Shearer might be a star at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer even if she were not married to Irving Thalberg, production executive, who ranks next to Louis B. Mayer.

And Sylvia Thalberg, Irving's sister, might also be on the lot, since she is a capable M-G-M scenarist.

Douglas Shearer, Norma's brother, is chief sound engineer—and a good one, according to those with a flair for mechanics—for the same company.

At Universal, Carl Laemmle, sr., sometimes affectionately referred to as "Uncle Carl," has Junior in charge of all production, in which important capacity he is doing a good job despite his mere 21 years. At the same studio are Carla Laemmle, a niece, who plays parts, and Ernst and Edward Laemmle, cousins, who direct.

Hugh Trevor, R-K-O contract player, is a nephew of William L. Baron, vice president.

When Evelyn Brent and Bernard Fineman were married both were at Paramount, he in an executive capacity. They are divorced now.

Howard Sheehan, a vice president of the Fox West Coast Theaters, is a brother of Winfield Sheehan, vice president and general manager of the Fox studios.

Sol Wurtel, another Fox official who has just signed a long-term contract under the new regime, has his father and brothers, Sam and Ben, working with him.

Executives of three studios recently became related through marriage. William Goetz, of Fox, and David Selznick, of Paramount, married daughters of Louis B. Mayer, of M-G-M.

Douglas Fairbanks' brother Robert is his business manager, and Mary Pickford recently employed her brother, Jack, former star in his own right, as an assistant director.

Harold Lloyd's uncle is his business manager and his father is treasurer of his company.

Mervyn LeRoy, director, is a nephew of Jesse L. Lasky, vice president of Paramount-Publix in charge of production, but he is under contract to First National, where he has had much to do with the rise of Alice White.

Neoptism—and there's a word—is a controlling factor in the movies, no foolin'.

It was an unexpected, but none the less pleasant, surprise to be pulled about by the arm on the street Tuesday afternoon by Adolph S. Kornspan, former conductor of the 50-piece symphony orchestra at the Fox Theater, who had just paid me an office visit that I missed trying to get to the bank in time to cover those checks!

Mr. Kronspan is now located in Atlantic City, as a swell coat of tan eloquently testifies, but I suspect is still interested in the National Symphony that made such an auspicious start as a permanent local organization last winter and early spring. This cooperative enterprise, it seems to me, could do considerably worse than appoint Mr. Kronspan its official wielder of the baton.

He performed miracles at the Fox when he was there.

As was noted in this column a few days ago, this week is dedicated to the mothers who may wish to take advantage of the gratuitous privileges offered by the Warner Brothers' theaters during their June "Family Month."

The public response, so I am reliably informed, has been astonishing.

In the smallest theaters on the circuit the mothers who have presented themselves as the company's guests have averaged about 30 a day, whereas at the houses of larger capacities from 80 to 125 per day have availed themselves of the offer of free admittance—the requirement being that they admit to 50 years or more in age.

Even greater interest is said to be indicated in "father's week," beginning next Monday, when each pater will have to have two kids in tow in order to crash the gate. Believe it or not, there seem to be more fathers than mothers!

The boys seem of a sudden to have gone overboard on the brochure idea. From 'way out on the West Coast comes a handsomely bound—in real, smelly leather—booklet extolling the manifold virtues of "Hell's Angels," the Howard Hughes production that has cost three years and $4,000,000 to make, compiled by that premier publicist, "Headline Ham" Beall—who pronounces it Beall. Mr. Beall was a two-time visitor to the Capital during the winter and tossed several parties that were parties in his suite at the Willard. And besides that he is a right guy.

Almost within the same hour the Pathe Year Book, a gorgeous multi-colored tome, was personally delivered to this desk by old Doctor McIntyre, formerly dramatic editor of the Times and latterly principal publicist for the U. S. Navy Department, who is just as good a guy as "Ham" Beall.

When I shall have at least partially digested the contents of these two noble works of art, I shall report at length upon their interesting contents.

If you are concerned at all with coming events, it may be of interest that at the Earle the week of June 20, Gus Edwards and Armida, in person, will appear in a stage divertissement that enlists the services of numerous others of slightly lesser consequence, and that the week of the 27th, the same house will present Esther Ralston and company in another stage attraction. Miss Ralston was born and reared to the stage and trouped with her father's companies long before winning stardom on the screen.

And I hope your ringside seat in New York tonight will be within sight of the fisticuffing!

Texan to Explain Lynching Abroad

Unofficial Envoy to Put England Right on Mob Death.

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Capt. Tom Hickman, Texas ranger, sailed on the Leviathan today as an unofficial ambassador to London from the State of Texas. Tom has been commissioned by Gov. Dan Moody, of the Lone Star State, to set Londoners right on that lynching at Sherman, Tex., a few weeks ago, by telling London newspapers just what happened.

One London newspaper telephoned to Gov. Moody and asked him if that sort of thing occurred often. The Governor said no, but reports have reached Texas that London papers printed accounts of the lynching which told of women tossing fuel into the flames. Tom will assure London that nothing of the sort happened.

He sailed with the Simmons College Cowboy Band of Abilene, Tex., a 40-piece musical outfit, which will spend six weeks playing in England and on the continent.

Thomas A. Edison will not attend, but his voice will in a talkie display. Prof. Albert Einstein will be another famed speaker, in person.

On June 18 Berlin and San Francisco, will be linked when the National Electric Light Association will meet in that Western City, 7,000 miles distant, and speakers at both will hear each other. The conference will end June 25.

Moon-Time and Spoon-Time

WHY does ice cream play such a part in sentimental situations? One thinks of a shady nook, a porch party in the moon-light, a canoe skimming along under the willows—it's always the girl, the occasion, and ice cream!

At the bride's party, it's ice cream—at the child's party it's ice cream—wherever sentiment or festivity predominates, it's always ice cream.

Because in offering ice cream to friend or guest there is the finest and daintiest expression of regard—not subtle, but genuinely sentimental—the modern translation of viands and ambrosia, meaning the best refreshment one is able to offer! In the making of this idealistic character of ice cream is kept in mind. It prompts a conscientious effort to produce the quality and smoothness this greatest of all refreshments should have—rare and delicate flavors—and above all purity even surpassing the requirements of health authorities and diet specialists.

The Velvet Kind

Ice cream figures large in the romance of boyhood and young girlhood so the actual health-value of The Velvet Kind is a consideration of first importance.

And who believes that we ever grow out of our boyhood and girlhood tastes, or that the canoe skimming under the willows ever loses its romance, or that a shady nook or a porch in the moon-light ever loses its attraction?

It's spoon time—and time for The Velvet Kind Ice Cream.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IT was through no fault of the local stations that many Washingtonians lost out on hearing the Prince of Wales speak at the ship launching in Scotland yesterday morning. Nor was there an opportunity to correct the announcement in The Post, since the last edition of the paper had been on the street several hours before the program change was made.

Altogether it was one of the worst mix-ups since the inauguration of transatlantic broadcasting. Station WRC, of the National Broadcasting Co., had previously announced that it would broadcast the ceremonies at 9 a. m.

At that hour, however, the program did not come through, nor did any explanation. Kenneth Berkeley, manager of the station, was apparently as much surprised and disappointed as other listeners who tried to pick up the event. To make matters worse, no explanation of any description was forthcoming from WRC.

Another NBC-WRC fall-down yesterday was the failure to broadcast the London Symphony Orchestra from England. A dance orchestra was substituted.

In the meantime, without a word of advance notice, the program began coming in over WMAL, the Columbia station here. The first speaker heard was the Prince of Wales.

Again the listeners were at sea, because no voice was heard before his, since those of such high royal rank in England are never preceded on the air by announcers. So the American audience did not know who was talking. It will be remembered that this same thing happened when King George spoke.

HARRY C. BUTCHER, vice president of Columbia, taken entirely by surprise at the prince's speech coming in on his company's network when it had been scheduled by the rival system, said later that Columbia, in New York, had received notice just ten minutes before the broadcast came through that the British Broadcasting Corporation wished to use their facilities for the program. Columbia immediately made arrangements and sent the program to a Nation-wide network, including WMAL in Washington.

One version of the mix-up is that the National Broadcasting Co. had scheduled the event without notifying the British Broadcasting Corporation, and that Cesar Searchinger, Columbia representative in London, learning of this, secured the last-minute cooperation of the BBC, thus scoring a notable beat by taking the broadcast away from the NBC in the United States.

At any rate, to Columbia goes the credit for the fastest transatlantic hook-up ever made. Notified only ten minutes in advance, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in New York set up the circuits, five minutes ahead of time CBS was notified the circuits were ready, and five minutes later the Prince of Wales was on the air.

The broadcast was remarkably clear.

NOT long ago complaint was made by officials that certain stations failed to close down on account of an S O S. Although in this case many lives were said to have been imperiled, not a word was heard from the Senate.

However, when several Eastern stations went off the air last week supposedly for an S O S during the broadcasting of a political speech by a former senator, the Senate demanded an immediate investigation, and probably will not calm down for some time.

Immediately following the description of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight tonight (WRC) the R. C. A. Hour will be broadcast over the same station, with Mme. Schumann-Heink, Richard Crooks and other stars. "Great Love Scenes in Music," ordinarily heard at this time, will be canceled for tonight.

Commencement exercises at West Point will be broadcast this morning (WMAL, 9 o'clock).

THE first official utterance of Morris Metcalf, newly elected president of the Radio Manufacturers Association, is to "deny emphatically" a report which he said has been given wide circulation that the R. M. A. had approved Senator Dill's patent bill. The bill would void radio patents held by any company found guilty of violating antitrust laws.

There was considerable speculation with regard to Senator Dill's visit to the R. M. A. convention at Atlantic City last week. One version was that he went to the seashore seeking the indorsement of his bill by the radio manufacturers.

The prize suggestion of the year is that of Dr. W. R. Whitney, director of research at Schenectady, who, by means of radio waves, proposes to heat the bodies of the occupants of a building without heating the building.

"Why heat a whole building when all that is necessary is to heat the occupants?" Dr. Whitney inquires. "Why heat thousands of cubic feet merely to keep a body warm?"

"RADIO has made a whispering gallery of the world," Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, remarked recently.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, June 11.

HE said American women's feet were larger than French women's! How-w-w-w-w-w! Shrie-e-e-ek! Tear hair. And think of all the nice little American ladies who read that and believed it!

Oh, sure, he was an American, 'nif he ever were in Paris I guess he didn't see any further than the end of his nose. Not being a woman, of course he didn't have to go through the agony of having to wear French shoes—that made your feet look two sizes larger than they really were, if your feet were American feet! And if he ever indulged in the relaxing and philosophy inviting pleasure of sitting in one of the smart cafes on the Champs Elysees and separating the chaff from the wheat in the chic-and-not-chic feet that tripped by, he would have discovered that the only really well-formed, proportioned, aristocratic and smart feet in the world belong to American women. All American women who have been for three or four generations American have beautiful feet and legs!

But French feet, ankles and legs! I tell you, even the aristocratic French woman herself admits their deplorable deficiency, whereas the great French middle class doesn't even try to do anything but laugh with you at her pedal extremities.

Well, the nice-man-who-had-to-write-something-to-fill-up-his-newspaper-column needs to do a little research work on the matter of pedal beauty. Honestly there ought to be a law against letting anything that is written on the typewriter by newspaper columnists be printed.

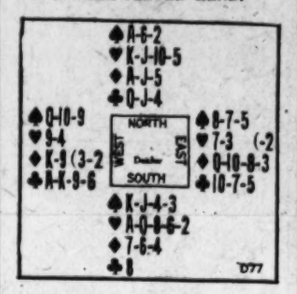
WORK ON BRIDGE

A WELL-PLAYED HAND.



In Auction South would have been the Declarer with a contract of two or three Hearts, depending upon whether West bid up to three Clubs; but the game was Contract and South bid one Heart, West two Clubs and North four Hearts.

West's first lead would be the King of Clubs, and he would be in a trying situation when he came to lead to trick 2. With the Club Four in dummy and the Trey and Deuce in West's hand, East's Five can not be the beginning of a "come on" signal and East must have two more or no more. If the former, South has no more Clubs; a second lead would be ruffed and a good Club established. If East has no more Clubs, South has two more and West would be anxious to lead two more rounds, cashing his Ace and giving East a ruff.

West can not be sure concerning the Club distribution. South may have false-carded the Eight from 10-8-7; but with that holding he would be apt to play the Ten to make his false-carding more emphatic. So West's best guess is that his partner had three Clubs originally and South only one. As South has bid Hearts and dummy has four Hearts, East must be short, so the probability is that South rather than East is short in Clubs.

Assuming that South has no more Clubs, what should West lead? King and one Diamond is an unattractive suit to start, and the Spade Ace in dummy suggests that a Spade lead might be up to King-Jack in the South hand (the actual situation). A trump lead looks harmless as the trump strength in dummy makes it clear that no sacrifice of a trump honor in partner's hand would result; however, a trump lead would be playing Declarer's own game. So West returns to a consideration of the Diamond lead.

If South has the Queen of Diamonds, it is not likely that Declarer will lose a Diamond; but if East has that card, a Diamond is apt to be West's best lead. West led the King of Diamonds to trick 2, dummy won, the trumps were exhausted, and the Spade finesse tried. West won and led a second Diamond which resulted in one Club, two Diamonds and one Spade for East and West. Had West led a trump to trick 2, the Spade finesse would have been tried and lost; but dummy would discard a Diamond on South's thirteenth Spade and Declarer would lose only one Diamond trick.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Will you kindly tell me how often to water a periwinkle plant? Also, a snake plant. DOROTHY H.

If planted in a pot, water your periwinkle every day. If planted in the garden water it only every other day. Keep in mind that it is a shade-loving plant. Water a snake plant, if you mean the sansevieria, every other day and keep it in the sun.

I am inclosing a leaf from a plant which I have heard called the Christmas begonia. It blooms the entire year. Lately my plant has become covered with insects. Please tell me how to combat these pests.

MRS. W. B. H.

Spray your plant every third day with cold, soapy water and you will soon get rid of the red spiders or the mealy bugs.

Most of the fronds on my fern are unfolding with wee marks on them. Am inclosing a leaf to show you what I mean. Please tell me what these specks may be. EDITH A. S.

The marks on the back of the frond you sent me were seed cases (spores). They indicate a perfectly healthy plant, so do not disturb them.

I usually have nice hollyhocks the first of the season, but a little they begin to turn black, thou can see no insects. Please te how to overcome this. MRS. I.

Hollyhocks that are grown a ber of years in the same pla subject to rust. It causes little ble, however, among vigorous plants. A mixture of lime and phur blown under the leaves will vent any serious outbreak. Bordea mixture is also effective. Much of th trouble with rust is eliminated if th seed is sown in August instead spring.

Please tell me what to do for in sects on golden glow. MRS. L. S.

Usually the forceful stream fro the garden hose will rid these plant of insects. If this treatment is no efficacious, try a nicotine spray.

Please tell me when to plant cann tubers. MRS JEANNETTE P.

In your locality you should hav planted canna tubers about May 1.

Please tell me how to care for cineraria that has finished flowerin MRS. PHYLLIS H.

Discard the plant at once, as it of no further use. A cineraria, bein an annual, never blooms but once.

Please tell me what is wrong wit my begonia, of which I am inclosin a leaf and flower. HATTIE R.

Your begonia is suffering from lac of fresh air. I also think you are wa tering it when the sun is shining di rectly on the foliage, and as th leaves looked like those of a plan which was getting too much wate that you are overwatering it. Whil a begonia demands a great deal o moisture, it resents what the florist term "wet feet." Never water th plant while the sun is shining di rectly on it. Keep it in the open a this season in a place where it wil get the early morning sun. Th strong afternoon sun is apt to injur it.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF June 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 1:30 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 5 a. m. to 6:30 a. m., from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

The fates will reward the brave spirit on this date—an epoch-making time is augured for the material world. Disappointing and sad news expected from the distance. Events of national interest will be broadcast.

The child born on this June 12 will not be a bred-in-the-bone genius of any kind, but will develop into a capable, self-sustaining, normal being. It will be of a type which will make practical use of a good education. Its disposition will be an enviable one.

A tolerant mind and a great bump of humor are the two things about you which stand to the forefront. The former helps to make you an understanding person and an unprejudiced one. "Live and let live" might be your motto. You do not easily forget to try on the other fellow's shoes before making a final judgment. When others clear the tension of a bad moment by crying or cursing, you turn the would-be tragedy into comedy with a laugh. It is not that you are heartless, but a sprightly, cheery spirit dwells within you.

Your life, from choice, will be an active one—activity makes for your happiness. You have a well organized mind, and are a logical reasoner. You do not scatter your forces to the winds, but control and direct them so that you have worth-while returns. You have definite ambitions and dreams, and you work hard for their fulfillment. Money is not the most important thing in life to you, or to make it is not your chief consideration. You do not live to work, but you work to live.

You are a stanch believer in home life, and you enjoy simple tastes and pleasures. You a live, sensible, happy being. You attract good fortune toward you through right thinking, and living.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Infidelity.

SEVERAL stern ladies have written me strong letters this week about infidelity. They are very much surprised to see me "defend it in the public press." They could not be more surprised than I would be to see myself defend it in the public press or elsewhere. So I hunted back to see where, when, how, &c., and found that I had told a young wife whose husband had been flirting with a young teacher that in her place I would not consider our love over. The stern ladies say I am a most improper person and should be censored and suppressed.

Is it wicked to tell a young wife the truth about marriage. After all we, every one of us, know that a man can love his wife and still be an idiot on impulse or temporarily. And we all know that you can't kill love so easily that a wife could never forgive a silly episode, no matter how exasperating.

The two people whose conduct was under discussion had not gone further than a sort of simpering interest in each other, and the husband, very foolishly I think, had confided the whole matter to his wife, asking her to remove temptation by letting the fair boarder in their home move to the hotel.

Personally I think his "confession" is harder to forgive than his two-penny adventure. A husband should be able to find his way about alone, meet his problems and his wife's too, instead of tugging at her apron strings to have his burnt fingers kissed and his love life analyzed.

There is no sense in defending infidelity or rain or sunstroke or any of those things. They are beyond argument. They just are. But when some one very young seems to believe that infidelity or sunstroke place the victim beyond the pale of human acceptance, seems to me that some one ought to come forward with a little sanity.

Why should two people who have been happily married for years, suddenly wrench themselves apart, tear themselves up by the roots, suffer and agonize, simply because one or the other has momentarily loitered by the way to gaze upon some passing stranger? Is it sound reasoning? Does it help?

About everybody I know has been divorced more than once. I can not see that second choices are any better than first, or that divorce does much or anything except invite nervous breakdowns. If people love each other they suffer in punishing each other, especially unjustly. And I believe it unjust to punish a husband by leaving him, because he has acted like an idiot. Perhaps that is because in my opinion acting like an idiot is second nature to man. In any case I do not defend infidelity when I advise a wife to ignore a man's childish attempt to be a Barrymore, especially when the attempt lands him at her feet in tears.

What is this marriage business anyway that we expect such miracles in its name? Human beings have a most distressing way of doing the things nature seems to expect them to do, and I for one am through expecting them to walk over nature's dead body, to prove something or other.

I apologize for shocking stern ladies, but I hope I'm censored and suppressed both, if I ever tell a wife to leave a man she lovees, just because he cries on her shoulder and tells her he's been making eyes at the school teacher. If that be treason, it's at least sense.

"Although I am only 22 years old I have four babies to care for. Before my first baby was born my mother urged me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so terribly weak. I had to lie down four or five times a day. After three bottles I could feel a great improvement. I still take the Vegetable Compound whenever I need it, for it gives me strength to be a good mother to my family. I will write to any woman about it."—Mrs. Vern L. Dennings.

MOSQUITO, MALARIA CONTROL.

THE story of mosquitoes and malaria control in the Philippines was told by Dr. Victor Heiser and Dr. Fajudo, health director of the islands. Gen. Leonard Wood summoned Dr. Heiser to his office, saying to him, "I notice that 35,000 people died in this country from malaria last year. That must be stopped." Dr. Heiser replied that he did not know how it was to be done. To this Gen. and Dr. Wood said, "It has been done in Panama. It must be done in the Philippines." Dr. Heiser replied, "Conditions are different in the Philippines, and a method suitable for the local situation would have to be studied out." "Get to work on the problem," was the order which followed.

The first observation was that there was almost no malaria among people who stayed in the swamps and other low grounds. The next was that the only people who had malaria were those who were exposed between midnight and day. The third was that the ordinary mosquitoes did not carry malaria. The next problem was to find a "hill billy" mosquito which did not bite until near midnight and which was capable of spreading malaria. In this they were successful. In the foothills of the islands there are many springs, the water of which is fairly cold and clean. Breeding in these waters was the guilty mosquito. This mosquito found the foothill's spring water of just the right temperature and degree of cleanliness and containing just the food needed for her larvae. On the other hand, the swamp waters were too warm, too stagnant and did not contain the right larva food. This mosquito never sucked blood until around midnight. It met every requirement of the bill of particulars.

A volunteer permitted himself to be bitten. He went to bed with the mosquito bar removed from around his bed. About midnight the mosquitoes appeared. When they began feasting the bar was dropped over the bed. The gorged mosquitoes seemed happy and contented for an hour or two. Then they began to grow restless. By 3 o'clock they were seeking a way to escape. Just before daylight they became frantic, plunging against the bars in their wild efforts to escape. Thus it seems that the original alarm clock was not the crying baby. It was the "hill billy," malaria-carrying, Filipino mosquito.

ST. VITUS' DANCE.

J. B. writes:

1. From what source does St. Vitus' dance spring?

2. Is it curable?

3. To what would you attribute the following symptoms: A sharp twitching of, first, the leg and then the right foot and arm; speech slightly impeded, a slight hesitancy and drawling being noted.

The child in question is 12 years of age and is a normal, healthy girl.

REPLY.

1. St. Vitus' dance is a combination of an infection with rheumatism microbes, with anemia.

2. Rest, tonics and rheumatism treatment generally cure it. Relapses occur frequently.

3. This history does not suggest St. Vitus' dance. It suggests hysteria.

HEAVIEST 1930 DROP HITS STOCK MARKET

Long List of 4-to-12-Point Losses Appear as Many Issues Touch Lows.

CLOSING COVERING FAILS

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Weakness was the dominant note in the speculative markets today. On the New York Stock Exchange values melted away rapidly before another bear onslaught that brought out the sharpest recessions since last December, dumping scores of issues into new low ground for the year and piling up a long list of 4 to 12-point net losses, despite a late covering movement. The more prominent commodities, notably wheat, corn and cotton, declined. Foreign exchanges were rather heavy. Sterling Cables touching a new 1930 minimum.

The selling of stocks had some of the aspects of a rout in the last hour when the shorts, pressing a technical advantage, broke through the resistance points of many leading shares, including American Can, U. S. Steel, New York Central, General Electric and American Telephone. It was apparent early in the day that the hasty retreat of the bears in yesterday's late trading had reduced the short interest, for the continuation of Tuesday's final rally was extremely feeble at today's opening and from then on the list became increasingly susceptible to operations for the decline.

Although the market is less inclined to take its cue from the day's news, those who follow outside events found little that was particularly encouraging. There was, however, a belief that the flotation of the $98,250,000 American portion of the young plan loan to Germany, which has been hanging over the financial community for several months, would prove beneficial in that, with it out of the way, bankers might take a less passive attitude toward stocks. The terms of the issue—5½ per cent 35-year bonds offered at 90—had been accurately forecast in advance. A lively inquiry for the bonds was reported by members of the banking syndicate sponsoring the loan.

Steel Output Again Sags.

The iron and steel trade reviews could find little of a favorable nature in the current situation except the enormous demand for pipe. Iron Age put the operating ratio for the industry at 69 per cent, down 3 per cent from last week. Seasonal reaction, it said, was becoming increasingly evident, but it added that leaders of the industry whose forecasts have proved accurate in the past predicted the appearance of a gradual expansion in business within a month or two. Iron Trade Review said prices had not gained strength appreciably, but were less irregular.

One of the largest of the chain grocery systems reported a 7.55 per cent increase in the dollar volume of its May sales over May, 1929, notwithstanding the price of foods to the consumer were lower last month. The number of store units operated in the two periods was virtually the same.

Until midafternoon the stock market was comparatively dull, giving ground steadily but on a reduced turnover. The incessant pounding, however, wore away the support and the volume in the final hour was large, piling up a total of nearly 4,500,000 shares for the day. The ticker was about 45 minutes late.

Measured by the index for 90 stocks, the net decline was 6.4 points against 5.2 on Monday which, with the exception of a day or two early last month, had been the largest of the year. The composite for the rails went to a new 1930 low.

Short Covering Vigorous.

The short covering in the last 15 minutes before the close was vigorous. With the tape so late, bear traders were pushed to protect their profits and in many instances paid prices a few points higher than the actual closing quotations. Their operations were accelerated by the appearance of large supporting orders for U. S. Steel, among other leading issues.

Steel was one of the many stocks to make new lows for the year, it weathered the earlier liquidation fairly well, but finally broke to 160½, closing 3 points above that figure for a net loss of 3¼. New minima for the year were also touched by New York Central, Illinois Central, Erie and the St. Paul's, among the rails, by Auburn, Nash and Marmon among the motors, and by International Telephone, Pullman, Lambert, General Theaters, Bethlehem Steel and Prairie Oil in the miscellaneous list.

Stocks losing 4 to 6 points net included American Telephone, American Can, American Tobacco "B," A. M. Byers, Public Service of New Jersey, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Johns-Manville and Columbian Carbon. Specialties made their usual wide breaks, J. I. Case slumping as much as 24 points and closing only 3 above the bottom. Allied Chemical, Vanadium, Lambert, Air Reduction, Worthington Pump, Eastman Kodak, American Machine & Foundry and Houston Oil lost 7 to 12.

The decline in wheat ranged from 1⅝ to 1⅞ cents. The drop was stimulated by reports of beneficial rain in Canada and by disappointing export demand and cables.

Corn was off 1 to 1⅜ on a favorable Government weekly weather map and a bearish Missouri State report. Cotton lost 10 to 14 points. Sugar was quiet.

One of the features in the foreign exchange list was a drop of several points in the Spanish peseta.

BOND SALES ARE HIT BY IRREGULAR PACE

Prime Investment Issues in Domestic and Foreign Lists Advance.

RAIL CONVERTIBLES SAG

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—The movement of bonds in the listed market today was mixed. Prime investment issues in the domestic and foreign lists improved in price but the desultory movement of industrials and secondary rails gave the market an irregular appearance.

The turnover continued close to the pace set yesterday with the late trading bringing an encouraging tone in the best issues. Imminence of the German loan drew more attention to the foreign list particularly German issues and those of principal European governments with prices enhanced.

Bond houses reported that the German bonds to be offered tomorrow at 90 in the United States, sold readily on a when-issued basis, with the premium as high as 1 point. Bond men expect a large oversubscription of the American issue since market and credit conditions are regarded as propitious for its appearance. Reports from abroad were that the French portion had been oversubscribed three times and the Belgian and Italian allotments two times.

The weakness of stocks was reflected in the heaviness of convertible and semispeculative bonds. A market freak was the 21-point drop of General Theaters 6s on the sale of four bonds. The bond is called for payment July 1.

Boston & Maine 5s, Canadian Pacific 4s, Erie 5s, Great Northern 7s, Illinois Central 4¾s, Soo 4s, Nickel Plate 4½s, Pennsylvania 4½s, Pere Marquette 4½s, and St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s were among the railroad issues which gained from ¼ to ½ a point. Many less active issues sagged from 1 to 2 points.

Railroad convertibles, however, followed the trend of stocks together with others of the group and losses generally were about 1 point, with the turnover heavy.

Industrials moved uncertainly. A feature was the 3½-point rise of Pathe warrant 7s.

Broad trading in foreign bonds lifted the price level of many of the more active issues, and a large list figured in the dealings. German 7s gained more than a point and is close to the year's high, and other European bonds moved upward. United States Governments were firm but the price level at the closing was only slightly improved.

ACACIA MUTUAL LIFE BUSINESS AGAIN UP

SEE 1930 RECORD YEAR

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Further progress in the volume of new business acquired is reported for the month of May by the Acacia Mutual Life Association, whose home offices are located here. During that period new business totaled $5,834,395, as compared with $5,649,068 for the same month of 1929.

Even more remarkable than this record, according to Acacia officials, is the fact that during May new business exceeded that of April by more than $500,000. April had been designated "special protection month," and concentrated efforts were put forth to establish a notable record. Despite the unusual activity during April, the Acacia field force continued to seek new records, and, with the acquisition of $5,834,395 of new business, were successful.

In the opinion of Acacia officials, the records established during April and May are outstanding proof that the business is available and that, despite general conditions which may be considered somewhat below normal, individual organiations can go forward if sufficient efforts are put forth. With the first five months of the year witnessing the establishment of new records, the organiation is confident that the full year 1930 will prove unusually satisfactory.

National Mortgage Dividend.

James P. Schick, president of the National Mortgage & Invetsment Corporation, 1004 Vermont avenue northwest, has announced that at the last meeting of the board of directors of that corporation a dividend will be payable July 1, 1930.

This is the first dividend declared by this company since July, 1927. Owing to the greatly depressed real estate market, the corporation was required to take in many properties on which it held mortgages, which action caused it to become in a badly "frozen" condition and made its capital nonproductive.

The whole general condition of this corporation is vastly improved which is indicated by the declaring of this dividend. The entering of the dividend field by this corporation also seems to indicate an improvement in the local real estate condition.

East Washington Bank Aids.

Walker, first vice president; Lewis Riemer, second vice president; S. Wilson Earnshaw, secretary-treasurer; Walter H. Marlow, jr., attorney.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 11 (A.P.).—Something of a break in drought conditions on the Canadian prairies, together with New York stock market disturbance, accompanied sharp downturns in wheat prices today. From the outset, prospects of relief from the moisture scarcity that has been impeding wheat crop progress in Canada counted as a bearish factor, and this influence was augmented more and more by the action of securities. Wall street rallies coming chiefly after wheat dealings were at an end. The United States Government crop report was practically ignored, notwithstanding that the condition of spring wheat was the lowest with only six exceptions since 1867.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsteady at almost the day's bottom level, 1⅞ to 2 cents lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅝ to 1⅛ cents down, oats ¼ to ⅝ cent off, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Speculative sellers of wheat were a little more active today than of late, but dearth of buyers rather than pressure to sell was the main apparent reason for price drops. Rains in parts of domestic spring wheat territory supplemented the market effect of Canadian downpours, and field experts reported that much domestic spring wheat territory showed good stand and color, with the plants well stooled and sufficient moisture for the present. Besides unsettlement of stock market values, a disconcerting circumstance affecting friends of higher prices for wheat was that the companion breadstuff, rye, was suffering from stoploss selling on the part of holders, and had tumbled down today to a new bottom price record for the season, 21½ cents a bushel lower than corn.

Adding to the weakness of the wheat market here, and of all other grain as well, was news that barley at Winnipeg was selling at less than 1 cent a pound, bringing only about half the price prevailing for corn in Chicago. The Winnipeg selling of barley was ascribed to the Canadian Growers' Pool, and carried the commodity down to a new low level for the crop year to date, about 12½ cents per bushel under oats prices at Winnipeg. During most of the day, export demand for North American wheat appeared to lack volume, but late estimates were that 800,000 bushels had been taken, including some hard winter wheat from the United States.

Corn and oats were affected largely by the action of wheat and by favorable advices about the progress of feed crops.

Provisions averaged lower, influenced by grain weakness.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Indian Refining; Congoleum-Nairn.

M. F. S.—Will you kindly inform me regarding Indian Refining and Congoleum-Nairn?

Answer—Both these stocks, being nondividend payers, are purely speculative and are not to be regarded in the nature of investments. For the year ended December 31, 1929, Indian Refining Co. reported net income of $825,477, equivalent to 66 cents a common share, compared with $651,892, or 66 cents a share, on a smaller capitalization in 1928.

The increase reflected the success of the perfected new oil refining process. Net income of Congoleum-Nairn for year ended December 31, 1929, amounted to $2,213,831, against $1,462,046 in 1928, earnings being equivalent to $1.28 per common share in 1929 and to 83 cents per common share in 1928.

Several Stocks.

Miss M. E. A.—How do you look upon Indian Territory Illuminating Oil stock as an investment; also General Italian Edison Electric Corporation? Do you advise buying the 5 per cent convertible gold debentures offered by Cities Service Co.?

Answer—Indian Territory Illuminating Oil Co. reported net income for fiscal year ended October 31, 1929, equivalent to 43 cents a share, compared with 76 cents a share in previous fiscal year. Dividends of 3 cents per share have been paid in last two fiscal years. Notwithstanding this, the stock can not be regarded as suitable for employment of investment funds, even though the company, as a large producer of oil and gas in Oklahoma, appears to have quite a promising future, especially as it is controlled by Cities Service Co., through Empire Gas & Fuel Co. of Delaware.

Considering that an initial dividend of $2.60 was paid April 10, 1929, on the American shares of General Italian Edison Electric and that another dividend of $2.62 was paid thereon April 21, 1930, these shares, at prevailing prices, have quite a little attractiveness. While this column never advises the purchase of any security, it may be said that Cities Service convertible debenture 5 per cent bonds appear quite desirable as an investment, considering that they have until 1950 to run, that they may be converted between December 1, 1930, and June 1, 1931, into common stock at $27.50 a share and that the conversion privilege, even though on a higher basis, does not expire until December 1, 1935.

Foreign Bonds.

J. O'M.—I have noticed your reply to E. D. S. in The Post regarding foreign bonds. Will you please give me the list of bonds which you state are preferable to those of foreign governments?

Answer—Among the bonds of corporations in this country that are considered preferable to those of the general run of foreign governments, and which combine both safety and substantial income yield, may be named: American Agricultural Chemical convertible 5½s, Texas Corporation convertible 5s, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad convertible 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern Railway convertible 4¾s, Standard Oil of New Jersey debenture 5s, Brooklyn Edison Co. general 5s, Niagara Falls Power Co. first and consolidated 6s and General Motors Acceptance debenture 6s.

Houston Oil.

W. F. H.—I am a stockholder in Houston Oil and would like any information you may have concerning it. What are the prospects of the Houston Oil Pipe Line Co.?

Answer—The pipe line subsidiary, which is wholly owned by the Houston Oil Co. of Texas, is expanding in the Gulf Coast territory by the construction of auxiliary lines. Houston Oil operated at a loss equivalent to 14 cents a share on the common in the first quarter, as against a loss of 64 cents for the same period last year. Earnings of the Houston Pipe Line Co., the subsidiary, were equivalent to $2.83 per share, as compared with $2.44 for the same time in 1929. Houston Oil pays no dividends, but there have been rumors for some time linking the company with the Columbia Gas & Electric in a huge natural gas project. Nothing official, however, has been intimated.

BANK FOR INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENTS, TRUSTEE.

A cumulative sinking fund, computed to be sufficient to retire the entire issue at or before maturity, is to be applied to the purchase of Bonds at or below 100% and accrued interest if available, or otherwise to the redemption at that price of Bonds drawn by lot.

Redeemable at 100% and accrued interest upon not less than 45 days' previous notice, on June 1 of any year through the sinking fund, and on June 1, 1935, and yearly thereafter in amounts of not less than $7,500,000 principal amount at the option of the Government.

Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100.

Principal and interest payable in New York City at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in United States gold coin of the standard of weight and fineness existing on June 1, 1930, without deduction for any German taxes, present or future.

Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, Minister of Finances of the German Reich, has furnished the following facts regarding the German Government International 5½% Loan 1930, a more complete statement being printed in a circular dated June 12, 1930:

The payment of the principal, interest and sinking fund of the Loan is the direct and unconditional obligation of the German Government to the bondholder, for which the full faith and credit of the German Government are pledged.

Principal and interest of Bonds of the United States of America issue are payable in dollars. Payment may, however, at the option of the holder, be effected on any foreign market where any of the Bonds of the Loan are quoted in the currency of that market at the then current rate of exchange, as set forth in the General Bond of the Loan.

These Bonds constitute part of the German Government International 5½% Loan 1930, which is to provide an aggregate effective amount equivalent to approximately $300,000,000 by the issuance of portions of the Loan (in bonds of various currencies, all of equal rank, without priority of any bond over any other as to the payment of principal, interest or sinking fund) in the following countries and in the following principal amounts: United States of America, $98,250,000; France, 2,515,000,000 francs; Great Britain, £12,000,000 sterling; Holland, 73,000,000 florins; Sweden, 110,000,000 kronor; Switzerland, 92,000,000 Swiss francs; Germany, 36,000,000 reichsmarks; Italy, 110,000,000 lire; Belgium, 35,000,000 belgas.

Two-thirds of this Loan represents the capitalization of a portion of the unconditional annuities payable by Germany according to the New Plan, and the proceeds thereof will be paid to the Bank for International Settlements for the account of the Creditor Powers concerned. The remaining one-third of the proceeds of the Loan will be utilized by the German Government to provide for requirements of the German Railway Company and the German Post Office and Telegraphs.

The German Government International 5½% Loan 1930 is authorized by Law of March 13, 1930, and by Law of May 30, 1930, enacted by the German Reich. The Loan is issued in conformity with the New Plan adopted by The Hague Agreement and with the Mobilization Agreement, both of January 20, 1930, between Germany and the signatory Creditor Powers, which Agreements were ratified by the above-mentioned Law of March 13, 1930, and, for the purpose of issuing the Bonds of this Loan, the German Government has executed its General Bond to the Bank for International Settlements as Trustee. The Hague Agreement, between Germany and the signatory Creditor Powers, states "the New Plan is definitely accepted as a complete and final settlement, so far as Germany is concerned, of the financial questions resulting from the War."

For further particulars, reference is made to the more detailed statement printed in the circular, a copy of which may be obtained upon application. The Bank for International Settlements has taken note of such statement and has agreed to act as trustee for the bondholders.

THE ABOVE BONDS ARE OFFERED FOR SUBSCRIPTION, SUBJECT TO THE CONDITIONS STATED BELOW, AT 90% AND ACCRUED INTEREST, TO YIELD 6.20% TO MATURITY.

SHARKEY AND SCHMELING A WAITING GONG TONIGHT

BRAXTON NATS' HERO IN 2-1 CHICAGO WIN; CUT LEAD OF MACKS

Southpaw Succeeds Hadley in 8th and Averts Defeat.

Figures in Decisive Run in 9th; Hayes Stars at Bat.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 11.—Garland Braxton was the hero of this afternoon's 2 to 1 victory of the Nationals over the White Sox in the opening game of the series here. The slim southpaw not only pulled out of a dangerous situation in the eighth when relieving Irving Hadley, but also was credited with driving home the Nats' winning marker in the ninth frame. By their victory, the Nats reduced to a game and a half the lead of the Mackmen, who lost to the Indians, 6 to 2.

The final inning, by the way, was packed with excitement for followers of both teams. With one out, Jack Hayes, subbing for Judge at first, cracked out his third single of the game and Spencer followed with another, which sent Jack to third. Braxton was allowed to bat for himself and he shot a hot one at Cissell. The latter fumbled the ball temporarily, but recovered in time to force Spencer midway. Kerr tried for a double play, but Braxton managed to beat the peg to first by a small margin. Meanwhile, Hayes was "carrying the mail" home for the Johnsons.

Nats Given Scare In Ninth.

The Sox did not give up, however, giving the Nats a scare in their final turn at bat. With one out, Kamm doubled to left. After Autry, up for Crouse, fouled to Spencer, Hunnefield, hitting for Henry, coaxed a pass. With only a single needed to tie the string and a double to give the Sox victory, Kerr rolled to Cronin, who tossed to second for a force play to end the game.

Hadley pitched brilliantly until he suddenly faltered in the eighth. Until this stage he had allowed but two hits, had fanned four, and had kept his four passes scattered. He reminded one of the cow which gave a good bucket of milk and then kicked it over. In round eight he had the Nats in a most precarious position when he was removed.

Judge's bat was not missed today, as Hayes, his substitute, led both teams, getting three clean singles, with Spencer, Cronin and Loepp playing second fiddle with two each. Rice, who had extended a second long consecutive-game hitting streak to seventeen games, saw this snapped. The Chisox obtained but five hits all told and managed to put more than half of them to good use.

So effective was Hadley that not a Bushman got past first in the first six innings and it was not until the sev-

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

Special to The Washington Post.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 11.—Goose Goslin, who surely is in need of hits, was the victim of a highway robbery act by Bud Clancy in the first inning. He got a mile-a-minute grasser down the first-base line which had "hit" written all over it. Clancy did not take time to read the label, however, dashing over to the foul line and snaring the ball on a half bounce with his bare hand. It was a lucky but brilliant stab.

Kerr opened the game for the Sox by shooting a liner for which Shortstop Joe Cronin did not have to move to gather in.

Hadley discovered a new way to get out a batter in the second. With Cissell on first and heading for second, the Nat pitcher hit Jeffrey's bat and then gobbled up the resultant roller to end the inning with a peg to first.

Neither team made a hit until the third inning today. Then Hayes led off with a one-baser to left, but died at third and Henry singled for the Chisox, only to be left at first.

In round three Cronin turned in a pretty play when he raced to short left center for Kerr's lazy looper.

Evans Shares Golf Medal With 71

Makes a Spectacular Finish at Columbia, Tying Peacock.

Has Card of 35-36; 78 Qualifies for Title Flight.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WITH a spectacular finish rarely equaled in this or any other section where golf is played, W. Carlton Evans, of the Columbia Club, yesterday with a card of 35—36—71 tied for the low medal score in the qualifying round of the Columbia Club annual spring invitation tournament.

On Tuesday, the first day of the qualifying round, Roger Peacock, Indian Spring, also had scored 35—36—71 and all day long this card had stood unbeaten, despite the assaults of William R. Howell, Middle Atlantic champion, who lost out because he had nine 5s on his card; Miller B. Stevinson, District amateur champion, and many other leading golfers. Then, like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, came Evans with another 71 to threaten the crown which seemed to be securely resting on Peacock's youthful brow.

Scores Birdie Three On First Hole.

When Evans, who started with an 18-inch putt for a birdie 3 on the first hole, had played the first nine in 35, par figures, despite the fact that he had taken 6 on the long fifth when he had over-approached the green, and when he started home with pars on the tenth and eleventh and a birdie 4 on the twelfth, he seemed to be burning up the course. However, he took three putts on the thirteenth for a 5, but he compensated for this error by running down a 15-foot putt for a 2 on the short sixteenth. He had then played 62 strokes and needed only two pars to finish with 70 and win the medal.

When he sliced his drive on the seventeenth and when his second shot hit the back of the trap and fell back in the sand, his chances lessened, especially when his third shot was just out of the trap. However, he laid his fourth shot dead and holed out in 5.

Even then, he needed a par 4 on the last hole to tie with Peacock and he secured this in most unusual fashion.

Uses Putter on Trap Shot.

Evans' second shot—a pushed shot with a spoon—landed his ball in the right-hand trap. A large gallery, many of whom had wagered that Peacock's 71 would not be beaten, watched Evans as he descended into the trap, not with a niblick but with a putter in his hand. With this unorthodox club for trap shots, he cleverly chipped the ball out of the bunker and landed it within 15 inches of the cup. Then he holed out his four for a 71 and tied the medal score.

There were five ties at 78 for two places in the championship flight, and the coveted positions were won

Miss Dunham, Deck Wi nCity Net Title

Josephine Dunham added to her ever-increasing list of tennis honors yesterday by pairing with Pat Deck to win the mixed doubles championship of the City of Washington tournament, defeating Phoebe Moorhead and Joe Rutley on the Rock Creek courts by scores of 6—2, 8—6. Miss Dunham only recently had won the singles title in the Washington tourney and before that had captured the George Washington University women's championship.

German Asks Only Fair Chance

Max Says He Does Not Care Who Is Named Referee.

Not Interested in Who Will Be Referee, Says Max.

By MAX SCHMELING
(As Told to Jimmy Powers).

NEW YORK, June 11.—I fight for the championship of the world tomorrow night and I will weigh 185, 186 or 187 pounds. I do not care who will be the referee. I am not interested in who will be the judges. I am a young man, 24 years old, and this is my first big shot. Sharkey has been up there before and he has failed. That gives me much courage. I am, I have been told, a 5-to-8 shot. I would rather be the underdog.

I do not hate Jack Sharkey. I do not even think of him as somebody I must punish or maim or scar or knockout. A doctor does not get nervous before he cuts some one in an operation. That is his business. My business is fighting.

I am not nervous. I am not stale. I have less to worry about with an orthodox boxer like Sharkey, whose blows come correctly, than I had with that fine but crazy-punching Paulino Uzcudun and that swarming, mauling Risko. There is less strain on me than there is on Sharkey. If I lose, I am young, and they will give me another chance, if I make a mistake, to fight my way up there again next year. If Sharkey loses——?

Inspired to Win By Dempsey.

I have wanted to win the title ever since five years ago when I boxed with Jack Dempsey in Berlin in a gymnasium and he patted my shoulder and told me I could win it.

I will be outweighed maybe 15 pounds, but I think that is good and an advantage. I can move my weight faster if I am lighter. I expect it to be a punishing fight. I will be thinking that here is the only man who stands now between me and my life goal, and it will spur me on to fight better and harder and more desperately than I did against the other men who put me in this spot.

Both my hands are sound. I have no strained back muscles. My legs are springy and my lip cut has completely healed. I do not believe in training to an edge or a fine point. If the fight is postponed on account of rain the wait will not upset me. I have prepared for that.

Asks Fair Play From American Public.

I do not want to talk about the championship until I win it. I trust the American public will give me fair play and an even chance. It always has. I do not forget that I am a German and was one of the enemy, and I am grateful to be allowed to fight here.

I fought Paulino and I did not have money to buy good clothes or good food. I was impressed by his great record and the great crowd that would see me. I beat him and then realized that the big boxers are only human after all.

I beg you all to think of me only as a young German athlete far from his fatherland fighting in a strange country. I am human, too. I make mistakes, maybe, and if I win I will be very glad.

Besten wuensche und dankeschoen.

NEW YORK IN GRIP OF TITLE BOUT FEVER WITH AMERICAN REIGNING 9-TO-5 CHOICE; 70,000 FANS LIKELY TO NET $750,000 GATE

Pegler Fears Boston Fighter Is Only a Front Runner.

German Has Edge in Aggressiveness and Determination.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight prize fighter, rode into New York this afternoon on the Lackawanna Railroad, Phoebe Snow's old line, to keep a date with Jack Sharkey and, you might say, with his future and his destiny. He and Sharkey will fight fifteen rounds, no more, but perhaps fewer, in the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night.

They expect to draw at least $700,000, and maybe as much as $800,000, but, whatever the gate receipts may be, they will divide 50 per cent equally between them, minus certain small deductions. Furthermore, each young man will be expected to refund a donation to the milk fund, as this is customary, although Schmeling neglected to drop any money on the drum when he fought Paulino Uzcudun on the same occasion last year.

Schmeling Still Wears Own Name.

Sharkey was born in Binghamton, N. Y., of Lithuanian parents named Cuckoschay or Zukowski, or some similar jumble of sounds, with the coo-coo sound predominating, and Schmeling was born in Klein-Luckow, Pommern, North Germany, under the name he still wears.

Sharkey is about 4 years older than Schmeling, who is 24, and he seems much thicker about the waist, not with flabby folds of slack and suet, but with the natural fleshy deposit of maturity. He is the better boxer and the bigger man, with an advantage of perhaps a dozen or 15 pounds, and he has had much more experience against first-class opponents than Schmeling, who has met only two first-rank men, beating both. These were Johnny Risko, whom he knocked out in nine rounds, and Paulino Uzcudun, whom he outpointed in fifteen rounds.

Sharkey Emotional And Erratic.

Schmeling is very cool and self-controlled, although by no means phlegmatic, but Sharkey is emotional and erratic and given to fits of petulance and womanish hysteria. Several times he has burst into tears in the ring for no reason that any one present could understand and it is his flighty character and his apparent lack of that quality which the horse people call class that seems to give Schmeling a chance.

The quality which the horse people call class is shown when a horse or fighter comes from behind to win or goes out in front and stays there, beating off a hard challenge. Sharkey is what the trade calls a front-runner, the idea being that he is at his best only when he is winning easily, and the conclusion being that if Schmeling goes tumbling into him and lives down Sharkey's early attack, Sharkey then will sulk and drop the initiative.

Title at Stake by Special Order.

The heavyweight championship of the world will be at stake in this prize fight by special order of the New York prize fight commissioners, who claim world-wide authority for their erratic and presumptuous judgements. In so designating this prize fight between one man with several unexpunged demerits on his record and another man with only two important victories, the prize fight commissioners probably were animated by a wish to swell the receipts for the charity. They also created a prize of at least $1,000,000 for the winner, this being the estimated minimum value of the heavyweight championship, and while the winner will be unworthy, the burden of providing the million will be distributed among many voluntary customers.

The name of the winner will be inscribed on the shaft of the Tunney-Muldoon Trophy, the symbol of the heavyweight championship. This is a bronze piece which stands, like a useless Christmas present, in the lobby of the new Garden, whose stockholders,

THE NEXT WORLD CHAMPION

MAX SCHMELING OR JACK SHARKEY.

Boxers Reticent, Managers Blatant in Prebattle Views

NEW YORK, June 11 (A.P.).—The warriors bold and their managers—even bolder but in less danger—weighed in tonight with predictions which, if all were correct would result in both Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey winning the heavyweight championship tomorrow night. Said Schmeling:

"Never before any of my ring encounters have I told any one I would win or predicted what would happen to my opponent. I am not going to change this custom, or violate this rule if you care to call it such, before this, my most important contest.

"I am fit. I am confident. I hope for the best. I know I will not disgrace my country and my race. I present my compliments to Jack Sharkey, extend him the hand of good sportsmanship, hope for a fair, square standup match in which both loser and winner will acquit themselves manfully and may the best man win."

Joe Jacobs, manager of the German heavyweight, was more violent about it.

"Max Schmeling will knock out Jack Sharkey inside of ten rounds. I make no conditions. I have no 'ifs' or 'buts.' My fighter is 100 per cent better than he was last year when he knocked out Johnny Risko, who defeated Sharkey, and hammered to near helplessness Paulino Uzcudun, whom Sharkey refused to meet."

Sharkey, not to be outdone, unlimbered his proclamation to the American boxing public.

"This is the greatest fight of my life," he said.

"I feel that the responsibility of retaining a title that has become traditional to America is placed on my shoulders and I promise that I will do my utmost to win.

"Max Schmeling will find a true American facing him. He will find a man determined of victory and one who will not admit defeat until every last ounce of energy is exhausted in him.

"I have trained for this fight as never before. Max Schmeling will not win without producing the fight of a giant.

"This is not a fight between individuals. It is a battle of supremacy between the two formidable representatives of two of the largest countries in the world. This is my view of the encounter.

"My country will not find me wanting."

Johnny Buckley, the sailor's manager, was short and to the point.

"We'll knock him out in five rounds. You can go to sleep on it," he said.

Sharkey and German Arrive in City, Fit and Confident.

Jacobs Gets License to Second Schmeling in Corner.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, June 11 (A.P.).—Caught in the fever grip of another heavyweight championship battle, New York fussed and spluttered tonight, predicted and argued, bullied and fought for tickets—and waited restlessly for Jack Sharkey's fifteen-round duel with Max Schmeling in the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night.

Not since the late Tex Rickard, master of the ballyhoo, chewed his long stogies, tilted his gray fedora, swung his cane and maneuvered heavyweight controversies into unprecedented financial success, has usually blase Manhattan gone so completely for a championship struggle. There wasn't a seat to be bought tonight in the $13.65 and the $5 sections of the huge ball park.

The ringside benches were sold out solid as far back as 60 rows in some choice sections, and loiterers were gathering around the stadium to head the seekers after the 22,000 pasteboards that go on sale tomorrow morning at $2.

Biggest Drawing Card Since Dempsey Era.

From a mediocre start and ordinary interest, the international battle has mushroomed in the last few days into the biggest drawing card since Jack Dempsey, under Rickard's expert manipulation, fired the imagination of the faithful and drew them in swarms to the battlefields. Only the moderate scale of prices—from $2 to $26.25 tops—has prevented tomorrow's offering from scaling dizzy financial heights.

As it is the gross gate seems certain to reach $750,000, a record beaten only by Rickard with Dempsey in the featured gladiator's role. The crowd is expected to number 70,000, at much higher prices. Dempsey and Luis Firpo set the New York record for receipts at $1,188,800 in 1923, and the "man mauler's" knockout of Sharkey in 1927 drew in $1,083,000. Since then the "take" has rarely topped the $500,000 mark. Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney fought the last heavyweight championship battle here in 1928, before $600,000 worth of customers.

Sharkey Still Rules 9 to 5 Favorite.

Around Madison Square Garden the ticket agencies, speculators' stands, even in the barber shops, the bootblack stands and wherever the men folks gathered, "Who do you like?" and "Where can I get a good seat?" were the main discusions of the day. Sharkey stock withstood nicely the bear attacks of an increasingly strong band of Schmeling fanciers and closed strong, with the New England sailor still a 9-to-5 favorite. The Weather Bureau announced that the perfect sunny weather that followed rainstorms into town today would continue on through tomorrow night.

The arrival of the warriors from their training camps pitched the note of excitement still higher, but the chief development of the day was the granting of a second's license to Joe Jacobs by the New York State Athletic Commission. Jacobs, Schmeling's manager of choice, has languished beyond the pale in this State since he usurped Arthur Buelow in the pilot's role. His restoration will permit him to act as the Teuton bomber's chief second tomorrow night.

Sharkey Is Picture Of Confidence.

Sharkey, the American champion, was the picture of ease and confidence as he visited the Garden this morning after 20 minutes of road work in Central Park. He motored into town from Orangeburg last night, saw a show, and this afternoon watched the Giants battle the Pirates at the Polo Grounds.

Schmeling arrived by train from Endicott late this afternoon and was whisked away to a hideaway in the Bronx overlooking the stadium. Neither is expected to make another public appearance until the weigh-

Grove Fails to Halt Tribe And Mackmen Lose, 6 to 2

CLEVELAND, June 11 (A.P.).—Cleveland whacked one game from the Philadelphia Athletics' lead in the American League race by battering Bob Grove into his second successive defeat here today in the series opener, 6 to 2. While the Indians were finding Grove and Shores for twelve hits, Willis Hudlin effectively scattered the Athletics' ten blows.

Cleveland had the game salted away through three single-run innings, but when Shores succeeded Grove in the eighth they added three more for good measure.

The defeat of the Athletics, their second in two days, reduced their lead over the second-place Washington Club to a game and a half. The

BOBBY JONES RATED 10-1 IN BRITISH OPEN ODDS

BookiesQuote Leo Diegel At 14 to 1

Horton Smith Rated Third at 16 to 1 With Compston.

Voigt, Kirkwood and Johnston Named 50-to-1 Shots.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 11 (A.P.).—Odds posted by English golfing bookies show that the bulk of the "wise money" is being placed on Bobby Jones to win the British open.

Harry Stephens, golf professional at the Druid Hills Country Club, of Atlanta, today exhibited a quotations card received from a parimutuel company in Cardiff, South Wales, which established the odds of 10 to 1 on the newly crowned British amateur champion.

Further tribute to American golf prowess is seen in the fact that the next most feared man in the forthcoming tourney is Leo Diegel, the American professional, who is quoted at the surprisingly low odds of 14 to 1.

Third place in the betting is shared by Horton Smith, the Joplin "jigger," and Archie Compston, big English professional, at odds of 16 to 1.

Fourth place is shared by George Von Elm, former American amateur champion and Henry Cotton, English professional, who are quoted at 20 to 1.

Moe Rated at 25-1 With Mitchell.

A remarkable tribute to the showing of Don Moe, "kid" member of the American Walker Cup Team, in his first appearance in England, is given in his rating along with Abe Mitchell, strong English professional, as a 25 to 1 shot.

Sixth place in the wagering, at odds of 33 to 1, is held by Arthur Havers, and the next jump to odds of 40 to 1 lists the Americans, Jim Barnes, Francis Ouimet, MacDonald Smith and the Britisher, Cyril Tolley, C. Whitcomb and George Duncan.

Other Americna hopes are rated as follows:

Jimmy Johnston, 50 to 1; Joe Kirkwood, 50 to 1; George Voigt, 50 to 1; Al Watrous, 50 to 1; Johnny Golden, 66 to 1; Bobby Cruickshank and Ed Dudley are made 100 to 1 shots.

Jones Shoots 71 in Practice Round.

Hoylake, England, June 11 (A.P.).—American contestants in the British open golf championship next week today tried out both the Royal Liverpool and Wallasey courses. The two courses, which will be used in the qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday, are considered tests difficult enough to require the best shots in the bags of the experts.

Bobby Jones sampled the Royal Liverpool layout and returned a score of 71. His play, he said, was really bad, but the round was saved by good putting.

George Von Elm, playing with Jones, said he did nothing "to write home about."

Leo Diegel, Horton Smith and Macdonald Smith played around the Wallasey course, Mac Smith excelling his compatriots with a score of 74.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WITH the failure twice of NED O, the Maryland Hope, and the disappointment of Gallant Knight at Fairmount, the good race of the tempermental TANNERY and the impressive workout of MICHIGAN BOY has tended to shift the interest in the American Derby at Washington Park Saturday to the last two horses named.

That there will be a large field in this rich fixture there can be no further doubt, since the Eastern stars will not go West until after the running of the Dwyer Stakes in New York. Joseph McLennon, of Chicago, at present in connection with the Arlington Park meeting, sees everything rosy for the American classic at Arlington, and says it will pay the winner $70,000.

FEATURE RACE.

The best race at Washington Park today is the Gladiola Purse for 3-year-old fillies at seven furlongs. PANSY WALKER, of the Three D's Stable, is the class and will be the favorite. She is a stake winner and should win. TIPPY TOE seems to be highly regarded at this track and may be the contender. HONEY LOCUST should get in the money. GALADAY, after her failure in the Kentucky Oaks, has not held much following, but she has an outside chance.

FIRST RACE. The Rancocas Stable's LEUCITE is in a hard spot in the first race and is carrying 122 pounds, but he appears best by a shade. ILLEGITIMATE probably will be the favorite, but second seems about the best he can do. HOT SHOT may beat EQUATION for show money. There is a good deal of speed in the race.

SECOND RACE. This is for 2-year-old maiden fillies, with a large field from which to select a winner. VOLTAGREEN probably will rule the choice and seems to have the edge, with ENTICE the contender. REST EASY has the call on third. WATER PORT is another that will have a following.

THIRD RACE. The third race seems easier. PORTMANTEAU has been rounding to winning form and is selected for the important money over VALDOSTA. GARNISH also has a chance and has been tabbed for third money. PLAY BALL may not do so well on a fast track.

FOURTH RACE. Just a large field of platers, most any one of which has a chance. PRICKLEY HEAT seems best. THEO RED is rated the contender with BOYISH BOB or THEORIST JANE as the show horse.

CHEERS is well placed in the sixth race for 3-year-olds with allowances. There is a good field in the event and BELLE RIVE is rated the next best, with a good chance for DARK ENTRY, probably best of all, but not racing now to top form.

FRIEDJOF NANSEN is a very consistent plater and will win the seventh if his legs are in good condition. He suffers from lameness, but always does his best. COTTAGE BOY should improve over his last race. RAY RUDDY has a chance with this sort.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THAT'S IT, $10.12, $6.42, $4.92; SHIFT, $5.90, $3.80; JACK HASKELL, $4.62.

THAT'S IT, beginning forwardly, kept in close attendance of the pace and when sent up fast on the outside entering stretch, went around leaders and drew clear, but faltering in the final seventy yards, barely lasted to win. SHIFT had the most early speed, but could not keep pace with THAT'S IT when latter challenged but, having most left at end, came strongly and would have won at a slightly longer distance. JACK HASKELL closed a big gap from a slow beginning and saved ground throughout. KNOCKABOUT and ESTIN had early speed, were forward factors on outside and both went well, only weakening in final stages. WATER LAD showed a good effort. LEE COOPER dropped out of it right after start.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 2-year-olds, maidens, colts and geldings. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:56. Off at 3:01. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GARRICK, $47.48, $13.90, $8.20; BROWN HILLS, $25.76, $20.66; SPAR, $11.86.

GARRICK outpaced to the stretch, came steadily, wore down the leaders in the final furlong and got up to win in final strides. BROWN HILLS, also outrun to the stretch, closed with a rush on outside, wore down tiring horses and was up to outfinish SPAR. SPAR steadily improved his position, wore down BEIGE a furlong out and drew clear but, turning faltered near the finish. BEIGE, quick to begin, held safe lead until around the stretch turn, then weakened as if short. BURNAM was done in the stretch. KING'S X ran well for five furlongs, then gave way.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:29. Winner, Ansonia Stable's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHARM, $9.10, $5.42, $3.40; CALGARY KAY, $4.42, $3.02; CALL PLAY, $2.82.

CHARM, racing in her best form, shook off HONI SOIT passing the half-mile pole and, racing latter into defeat, drew out safely, but had to be strongly urged in final drive to hold CALGARY KAY safe. CALGARY KAY was in close pursuit of the pace throughout, finished strongly and was steadily wearing down the winner. CALL PLAY was shuffled back after the start, made up ground entering the stretch, reached contention, but tired in final stages. LOUISE WILSON, in close quarters, saved ground and went fairly well.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start bad. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:02½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LOOK AT LILLIAN, $18.14, $8.86, $5.12; MAD CAP MARVIN, $5.52, $4.52; MARGATE, $6.04.

LOOK AT LILLIAN broke fair and was far out of it first half mile, worked her way up entering stretch and, coming to outside, wore down leaders in final drive and got up in final twenty yards to win. MADCAP MARVIN, also far out of it for a half mile, closed a wide gap in third quarter and, coming fast between leaders in stretch, was up in final strides to take the place. MARGATE, reserved in early stages, came fast on inside into the lead a furlong out, but faltered slightly in a hard final drive. LADY CLARENCE made her run nearing the final turn, took command, but weakened slightly. OTILLA tired after being a factor for six furlongs.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,600. The Morrison Hotel Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:31. Winner, C. B. Irwin's ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NUSAKAN, $50.06, $18.06, $6.76; CLUB HOUSE, $21.82, $7.86; T. S. JORDAN, $4.40.

NUSAKAN, going in his best form, attended the pace closely from the start while gaining gradually, wore down T. S. JORDAN in the lead in final eighth and, under hustling tactics, outstayed CLUB HOUSE. Latter, outpaced to the final turn, came to the outside of leaders, closed a good gap and finished strong. T. S. JORDAN had high early speed, set a great pace to midway of the home stretch, but faltered when NUSAKAN challenged. KARL EITEL was outbroke, but colsed rapidly on inside in final quarter. MY DANDY evidently found his impost too great. DOUBLE HEART and WISDOM tired after showing early speed.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,400; allowances. The Chicago Heights. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:58. Off at 5:03. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WILLA, $8.58, $3.88, $3.24; DISTO, $4.12, $3.14; PLUMBAGO, $3.44.

WILLA had early speed, soon disposed of by DEDICATE and LISTO but, holding on consistently, came to the outside in stretch and wore down DEDICATE in a final drive, went into the lead and outfinished LISTO. LISTO forced the pace, but when the order failed to keep LISTO straight, lost ground, came to the inside in the final eighth and forced the winner to do her best to save the decision. PLUMBAGO, outrun for a five-eighths, gained a little in the final eighth. DEDICATE assumed the lead reaching the far turn, loomed up an easy winner entering the stretch, but faltered badly when WILLA came again. REIGH OLGA was outrun. COLONEL HENRY showed brief early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:33½. Winner, Valley Lake Stable's ch. c. (4), by Basil—Eris. Trained by J. B. Partridge. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:25 1-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:14, 1:39 4-5, 1:55 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUDDY BASIL, $8.86, $4.56, $3.78; BILLY CHAMP, $4.88, $4.56; SEARINGTON, $6.76.

BUDDY BASIL, much the best, went into command when straightened out on the back stretch and, holding the lead, was never threatened and won going away. BILLY CHAMP worked his way into contention in the first quarter, but could not overtake the winner and, though tiring at the end, outlasted SEARINGTON. SEARINGTON was taken off the early pace and, reserved until the stretch where he came through on inside and closed strongly, outgaming SPECTACULAR. SPECTACULAR, slow to find her stride, closed a lot of ground in first six furlongs, made a strong challenge at the stretch turn but hung in the final drive. DON FERNANDO could not keep up and tired badly

BLUES SCORE UPSET WIN, 7 TO 4

War Poloists Down 16th Artillery in Fine Game.

IN one of the best played polo matches of the season, the War Department Blues defeated the Sixteenth Field Artillery in a surprise victory yesterday, 7 to 4. The Blues were given a two-goal handicap but as the final result shows it would have won by one goal without the gift.

Sixteenth Field was generally picked as the winner of the Argentine Cup, the prize for which the teams are playing but the Blues displayed a superior brand of the horseback game to nose out its worthy opponent. The teams matched goals, scoring in every period but the first when the Blues scored a lone tally as the result of some unusual teamwork.

Starring honors were divided between Lieut. Benson, heroic little No. 2 man of the Artillery, and Maj. Devers, of the winners. The latter did yeoman service in helping to save the Blue goal and also fed his forwards with neat passes and placements.

Nusakan, 24-1, Wins At Washington Park

Washington Park Race Track, Ill., June 11 (A.P.).—C. B. Irwin, the Wyoming cowboy turfman, gave the talent a severe jolt today when his 5-year-old sprinter, Nusakan, captured the Morrison Hotel Handicap at odds of 24 to 1. The distance was 6 furlongs, and Nusakan conquered a band of reliable sprinters in achieving his victory. Clubhouse, another outsider, was second, and old T. S. Jordan earned the minor portion of the purse. The three-quarters was covered in 1:12 4-5.

As usual, T. S. Jordan got away from the barrier first and the ancient Peabody sprinter showed the way until midway in the stretch where Nusakan, ridden by Jockey Trenchard, chased right after him and, in the final drive to the wire, T. S. Jordan faltered, allowing Nusakan to come on and win and Clubhouse to take the place. Such crack sprinters as My Dandy and Karl Eitel never could catch the leaders. Nusakan paid $50.06 in the mutuels.

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., June 11 (A.P.).—The Queens County Jockey Club opened its summer meeting here today under ideal weather conditions, but with a slow track. The Queens County Handicap, a mile gallop, resulted in one of the prettiest finishes seen on a metropolitan track this season. The first five horses came to the wire on almost even terms and the Newtondale Stable's Kildare, 25 to 1, was winner with the Rancocas Stable's Kai Feng second and the Sagamore Stable's Balko, third. Sortie was fourth and Comstockery fifth. The race was worth $7,350 and the time was 1:38 3-5, which was real fast considering the slow condition of the track.

THE Takoma Juniors will take up the franchise of the Old Homers of Fredericksburg in the junior class of the Capital City League, it was announced last night by the league officials. The Takoma Team will meet the Lionels Sunday in their maiden contest.

The Takoma Team will take up the present standing of the Old Homers, who have scored one win in three starts. Organized late in the season, the suburban team was unable to gain a franchise in the league and has been campaigning successfully in independent ranks.

Protests pending in the various sections of the league will be heard next Monday night, it was also announced. Four teams filed protests following last week's games. Evidence will be reviewed by a protest board appointed by the league president, Col. Hjalmar Erickson, Monday night. Richard S. Tennyson, vice president of the league and a member of the protest board, will be out of the city until next Monday.

Chevy Chase Protests Rockville Game.

The Chevy Chase Grays have protested the outcome of the game with the Rockville team in the Montgomery County section of the unlimited class. The Berwyn A. Giants Rout Pirates For Ninth Straight Win

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Fred Leach, Bill Terry and Mel Ott combined to give the Giants their ninth straight victory today, defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9 to 2.

Leach and Terry contributed three hits each off the offerings of Heinie Meine and Percy Jones while Ott drove out his thirteenth home run of the season. While his mates were banging the ball to all corners of the field for 16 hits, Carl Hubbell held the Pirates to eight scattered blows for his sixth triumph of the season.

LEGION POST IS FILLED BY LYONS

Victory Post Man Appointed Athletic Officer.

E. B. LYONS, past commander of Victory Post, American Legion, yesterday was appointed athletic officer for the Department of the District of Columbia to succeed Wessal Stewart, who recently resigned that post. Mr. Lyons will assume charge of the District midget baseball series being conducted by the American Legion.

The newly appointed athletic officer has been a close follower of the legion baseball series the past two seasons, and has taken an especial interest in the promotion of teams representing Victory Post.

A meeting of athletic officers, team managers and coaches of the six teams engaged in the local legion series has been called for otmorrow night at 8 o'clock in the playground department offices in the District Building. Both the newly appointed athletic officer and his predecessor will attend this meeting, at which time Mr. Lyons will officially take over the supervision of the championship series.

George Washington To Protest.

V. M. Lawrence, manager of the George Washington Post Team, announced last night that he will protest the outcome of last Sunday's game in which his team was defeated by Sergt. Jasper Post, 3 to 1. The game was called at the end of the eighth inning due to the fact that the permit for the diamond expired before completion of the game. The George Washington Team manager claims that the game was not completed according to the rules of baseball and Sergt. Jasper Post should not be credited with a victory.

Several teams have added new players to their rosters. These boys will be eligible to play Sunday. Lincoln Post has added the names of William Moran and Wesley Beahm. George Washington Post has added William George Lewis and has release Walter James. Victory Post has signed Pete Chumbris and Harold Brockwell and has released Donald Hunt.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

take Goslin's sliced line driver in the fourth session.

Jolley walked on four successive balls starting the fourth round for the home team.

Clancy ran in a complete circle before missing Loepp's pop foul in the fifth.

Henry did not issue a pass until the fifth. Then he walked Rice to fill the bases.

It looked as though Jeffries had a hit when he lashed one down to the left of Bluege opening the home fifth, but Cronin dashed to the outer fringe of the diamond to make a good stop and peg to nail the runner at first.

After singling to open the Nats' sixth, Cronin stumbled over a match or something while rounding second on a wild pitch and Pitcher Henry picked up the ball, which had bounded off the umpire's chest protector and threw out the Nat short fielder. This cost the Nats a run, as a walk and a long single by Hayes, both of which were wasted, came later in the round.

Manager Donie Bush has shifted Jolley from the right to the left pasture, but no increase in his turtle-like speed has been noted.

Hadley threw out Kerr, Watwood and Jolley on successive bounders in the sixth.

In the Nats' seventh, with one gone, Loepp bunted down the third base line and it looked as though Jeffries had touched the ball before it rolled foul. After an argument over Umpire Dinneen's decision that the Sox third sacker had not touched the ball, the flychaser bounded one past Jeffries for a clean single.

A foul off Cissell's bat collided with one of the fingers on Spencer's bare hand in the seventh and play was halted momentarily while the Nat catcher "shook it off."

Shibe, Reach Official, Denies Balls Livelier

Philadelphia, June 11 (A.P.).—Thomas S. Shibe, vice president of the A. J. Reach Co., which manufactures all the American and National League baseballs in its plant here, today issued a statement denying that there is any difference in the balls.

Mr. Shibe, who is president of the American Baseball Club of Philadelphia, said his denial was prompted by a statement attributed to Babe Ruth that he was convinced that the balls used in the National League were livelier than those used in the American.

"Permit me in a most emphatic way to say that these two balls are exactly alike in every way, except one is sewed with black and red thread and the other with red and blue thread The quality of the thread being exactly the same," said Mr. Shibe.

"In order to get these balls absolutely uniform, for ten years past we have had our own yarn mill. We buy the same grade of wool year in and year out. The rubber and cork center is made in our own rubber plant, where the compound is exactly the same year in and year out."

MRS. MOODY BALKED BY NET CHIEF

Desire to Team With Miss Ryan Meets Objection.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 11 (A.P.).—Some difference of opinion was reported today between Helen Wills Moody, captain of the American Wightman Cup Tennis Team that meets the British here Friday and Saturday, and Louis B. Dailey, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Mrs. Moody wanted Elizabeth Ryan for her doubles partner, but Dailey felt he should not depart from the official attitude at home that America must be represented only by players engaged in the game in their own country. This, of course, bars Miss Ryan, who is livng in England.

The Moody-Ryan combination bowled over some of the best women's doubles tennis teams in the world to win the French championships recently.

Even without Miss Ryan the Americans will be favored to win the series which consists of seven matches —five in singles and two in doubles.

English Are Rated Best in Doubles.

While the English women are considered to have the better chance in doubles, Miss Wills is believed sure to win two singles matches and Helen Jacobs at least one and probably two. The other players on the American squad are Edith Cross, Sarah Palfrey and Mary Greef.

Members of both teams were busily practising today on the Wimbledon courts, where the series will be contested.

English officials have not yet decided which players to send against America's Helens, who are considered certain to be their country's No. 1 and No. 2 singles choices.

Elizabeth Ryan, although 39 years old, is recognized as one of the best women's doubles players in the world. She is the daughter of a former Mayor of Santa Monica, Calif., but for eighteen yesars has lived in England.

Miss Ryan was a member of the American Wightman Cup Team in 1926, but in that year she played in various tournaments in the United States, including the national championships.

Vance Yields 4 Hits, Reds Losing in Ninth

Brooklyn, June 11 A.P.).—With pinch hitters playing the leading roles, the Brooklyn Robins defeated Cincinnati 2 to 1 today in the first game of the series.

Dazzy Vance held the Reds to four scattered hits, but the Robins were forced to rally in the ninth to win, Pinch Hitter Lopez driving in Warner, who ran for Brassler, with the winning run. In the eighth Curt Walker, pinch hitter for Durocher, hit a home run for the only score made off Vance.

UTILITY MEN WEAKNESS OF NATS

Recall of Boss Is Likely If Trades Are Not Made.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CHICAGO, June 11.—The "Charley horse," which Capt. Joe Judge suffered in Monday's game with the Indians in Cleveland has suddenly brought Manager Walter Johnson to the realization that the Nationals' greatest weakness is in utility strength. And there is a saying in baseball that a team is no stronger than is its replacement array.

Judge was far from well when he reported to Trainer Mike Martin to have his leg retaped before today's game and, unless a miracle develops, he probably will be kept on the bench until the St. Louis series at least. This brings Jack Hayes into action at first and leaves only Jimmy McLeod, an inexperienced youngster of but 19 summers as the only other player available for infield relief work.

Should Bluege, Cronin or Myer suffer injury or be chased by an umpire for too strongly protesting a decision, the Nats would be distinctly against it. As a matter of fact, it is even questionable that Johnson would call on McLeod, the chances being that he would shift the name of Coach Patsy Gharrity to the active list, put him on first, and let Hayes fill the other vacancy.

Lack of Infielders Not Yet Felt.

Of course, one need not cross a bridge until he gets to it. So far, this lack of utility infielders has not been felt because the Nats have been fortunate in not having any of their regulars put out of commission, but the law of averages shows that there are few infielders who are not at one time or another during the season and it is most important that the Nats prepare themselves for such emergencies.

Manager Johnson's original plan was to carry Harley Boss along as Judge's understudy, leaving Hayes and McLeod available to relieve in the other positions in the inner circle. Boss, however, injured himself with the Chattanooga Lookouts dropped back in his training while under the care of the Washington Club physician, who treated him for his injury, and since has been sent on 24 hour option to the Jersey City Internationals.

This move was made in order that steady work in the minors might enable Boss to regain his best condition more quickly. His return to the Nats is not being considered at this time, especially as indications are that Judge will not be kept idle more than three or four more games.

The chances are, however, that, if the Nats are unable to pick up some infield talent on wavers before the final reducing date, usually June 15, but extended until June 16 this year, because the regular date falls on Sunday, that Boss will be recalled as soon as he shows signs of rounding to top form in Jersey City. This, at least, will give the Washington Club some added utility protection.

Today's Assignment Slated for Burke.

In the second game of this series tomorrow, Manager Johnson plans to call on Bob Burke. This young southpaw went the route and beat the White Sox when they invaded Washington last month and the Nat leader believe that he can give another dose of the same medicine. Should Bob come through, Johnson is considering promoting him to a regular starter's role. He has had this in mind for some time, and with "Sad Sam" Jones out of action, may decide to give the plan a trial. Ted Lyons has been named to start for the home gang. He will be seeking his ninth victory for the fifth time this season, having been beaten his last four starts after having quickly rung up eight triumphs.

Both teams began the current series with their regular first sackers among the missing, although the Chisox had the edge in that Bud Clancy is a veteran, while Hayes is merely a volunteer. Clancy got into action when Art (The Great) Shires was hit on the head with a batted ball and knocked cold in pregame practice before yesterday's game with the Mackmen.

NATIONALS TRIUMPH OVER CHISOX IN 9TH

enth that the Chisox threatened. Then they did so with a vengeance, having the bases loaded with only one out. Previously, only three had seen base life, all in different innings, and two of these had coaxed passes, the only home hit having been Henry's one baser with one out in the third.

One was out when the Sox staged their threat in the "stretch" session Then Cissell registered the second home single of the game, a Texas Leaguer to right, and Clancy followed with a walk. After these runners had successfully negotiated a double steal, Hadley also passed Pinch-hitter Metzler, filling the bases. Braxton was warming up ambitiously in the bullpen by this time, but Johnson decided to give Hadley a chance to dig himself out of the hole, and he did so, forcing Crouse to foul to Spencer and Henry to loft to Myer.

Meanwhile the Nationals had managed to coin but one run out of the eight hits they had garnered off of Henry's slants. This marker came after two were dead in the fourth, the result of Cronin's single and Myers' double. The White Sox southpaw was in holes in each of the next two frames, but managed to escape unscathed in both.

Three Nats Stranded In the Fifth.

In the fifth, the Nats benefited from a single by Spencer, a double by Loepp and a walk, but three were left stranded, while a bad "break" prevented the Johnsons from scoring in the next canto. Cronin opened this with a single and stumbled while rounding second on a wild pitch, being nipped before he could return. Then Bluege walked and was able to go all the way to third on Hayes' single, where he died watching Henry throw out Spencer at first.

Hadley suddenly went to pieces in the eighth and before he could be gotten out of the box the Sox had knotted the string and had men on third and first, the result of Kerr's opening double, Watwood's suicide, Jolley's triple, and a base on balls. Braxton was called on at this stage and Cissell, the first to face him, shot a hard one at Myer, which the latter turned into a double play by tagging Reynolds, heading for second, and then getting the ball to first ahead of the batter.

Then the Nats went ahead and managed to hold their slim lead.

Welsh, Seeded No. 2, Hurt, Defaults in Junior Net Play

Sprains Ankle in Fall at Home; One Upset Marks Tourney.

By JACK ESPEY.

A FORMIDABLE obstacle was removed from the path of Frank Shore, defending champion, when Barney Welsh, Western High captain and second seeded player, defaulted in the junior section of the boys' and juniors' District tennis championships yesterday at Rock Creek courts.

After it had been announced that Welsh couldn't perform owing to a sprained ankle sustained in a fall at his home the night before, Shore went out to make his position more secure by defeating Archie Rose, of Central High School, 6—0, 6—3. This placed the champion in the quarter-finals which will be held today. Worthington Williams was the beneficiary of Welsh's withdrawal.

While Shore was advancing in the junior group, Jock McLean, defending title holder among the boys, was doing likewise in his class with a 6—0, 6—1 triumph over Albert Robins, of Central.

Willis, Seeded No. 4, Bows to Carlisle.

Aside from Welsh's default, only one surprise marked the day's play. Richard Willis, of Devitt Prep, seeded No. 4, bowed to James Carlisle, of St. Alban's, 8—6, 4—6, 8—6, in the juniors.

The boys reached the semifinal stage with Gilbert Hunt, seeded; William Boyle, of Friends School, and Nathan Ritzenberg, of Cooke School, surviving along with Jock McLean. McLean's younger brother, Ned, jr., was eliminated by Boyle in a furiously contested match, 6—2, 12—10. The elder McLean simply romped through his match, serving twelve aces on Robins.

Much interest centered in the match between Nathan and Albert Ritzenberg, brothers, who are among the smallest of Washington's youthful tennis army. Albert, 11, who stands only a few inches above the top of the net, provided a sensation by taking the first set, 9—7, but he wilted under the steady driving of Nathan to drop the next two, 6—3, 6—1.

Today's schedule in the juniors brings together Shore and Johnthony Latona, Worthington Williams and Clyde Smith, and Carlisle and Joseph Dial. Lynham yesterday won by default from Paul Heins, while Latona, Smith and Dial annexed comparatively easy victories over Norris Ruckman, Bob Evans and Louis Delesdernier, respectively.

In the boys division, Jock McLean will meet Boyle, and Hunt will engage Nathan Ritzenberg. All matches will start at 4 o'clock, except the Shore-O'Hanlon affair, which is set for 5 o'clock.

Yesterday's results follow:

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 11.—The St. Mary's Celtics baseball team will journey to Fredericksburg, Va., tomorrow afternoon to play the Fredericksburg Elks. This is an annual game for the Celtics and only in the last few years have the locals been able to beat the Elks. At one time the visitors had one of the best teams in the State.

Charlie Corbett stated today that he would take his entire team on the trip in an effort to get them in better shape for their second game with the Naval Hospital Nine. The game to be played here Sunday will be for the benefit of the Joe Judge fund and one of the largest crowds of the season is expected to be on hand.

Another interesting feature will be the return of Leon Riley, popular Alexandria ball players, to the Celtic line-up after having given up the game this year on account of business. He will hold down center field for the remainder of the season. Riley will play with the local boys when they appear in Fredericksburg tomorrow.

Paul Chumky Travers, former Alexandria High School star athlete, who is now attending Virginia Military Institute, has returned to his home in this city. Paul, who was given the medal for being the best freshman athlete at V. M. I. for the season just closed, will take up his duties as lifesaver at the Alexandria Municipal Pool.

T. Brooke Howard announced today that the entire program for the biggest athletic smoker ever had held in this city had just about been completed. The program is one of the most attractive that has ever been staged. Billy Schwartz, fighting baker boy, will appear in the main bout. In the last smoker he was forced to postpone his appearance because of a cut eye, but this time there is no doubt that he will appear.

TITLE FIGHT 15 ROUNDS OR LESS

Pegler Says Sharkey Has All Physical Advantages.

for the last ten years have held a monopoly of the title. Gene Tunney gave the relic upon his retirement from pugilism in the spirit of a man who marks a letter "Dictated but not read." That is to say, he wrote the check for the statue but did not attend the original unveiling nor has he seen the statue yet.

Hearst Papers Puff Bout's Importance.

The Garden Corporation, which wished to produce this fight on its own account, but yielded it up to the milk fund under firm but tactful pressure, has lent its resources and staff to the promotion with great enthusiasm. The match was made by Damon Runyon, the sport writer of the Hearst papers, at a time when Schmeling was a political refugee from the jurisdiction of the New York Prizefight Commission, and the entire sport staffs of the three local Hearst papers have worked on the job with that devotion which only the boss' orders can command and only a newspaperman can understand.

Mrs. Hearst, through Mr. Runyon, has been conducting big prizefight shows for the milk fund for several years and, in the present case, her young men by publicity, diplomacy and political suasion have exaggerated the intrinsic importance of the show and the gate receipts at least 100 per cent.

There will be sport writers from most of the large cities of the United States and some from England and Germany in the working press rows and a broadcast has been arranged in the German tongue which will be relayed to Germany.

Both prizefighters have always enjoyed fine health and their training these last six weeks has largely consisted of mere motions performed for the benefit of the ballyhoo.

Schmeling has tried to improve his boxing in this brief period, but he has had no competent instruction and anyway it was like trying to grow a watermelon in an hour. If he wins the prizefight he will win on determination, self-possession and aggressiveness. Sharkey has all the physical advantages.

ing in at the ball yard at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The mask of surliness that usually hides Sharkey's real feelings before an important match was missing today. He appeared too complacent, if anything, and gayly waved three front-row tickets in the face of Garden officials. Occasionally he thumped Manager Johnny Buckley with even more gusto than usual.

"This fight is a cinch," he announced. "I never felt better. It won't even be close."

Schmeling, the lean, hard, young "underdog," stuck to his knitting. He expects to say it with gloves at the proper time.

Elliott Spicer, Indian Spring; Maury Fitzgerald, unattached, and Albert R. Mackenzie, Columbia, each took 6s and were assigned to the second sixteen.

With 80 to qualify, there were 82 players with 85 and under; but, although E. T. Rice, Washington, and A. T. Maryland Woman Volunteers To Serve Ill Brother's Term

After Lucal Aldrich, of Baltimore, had been sentenced to serve three months in the Maryland House of Correction on charges of assault and battery preferred by his wife, who lives in Riverdale, the man's sister appeared in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court yesterday and asked Judge J. Chew Sheriff to permit her to serve her brother's time.

The sister, whose name was not given by the judge, told him that her brother had undergone an operation for mastoids and that an abscess had formed on his brain which has to be drained by a physician daily. She feared that the brother would not get the proper attention at the institution.

Judge Sheriff called Chief H. L. Leonard, of the Prince Georges County Rescue Squad, and requested him to see that Aldrich was given proper medical treatment but refused the sister's request.

The wife charged that Aldrich had pushed on the door of her home at Riverdale so hard in an effort to enter and see his children that he knocked her down.

HUNGRY COOLIES SEEK MANCHURIA

Steamer Decks Are Jammed With Refugees Fleeing Famine Districts.

FREIGHT TRAINS LOADED

Mukden, Manchuria, June 11 (A.P.). By steamship, train, mule cart and afoot hundreds of thousands of refugees from the famine districts of central China have been pouring into Manchuria this spring seeking a surer sustenance in this "land of the golden north."

"Go north" has become the rallying cry in one province after another where the population, sometimes for years, has faced decimation through crop failures or the ravages of civil war.

Young men, old men, beggar men and thieves, women, boys, girls and toddling infants are in the migrating hordes.

Any Vessel Will Do.

Coolies packed like sheep any sort of a vessel that will float from Tsing-tao to Dairen and the shipping companies handle them on the basis of bulk freight, estimating the cost at $9 a ton. Two or three thousand frequently are jammed onto a crazy little steamer built to accommodate a few hundred.

Freight trains loaded with Manchurian grain, bought with famine relief donations from Americans, take food to the Yellow River basin where there have been four successive crop failures. The back haul consists of coolies and their families, carrying worldly possessions on their backs.

The steamship and railroad companies rather welcome the traffic. The coolies load themselves, feed themselves en route and scramble off boats and cars under their own power when officials give the signal. Moreover, the live freight saves the roads from bringing back strings of empties.

Welcomed in Manchuria.

Manchuria is the one spot on earth where the patient, industrious coolie is welcomed with open arms. Millions of virgin acres await him in this temperate northern country and the government tells him where to go to find land.

Famine relief organizations, guilds and wealthy land owners are backing up the Manchurian authorities' campaign for colonization. The relief people furnish transportation for thousands who would otherwise be unable to leave their barren home lands, guilds give similar help and the land owners unite with the other boosters of Manchuria to promise the coolie that he will be better off in every particular.

No one knows yet just how many settlers Manchuria has gained this year. But day after day and for weeks at a stretch trainloads of from 800 to 1,000 coolies each have been arriving from Honan and Shensi provinces. There 10,000,000 persons have been affected by crop failures and several millions have died of hunger or from famine-induced disease.

Exodus Is Immense.

The size of the exodus can perhaps be visualized by reference to previous years. In 1927 more than a million immigrants came from China proper to Manchuria. There were nearly as many in 1928. Last year the figures fell off when the Sino-Russian dispute over the Chinese Eastern Railway threatened war.

But this season the coolie began making up for lost time. Competent observers look for a big increase over the 1927 figures. Some, in fact, figure that there have been half a million newcomers in four months. Mukden is the chief distributing point for the migrants. It gets not only the train loads direct from Honan and Shensi but also receives the additional thousands who travel by steamship up the coast to Dairen and then by rail to this capital.

Yet still there is room, for the three eastern provinces, as the Chinese prefer to call Manchuria, have an area about equal to Texas and California combined, and the population in 1924 was only 22,000,000, a low density as compared with other arable sections of China.

TARIFF FARM AID, BROSSARD ASSERTS

Commission Chairman Tells Women's City Club of Economic Reactions.

DUNLAP ALSO SPEAKER

The last two tariff acts and the present bill are largely agricultural tariffs and are calculated to benefit the farmers, Dr. Edgar B. Brossard, chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, told the business and professional section of the Women's City Club last night in a talk on "Agriculture and the Tariff With Sidelights on the Tariff Commission."

Dr. Brossard showed how the consumers and producers' interests are identical for the reason that producers are consumers and the consumers are producers. In regard to the new tariff bill, Dr. Brossard said that it is impossible to calculate what the increase will be for the consumer or what the supply or demand of the producer will be. He pointed out that at present the United States has a foreign trade amounting to more than $9,000,000,000 with imports amounting to more than $4,000,000,000 and exports aggregating $5,000,000,000.

Speaking as "a dirt farmer from Ohio," Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Renwick W. Dunlap told of the benefits that farmers will derive from a protective tariff. He showed how farmers of this country would lose the market for their products if the tariff was removed from the same products from other countries.

Dr. Philip G. Wright addressed the women on the tariff and the farmers. The meeting was held in the garden of the Women's City Club. Miss Florence E. Ward presided.

Bus Passenger Sues Company and Motorist

Bess M. Hafner, of 1706 Surrey Lane northwest, yesterday filed suit in District Supreme Court against the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and Henry C. Merriam, of the Army and Navy Club, seeking to recover $26,000 damages.

The plaintiff claims she was passenger in a Burleith bus operated by the traction company, which was in collision with the automobile of Merriam on January 3, 1929, at Seventeenth and K streets northwest. She asserts she was hurled against the seat in front of her and severely injured. The plaintiff was represented by Attorneys Mason, Spalding & McAtee.

Yeggs Blow 2 Safes And Get $470 Cash

Garrison School, Nu-Grape Office Are Entered in Early Morning.

Yeggs operating in the District early yesterday "cracked" two safes, one in the Nu-Grape Corporation establishment at 210 Second street and the other in the Garrison School, at Twelfth and S streets northwest. They obtained $400 from the corporation safe and $70 from the school strong box.

Using crowbars, they forced the strongbox in the Nu-Grape Corporation offices, after gaining entrance by jimmying open a side door. They then climbed up the open elevator shaft to reach offices which are on the second floor. The robbery was discovered by the manager, Herbert Mack, when he opened the offices at 7 o'clock.

Entrance to Garrison School was made by breaking a glass in the office window. The robbery was discovered by Principal Savoy, who reported the theft to the police.

CATHOLIC U. CLASS HEARS DR. FENWICK LAUD WORLD COURT

International Code Needed, Bryn Mawr Teacher Says in Graduation Talk.

FAKE SCIENCE RAPPED BY ARCHBISHOP CURLEY

Degrees Conferred on 349; Papal Diploma Given C. E. Martin.

Need for development of an international law under which the World Court could adequately treat controversies, was the theme of Dr. Charles G. Fenwick in an address at Catholic University commencement exercises yesterday over which Archbishop Michael J. Curley presided.

Dr. Fenwick, who is professor of international law at Bryn Mawr College, told the 364 students in the assemblage that the problem between nations lies in the "application, to the conduct of states, of the fundamental principles of right and justice which men have come to apply to themselves as citizens of the State in which they live."

Pursuing this analogy, Dr. Fenwick asserted, "No one questions the principle that in a despute between citizens the judgment of the court of justice takes precedence over the opinion of the individual citizen. This same rule we have applied between the individual States and the United States."

Problem of Nations.

Contending that the problem is to apply the same principles to the nations of the world, Dr. Fenwick said "it would entail development of an international law competent to hear disputes of nations. Such a court already exists in the Permanent Court of International Justice."

In his remarks Archbishop Curley commended the views of Dr. Fenwick, adding that there need be no conflict between laws of morality and laws of nations. He beseeched the graduates to abide by the ideals and philosophies imported during their studies.

At the same time he took occasion to attack "pseudo-scientists who, he said, persistently deny the existence of God." He also lauded the "sincere scientists who are devoting their energy to the betterment of mankind."

Clarence Martin Honored.

Clarence Eugene Martin was presented with a diploma of Pope Pius XI, appointing him knight commander of the Order of St. Gregory the Great. Joseph W. Clay, of Cumberland, Md., delivered the valedictory. Mgr. E. A. Pace, vice rector of the university, pronounced the invocation, while announcements were made by the Right Rev. Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector.

FORMER POLICEMAN ALLEN IS FINED $10

TRAFFIC TRIAL PENDING

Robert J. Allen, former Washington policeman, who figured conspicuously in the Virginia McPherson murder case, was fined $10 for contempt of court in Arlington County Courthouse yesterday morning by Judge Bryan Gordon, associate Police Court justice, during proceedings in which Allen sought to inject himself into the Matry Baker case.

The fine was imposed at the height of a spirited argument between Allen and Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, while the former policeman was explaining to the court that he had hired Amos C. Crounse as counsel for Private Howard L. Brewster, who is held in the Arlington County Jail on a charge of murdering Mary Baker. Brewster, however, said that he had not sought Mr. Crounse nor did he desire the services of an attorney.

"Gloth knows he is a liar," Allen suddenly explained in open court, as he rose to take vigorous exception to the protestations of the Commonwealth's attorney against the attempt of Allen to enter the case.

Allen paid the $10 and apologized to the court. A charge against Allen of operating his automobile on other than Virginia tags was continued until this morning.

Pupils Will Entertain.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Jackson School, Avon and R streets northwest, will be guests of the pupils Friday afternoon at a pageant to be held in connection with class-day exercises.

Padlock Is Sought For 'Debating Club'

Establishment in I Street Branded Nuisance Under Prohibition Law.

The Government, through United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to padlock for one year the Press Debating Club at 1217 I street northwest. The Government's petition alleges that the establishment has been operating as a nuisance under the national prohibition law.

Michael Vercelli, Ignacio Olivetti and John Bossetto are named as agents and employes of the club, while Harry K. Boss, H. Glenn Phelps and Ben T. Webster are designated as owners of the property.

The application for the padlock follows a raid several weeks ago on the premises in which Sergt. O. J. Letterman and his vice squad are said to have found a quantity of whisky. The petition also carried with it a certified notification to the owners that the property was being used in alleged violation of the law.

Olivetti and Bossetto were arraigned in Police Court the day following the raid and demanded a trial by jury. Their case, so far, has not been heard.

China Religious Worker To Make Address Here

C. Z. Timothy Lo, religious work director of the Shanghai Y. M. C. A. and one of the religious leaders of China, will deliver an address at 8 o'clock tonight at the Western Presbyterian Church, H street between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets northwest. His subject will be "The Religious Significance of the Present Political Situation in China."

The announcement was made by Dr. J. Harvey Dunham, pastor, who will preside. Dr. Dunham said that Mr. Lo now is on an extensive tour of the United States to study religious education methods.

GAMING RAID CAUSES FIVE INDICTMENTS

Arrested Men Stand Accused as Owners of Alleged Resort in G Street.

NO LIQUOR BILLS FOUND

As a result of a surprise raid staged by police under the direction of the United States attorney's office on an establishment on G street northwest near Twelfth street June 4, the District of Columbia grand jury yesterday indicted five men on charges of setting up a gaming table.

Those charged in the indictment are: Harry Conn, Benny Lewis, Kirk Callenberger, Henry Tucker and Edward Killeen.

The raid was made after Policeman James E. Kenney, of the Second Precinct, who had been lent to the United States Attorney's office, had posed as a bookmaker and had gained access to the establishment, according to police reports. Kenney is alleged to have placed a bet on the date of the raid and to have opened the door to other policemen.

The indictment is in four counts. Count No. 1 charges that the five accused men between November 1, 1929 and the date of the raid had set up a gaming table where bets could be made on horse races. The second count charges that they maintained a place for such illegal purpose during the same interval. The third count alleges that the accused men had under their control a place where bets could be made and where gaming was permitted. The fourth count charges the accused men with making a specific bet with Policeman Kenney on June 4.

The indictment was among 33 reported to Justice Peyton Gordon in District Supreme Court by the inquisitorial body.

For the first time in several months no indictments charging violation of the prohibition law were reported.

Charges in six cases were ignored as follows: Harold B. Rutherford, Willie Johnson and William Reed, joy-riding; Paul W. Miles and Floyd E. Clark, grand larceny, and Stern Co., Inc., manslaughter.

Former Capital Store Manager Is Indicted

William T. Miller, former manager of the Washington branch of the Lincoln Shoe Store, of Baltimore, at 1115 G street northwest, was indicted by the District grand jury yesterday on a charge of embezzlement.

Miller, according to the indictment, failed to account for 182 pairs of shoes, each pair of which was said to be worth $6. The alleged shortage, it was understood, was discovered after he had left his post without leave of absence.

J. M. WALSH SLATED FOR PROMOTION TO CAPTAIN OF POLICE

Veteran, of 64, to Succeed Reilly as Commander of Sixth Precinct.

WEBER SEEN AS CHOICE FOR LIEUTENANT'S POST

Private Barnes May Become New Sergeant; Other Shifts Considered.

Lieut. John M. Walsh, of the Tenth Police Precinct, will be promoted to a captain to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Capt. Martin Reilly, who was in command of the Sixth Precinct.

Detective Sergt. Charles J. P. Weber, of the Detective Bureau staff, probably will be promoted to be a lieutenant to succeed Lieut. Walsh.

This will create a vacancy among the sergeants which will have to be filled by the promotion of a man from the ranks and if reports are borne out, Private Paul L. Barnes, of the First Precinct, will be promoted to sergeant.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, conferred briefly yesterday with Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, but said afterward that he had not submitted any recommendations to the Commissioners and could not discuss the subject prior to submission of his recommendations.

Three Head Eligible Lists.

The three men mentioned stand at the top of their respective lists of eligibles for promotions and they are expected to be named by the superintendent within the next day or two. It is possible that physical defects may act to stop the promotion of one or another of the men who will have to undergo a physical examination before their promotion becomes effective.

Lieut. Walsh is popular among the police force, as a member of which he has served since April 24, 1894. Lieut. Walsh was born on October 5, 1865, and is beyond the retirement age in length of service and age, but is considered to be in good health.

When appointed he was assigned to duty as a foot patrolman in Sixth Precinct. He was promoted to sergeant on July 2, 1906, and was made a lieutenant on January 16, 1922. He was sent to the Tenth Precinct as lieutenant on April 6, 1928, and has served there since.

Weber's Record Proud One.

Detective Sergt. Weber's record is replete with commendations for meritorious service throughout his service as a private and precinct detective and detective sergeant. He was born in Washington on June 21, 1880, and was appointed to the Police Department on July 25, 1902. He was made acting sergeant in December, 1911, and a sergeant on June 30, 1912.

Given indefinite leave of absence in April, 1918, to take charge of developing the police force of the munitions plant at Giesboro Point, he resigned October 31, 1919, returning to the police force as a private on July 19, 1922. Assigned to the Tenth Precinct, he was made a precinct detective in May, 1924, and was promoted to detective sergeant in November, 1924.

Private Barnes was born on January 26, 1894, and was appointed to the police force on February 1, 1921.

One more sergeant may be named in the near future to fill the vacancy caused by the demotion of Sergt. Odessa Hunt, provided the Commissioners approve the findings of the Trial Board. A captain and seventeen lieutenants will be made under the provisions of the pending District appropriation bill.

Telephone Inventor's Residence Demolished

Demolition of the house of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, on Connecticut avenue just south of Dupont Circle, was completed yesterday and the site will be sold. Dr. Bell lived in this three-story brick house for 30 years, and died there in 1922. The house has not been occupied since that date. It was erected in 1892, Hornblower & Marshall being the architects.

The late William Howard Taft was entertained there when he was governor general of the Philippines, and the late Joseph Cannon, Speaker of the House, was a frequent guest.

Witness Gets Time In Contempt Case

Charles H. Beavers to Serve 48 Hours for Ignoring Summons.

Charles H. Beavers, alleged unwilling witness, was sentenced by Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court yesterday to serve 48 hours in jail on a charge of contempt of court.

The sentence of Beavers followed hearing on charges of assault and disorderly conduct against John Phillips. Beavers, who was alleged to have been badly beaten by Phillips last Saturday, failed to appear in court Monday as a complaining witness and Judge McMahon issued an attachment.

Beavers was brought into court yesterday and his testimony failed to substantiate the assault charge. Judge McMahon, after hearing testimony of Policeman W. F. Burke, of the Sixth Precinct, sentenced Phillips to pay a $5 fine on the disorderly charge and sent Beavers to jail for refusing to answer a subpena. Attorney William Shea appeared for Phillips.

Stray Dogs Bite Two And Cat Attacks Third

Stray dogs and a cat went on a rampage in the Northeast section yesterday attacking three children and inflicting wounds which necessitated treatment at Casualty Hospital. The children bitten by dogs were Harold J. Monahan, jr., 4 years old, of 1224 Montello avenue northeast, and Tony Albonasi, 11 years old, of 204 C street northeast.

Leon Haislet, 2 years old, of 612 Morton place northeast, was attacked by a cat while playing in the front of her home. The cat left its teethmarks on the child's wrist.

MISS J. A. RIGGS, 76, DIES AT HOME HERE

Daughter of Cofounder of Capital Bank to Be Buried Tomorrow.

NEPHEW WILL SAY MASS

Miss Jane Agnes Riggs, 76 years old, member of one of the oldest and most prominent families of Washington, died yesterday at the Riggs Home, at 1617 I street northwest, following a brief illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Matthew's Catholic Church, with mass to be said by the Rev. T. Lawrason Riggs, of New Haven, Conn., a nephew. Interment will be in Rock Creek Church Cemetery.

Miss Riggs was widely known in Washington, where she had made her home continuously since a baby in the I street residence of her father, the late George Washington Riggs, although she was born in New York City. Out of the family which numbered four daughters and two sons, she was the sole surviving member.

Six Children in Family.

Each of the six children were prominently identified here. They numbered Miss Alice Riggs, who died four years ago; Lady Howard, wife of Sir Henry Howard, British Minister at The Hague and later at the Vatican; Mme. Geofroy, wife of a ranking member of the French diplomatic service; E. Francis Riggs, for many years a financier here, and Thomas Lawrason Riggs, of Green Hill, Prince Georges County, Md.

Miss Riggs through the years had evidenced interest in various enterprises and benefactions created by her father, who established the banking firm of Corcoran and Riggs in partnership with W. W. Corcoran, founder of the Corcoran Art Gallery, in which she also was interested. The firm later became Riggs & Co. and was succeeded by the present Riggs National Bank. Her grandfather was Elisha Riggs, whose partner was George Peabody, the celebrated British financier.

Active in Civic Enterprises.

Soldiers' Home, occupying property once owned by her father, and both Georgetown University and Georgetown Hospital, which had received gifts from her father, likewise commanded her attention at intervals. She was active in various other civic and religious groups, particularly as the District of Columbia vice regent of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association.

She is survived by four nephews and three nieces, including besides Father Riggs, Col. E. Francis Riggs, of Green Hill, Md.; Commander H. M. Howard and Antoine de Geogroy, of Paris, France; Miss Jessie and Miss Alice Howard, of London, England, and the Baroness von Recum, of Hesse, Germany.

CORA RIGBY PASSES; LONG BUREAU HEAD

Christian Science Monitor Staff Member Noted in Newspaper Field.

BURIAL TO BE IN OHIO

Miss Cora Rigby, chief of the Washington bureau of the Christian Science Monitor and former president of the Woman's National Press Club, passed on at her home, 2019 Hillyer place northwest, yesterday morning.

Miss Rigby was one of the few women who ever served as the head of a Washington bureau of an out-of-town newspaper. She had a wide reputation in her profession.

The body of Miss Rigby was taken to Lancaster, Ohio, last night for burial in the family plot in that city, according to a request on her part.

Miss Ribgy was born in Lancaster, Ohio, and was the daughter of William L. and Martha A. Keller Rigby. She was educated at the Western Seminary (now Western College, Oxford, Ohio), Ohio State University and Boston University, where she received the degree of bachelor of philosophy.

Miss Rigby was a member of the American Association of University Women, president of the Woman's National Press Club from 1920 to 1928, the Daughters of the American Revolution and of the Kappa Kappa Gamma. She was formerly connected with several national newspapers.

Cloud Bank Balks Altitude Attempt

Lieut. Soucek Reaches Six-Mile Height Before Abandoning Try.

Frustrated by a solid bank of clouds, Lieut. Apollo Soucek, the Navy's holder of the world's altitude record, yesterday gave up an attempt to better his record-smashing flight of June 4, after one hour and twelve minutes in the air.

Lieut. Soucek reached an altitude of 32,000 feet, or approximately 6 miles from the earth's surface. On bringing his small Apache plane back to Anacostia Flying Field, the Naval Air Station here, Lieut Soucek said that the clouds were "too heavy for a successful altitude flight."

He ordered pontoons placed on the ship, instead of the landing wheels, and announced that today he will "have a go at attempting to break the seaplane record." Lieut. Soucek is the present holder of the world's seaplane altitude record, made on June 4, 1929, with the same plane he will fly today.
